that I tock the ground which I have assure

Mr. Brown answered in a similar sense. Mr. Dorion also asked whether, in case a general confederation was determined on, ject, for in twenty years of my political life determined to hold it till the last.

Canada was to remain as now united or I have never yet had a cause to doubt the New York. 22ad.—The Commercial's Canada was to remain as now united or whether it was to be divided. To both of these questions, Mr. John McDonald replied that no resolution had yet been arrived at. Mr. Dorion-Has it been considered whether the intercolonial railway is to be necessarily a preliminary or an accompaniment of the project. Mr. John A. McDonald replied that so far as he was concerned, it had never entered his mind.

Mr. Hotton said that without the slightest desire to find fault with the project, he was sure it would be understood that it was extremely desirable that the country should understand exactly what had been agreed upon so far as it went, and he therefore desired to ask whether it had been considered how much power should be given to the federal and how much to the local governments. It was wrong a minusclerated to a should not be standing the federal and how much to the local governments. It was wrong a minusclerate of the single transfer of the should not be standing there to day. It is nothing, however, for me to agree to this compromise—it is a small thing for the hon. Atty. Gen. West, or the four o'clock this evening report no fighting to day. ernments. It was upon a misuaderstanding on this point that the war in the United States had broken out. It was well known that part of the complaint of the people of hardly even at the very arst stage of the the principle must not be taken without business have escaped attention.

Mr. John A. MacDonald said there was tially the same as that which was agreed no measure yet to submit to Parliament, The negotiation had avoided any consideration of this reservation of powers, and he thought there would be danger of prejudic-at under any ordinary circumstances, effeetually preclude me from the attempt to justify myself. I am fully aware of the paintal position I hold, and the suspicions which may be excited of my having undertaken what I am doing for selfish mothat were the crisis one whit less important I could not have approached gentlemen opposite for the purpose of negotiating this agreement. But if ever there was an occasion which could justify such a coalition that occasion has been reached in the present condition of the country. I think there was only one way by which we could hope to carry on the government of the country. tives of personal advancement. I confess that were the crisis one whit less important was only one way by which we could hope to carry on the government of the country with any prospect of use fulness, and that was by the step proposed by contenues opposite to which I have acceeded. Ever since I have propounded this reform I have always asserted that I would meet any men no matter what party who would agree to settle this great difficulty. But I have year after year stood in this House and witnessed men coming from my own section of the country, pledged to carry out the views of the people of that section, and yet under our system of government have seen these men comment. pledged to carry out the under our system of that section, and yet under our system ed either to abandon the design of carrying could not see so out the wishes of the people who seet them bere, or give up the hope of any usefulness or any advancement; and this has gone on constantly becoming werse and werse until we have now arrived at a stege in the efficient few days since

In the Home tooight after the principles of an this point," I have submitted that the principle of the this point, and the principles of the feelings of Lower Canada capth to, the principles of the third principles of the principles of the principles of the third principles of the principles of the third principles of the principles o them that it is admitted on all hands that a great erisis has arrived in our history—that some change has become necessary, and that it will be the part of wisdom and patriotism which the House had a right to expect.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald said that he ought perhaps to have said that when this measure was brought slown it would be in such a shape as to give the House every possible opportunity of expressing its opinion. In short, it would not be made a party measure,

Mr. Borion,—Then it is not to be a gov.

Then that it is admitted on all hands that a great crisis has arrived in our history—that some change has become necessary, and that it will be the part of wisdom and patriotism not to condems too hastily; but to wait and see the remedy which is proposed. I will be the part of wisdom and patriotism not to condems too hastily; but to wait and see the remedy which is proposed and then, if they can, give us a generous dismounted enemy and their horses. They was brought slown it would be in such a Cabinet with men to whom I am so opposed. I would rather have avoided it and have stood outside, and have avoided it and have stood outside, and have stood outside, and hence given and house of the measure with Custer but they incvitably fell into rebel fire, at last Capt. Dana dashed that it will be the part of wisdom and patriotism not to condems too hastily; but to wait and see the remedy which is proposed and then, if they can, give us a generous dismounted enemy and their horses. They was gons, 5 caissons and 150 ambulances, but when Torbett forced the rebels back that when this measure was defined to be a source.

Mr. Borion,—Then it is not to be a gov.

shall be done fairly and openly, without would stand or fail, and he thought it should be. Its next sked whether a confederation of all the Provinces was to be the main incusare, and that of Canada only subsidiary, or if the confederation of Canada was to be the principal and that of the Lower Provinces only subsidiary?

Mr. John A. McDosald.—The Government pledges itself to bring in a measure could go into any country, from one end of the measure will live the measure will live the Lower Provinces to join. If they consent a measure for the confederator of Canada alone will be introduced. If not the measure for the confederacy of Canada way be misunderstood. But I do hope that in this respect I may have any motives the measure for the confederacy of Canada who may be misunderstood. But I do hope that in this respect I may have any motives. I cannot how who do know what they are. I cannot how who do know what they are. I cannot how who do know what they are. I cannot how who do know what they are. I cannot how who do know what they are. I cannot how without the measure for the confederacy of cannot will be presented.

New York. 22ad,-The Commercial's I have never yet had a cause to doubt the wisdom, of of any decision arrived at by the plain common sense of Upper Canada. If I am asked what guarantee I have, when I take only three members into the cabinet against nine hitherto opposed to this scheme, I say I care not if I have not one except for the assistance I shall derive from their talents. I believe I may confide in the sincerity of the gentlemen with whom I am dealing. I may be said indeed to be credulous; but I confess that I would rather be credulous than constantly suspicious. and thing for the hon. Atty. Gen. West, or the hon, member for Sherbrooke to agree to; but it was a very great thing, indeed, for the hon, member for Montreal East, and I must say that looking at the risks of the Saturday, and that he was repulsed. A description of the Saturday and that he was repulsed. Upper Canada was that they paid too large a share of the taxation; but this taxation protect him against criticism, that man, of the federal government. This was a matter upon which the whole merit of the scheme would depend, and he thought could be population, I have always contended that distinct assults, and losing 700 or 800 men. Winehester is not occupied by the enemy accompanying details; but I apprehend that the basis we have determined on is substantial this place and Harper's Ferry.

said about a general confederation in the reports I refer to; but if it had been men which a layer of water placed may be heated decision on the subject.

Mr. Brown then rose apparently very much agitated and sat down again as if too much overpowered by feeling to proceed.

After again rising, apparently still under the influence of great emotion he proceeded thus:

Did I conceal from this House that I feel deeply the position I occupy I should certain y deceive it. I have been opposed to gentiemen opposite for many years and in a most hostile manner, and in writing and speaking of coalitions of men of opposite opinions I have used language which would adopted would be one by which the Government would stand or fail, and that if he had been mentioned in the Upper Canadian convention I believe, that it would have been adopted. We intend to considered Canada, but though I am pretty well informed about the politices of this country I have not considered I confeed about the politices of this country I have not considered I confeed about the politices of the paper for heat, and the constant evaporation of the liquid through the provinces; but we shall go to Frederiction and to England, and to enderount to learn the feeing of the people there and shall act accordingly The hon. member concluded by seying that the measure when adopted would be one by which the Government would stand or fail, and that if he had on the hang without inconvenience from the tar.
