on the extent of our victory. At all events, I repeat that I think it ought to be great victory will be to enable Canada and the others, to proceed, secure from attack, with dis-men who occupy positions of trust in the different provinces. And never in the history of Canada has there been a more opportune season than while this struggle is on. Let us have cleaner politics and more honest business in the conduct of our public affairs."

There again you have it: "Expecting service from the public men." And for Service, the service not of Britain and the Allies alone, but the lasting service of humanity, Premier Assiniboia, in the British House, where he was speaking of very same high resolve and determined conviction uttered that very same night by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Canada, spoke of the best and bravest word of historic British Liberalism, now the word of all true-hearted Britons the world over, when he said:

"This war cannot be allowed to end in some patched-up, precarious, and dishonouring compromise, manquering under the name of peace.
We owe it to those who have given their lives that their supreme sacrifice shall not have been unavailing."

Service at home and at the distant battleground, to make an end not of this war but of all war, is the reason and the motive, not of Liberalism alone—but of all who have sought or are seeking the true British spirit. Service not to one class but to all classes is the new inspiration of all who teach, of all who toil, and of all who in the olden days rode gallantly on the backs of their work. Service not to one's own kind or one's own country alone, but to the whole human family, out of whom must be made the re-born human brotherhood. Service not to the new war and Liberalism, if it would live and thrive in the newborn day, must suffer through the night the travail-pangs of the world. Its watchword, alive and compelling, must be Service.

The Little Children of the Lusitania.
The little children walk upon
The cold floor of the sea.
Lord Christ, how have our bodies gone?
How far from heaven are we?

These are our souls—how strange they seem!
We cannot laugh or play,
But up and down, as in a dream,
We walk by night and day.

We saw the Irish fish of green;
The gulls were flying by;
When sudden death and unseen Sent us down here to die.

To die—and yet we are not dead!
Cannot they hear us call?
He answers not who might have said The word to save us all.

Yea, we are utterly forgotten!
Lord Christ, how can it be?
For we would walk in heaven, and not Stay here beneath the sea.

But we must stay—we cannot go.
Oh, would that we could fit In phantom shapes before him, so He might remember it!

Even his cold heart might feel a thrill Of pity for us then,
And scourge our murderers until We were released again.

The little children walk upon
The cold floor of the sea.
Lord Christ, for what he has not done, Renounce him utterly!

Hiding Under an Assumed Name.
(Columbus, Ohio, Journal).

When you attack another person in a newspaper don't hide under an assumed name. Say who you are, and then your criticism will have the value your own personality gives it, whatever that may be. Your criticism will have the force of a conviction if you say who you are. And again, if you sign your true name you will not be so free in attacking others.
You will be more careful, and do so familiarly under the name of duty. Of course these reflections do not apply to the discussion of general subjects. In the case of policies and public duties the principles involved do not carry any personal significance. But if John Doe, a sheep herd, charges Richard Roe with stealing sheep, it is only fair that John let people know who he is, for, after all, his indignation may be as false as Richard's reached the shepherd first.

Has Lapses of Memory, Asserts Rogers' Slayer

At Preliminary Hearing Merrill Ascribes His Weakness to German Gas—Did Not Remember Crime—Committed for Trial Before Supreme Court.

Moncton, Oct. 17.—John Fletcher Rogers, a clerk in the accounting department of the Intercolonial Railway, was shot and killed in the basement of the general offices this afternoon and Lieut.
John E. Merrill is in the police station charged with murder.

The tragedy occurred soon after the arrival of the Ocean Limited from the east. How the soldier came to the general offices is unknown. Passersby saw him standing in the doorway between 3 and 8 o'clock and say that as they passed him he would salute them, acting like a man under the influence of liquor.

The bullet entered Rogers' body just above the right lung. The shooting was done with a revolver of heavy calibre.
The soldier was taken to the police station and charged with murder. An identification card gave his name as Lieut. John E. Merrill, of the 10th Canadian Infantry, and his rank as sergeant.
His pockets were found to contain a return ticket from Halifax to Ottawa and Pullman ticket. The accused apparently did not realize his situation at the time he committed the crime. The police chief seemed in a half dazed condition.

Chief of Police Rideout tonight said the accused, after being taken to police station, slept till about 8 o'clock. About 7 o'clock this evening the accused talked with the chief and said that he was the knew of the murder. He broke down and cried. The chief said he was accused he had no recollection of the tragedy. He says he remembered only going into the building.

Merrill said he was thirty-five years of age and was born in England. He has a wife and two children now in England. The prisoner says he landed in New York when young and has seen service with the American army, having fought in the Philippines. He says he was in the secret service in Mexico when the present war broke out. He left Mexico immediately, coming to Canada, and enlisted with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. He was with the regiment in the Princess Patricia's and was wounded and gassed also. He says he was attached to the 18th Highlanders.

The victim of the tragedy was the son of late J. P. Rogers and was born at Moncton Nov. 30, 1888. He learned telegraphy in the Western Union office here. Later he went to London, where he was employed by the British Electric Co., Ltd., operators at Buckingham.
He married Miss Lena Elizabeth Windsor. Later he was employed as telegrapher with the Western Union office. He returned to Moncton in November last and entered the office of S. L. Shannon, comptroller of the I. C. R. He is survived by his wife and also a clerk in the I. C. R.

A sad feature of the tragedy is that Mrs. Rogers was rushed to the maternity hospital this afternoon.

Moncton, Oct. 18.—That as a result of being gassed by Germans while fighting in France he has had lapses of memory and was in such condition that he did not remember the crime, John E. Merrill at the preliminary court examination here this afternoon on the charge of murdering John P. Rogers in the I. C. R. general offices, Merrill made a statement when asked by Magistrate Stevens if he had anything to say, just before being committed for trial at the session of the supreme court which opens at Dorchester Tuesday next.

The preliminary examination began at 8 o'clock this afternoon. F. P.
Murphy appearing for the crown, and Major C. H. Hamilton and E. H. Mc-Donald, Sheldrake, appeared for the defence.

Thomas Walsh, I. C. R. clerk, was the first witness. He went to the basement in the elevator about 2:45 and saw the accused pull down a gun; he saw Rogers fall and heard the report of the gun and saw Rogers fall. When the accused came upstairs from the basement he saw him and saw him go down.

Dr. F. J. White saw John Rogers lying on the floor with his face and chest covered with blood. He was unconscious, the bullet having made a clean cut hole, entering below the shoulder blade and out the right chest.

Clarence C. Dryden, I. C. R. clerk, saw Merrill and Rogers in the basement and heard the accused say to Rogers: "Stand stand, stand." He ran to get more clerks and returning he saw Rogers lying on his back with his arms raised and his head tilted back. He saw Rogers' blood on the floor.

P. J. Landry, I. C. R. clerk, said when Merrill came towards him after shooting he said, "Hello, friend, it's all right." Walsh and another fellow helped him hold Merrill.

Thomas Thatcher, elevator boy, saw Merrill flourishing a revolver when he talked to Rogers.

Toy Gould, stenographer, saw the accused draw a revolver down with his right hand and heard the shot. He helped to hold the accused who seemed under the influence of liquor. He heard the accused say in a mumble tone something like "I knew him." He heard him mumble before the shot was fired.

Chief of Police George Rideout stated that the hole in Rogers' back was made with a large bullet. He could have placed his little finger in the wound. There were two cartridges in the revolver, one loaded and the other empty. He received from an officer this morning the piece of lead supposed to have passed through Rogers' body.

into the imperial service as second lieutenant in the King's Own Lancashire Regiment, 10th Reserve Battalion. He has his old battalion badge, also the cap and feather of the 240th Highlanders (N. S.), in which, he says, he is acting captain.

The Inquest.
The inquest into the death of John Fletcher Rogers, victim of a tragedy in the I. C. R. general offices yesterday afternoon was held in the morning before Coroner Holford.
The jurors are: H. H. Warman (forman); A. J. Curran, Hartley G. Leaman, George Davis, J. S. Rayworth, W.
H. Irving and Harvey Bass. Miss Be-sie Fairweather is the official stenographer.

The jury left at 10:15 to view the body lying in Tuttle Bros' morgue.
Then evidence was taken.
Edward Legere of Charlevoix said he saw a soldier have hold of Rogers with one hand with a revolver in the other. He was swearing and calling him names and told him he would shoot him. Then he shook hands with him.
The officer and Rogers went to go up stairs and the officer said "Stop or I'll shoot." Rogers went back and he caught him by the shoulder and started swearing again. The witness started up stairs and heard a shot. The witness said he went to tell someone.

MAY TAKE CHURCH UNION QUESTION EVEN TO COURTS

Toronto, Oct. 18.—Rev. Dr. E. Scott gave an address before the Presbyterian Anti-Union Convention on "the present crisis," at a largely attended session today. The movement for church union, he said, was one arising largely among college and university officials, who, for purposes of their own, would lead the church where they wished. The question was whether the great Presbyterian church will tolerate the machinations of these men who would hand it over to an ecclesiastical combine. The speaker indicated that the official publication of the church was largely the tool of those who were agitating for union.

In the discussion which followed G. F.
MacDonald, of Ottawa, suggested that a committee be formed to take legal steps, even carrying the matter to the privy council, if necessary, to prevent any union of the churches.

Rev. James Lindsay, of Q. A. Appelle, declared that the people west of Winnipeg wanted union.

At the afternoon session a recommendation of the publications committee, to bring about the establishment of a weekly organ representing the Presbyterian church, was referred to the nominating committee after several speakers had endorsed the proposal.

Rev. W. G. Brown, in a paper dealing with the financial condition of the church in the coming change, set out a scheme that all ministers in country or city get the same basic rate of salary, and that any differences be made up by allowances for extra work in the churches.
After discussion this subject was referred to a committee.

STEFANSON TO STAY NORTH ALL WINTER

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Reports received by the minister of marine and naval affairs from the Stefansson expedition party state that Stefansson is wintering on Melville Island, where he is in touch with three supply ships and is amply equipped for the winter.

He will make further exploration during the few months by dog team of the new land discovered to the north of St. Patrick's Island. Before returning to civilization next summer it is expected that Stefansson will be able to report that he has discovered new land area in the Beaufort Sea.

This will be Stefansson's last winter in the north. He will return to Ottawa about September next, bringing with him his reports of the work done during the past three years in a hitherto unknown part of the world.

Political Reporters.
(W. J. H. in Manitoba Free Press.)

Dear W. J. H.,
There is a good deal of argument I heard here the other day. One of the arguers was claiming that the result of certain recent elections was due to the votes of his party being all at the front.
The other came back at him thus:
"After next week our fall will be empty—a most unusual state of affairs.
And the anti-Prohibitionists are claiming that it is because all the criminal cases are coming to the front. Can it be both you and the anti-Prohibitionists are right? If not, which of you is right?"

SAYS FARMERS SHOULD BE PRAYING MEN

(Hartford Observer.)

"Never saw so many turnips in my life." "Where do they all come from?" Such are common ejaculations these days. This may not go into history as "the year of the big turnip," but it will go on record as a year of lots of them.

The general public was not aware that Carleton and Victoria counties had become a turnip producing section until the market opened and away came the turnips—thousands of barrels a day.
One day four car-loads were hauled to Hartford, and at every siding from De-bec to Grand Falls they were loading as fast as an army of devils could work.

Probably the two counties are shipping an average of ten carloads a day, by far the most of them going to the American market for table use. The Potato Products Co., of which H. H.
Hatfield is chief, will soon commence evaporating turnips at their Woodstock plant—that is, if ever the price falls low enough to make it profitable.

Today turnips bring seventy-five cents a barrel, and a fair price of land produce 500 barrels to the acre. Don't have to fear frost or any other thing. Only use 500 pounds of fertilizer to the acre.
Plant the seed and when the plants appear too thick pull out the weakest ones and feed them to the hogs and cattle—the best of them.

But what the hogs that fat on turnips tops? Last week James MacIsaac of East Florenceville loaded into a refrigerator car at Hartford the dressed carcasses of more than 100 hogs for the farmer got 18½ cents a pound. The hogs went to Halifax, and goodness knows what Jim got. Round pork at 18½ cents is some price all right. A few years ago a good one was 12½ cents.

There are probably 100 car loads of potatoes passing through and out of the two counties every day. While most of these are en route from Aroostook county, Maine, to the States, some are grown in the St. John Valley. The price hangs at 80 a barrel while there would be good money in them for half that price. A larger proportion of this crop is being shipped direct from the farm than ever before. Most farmers consider the price good enough, although all are housing a part of their crop, for potatoes are sure to bring a good price.

There seems to be no activity in the oat market in spite of the alluring price of forty-five cents. If, as it appears, less oats are being sold and more grain fed, the sign is a good one. The price of wheat is a good one. The price of barley is a good one. The price of
