BELIZE Secret Service (Ssssh!)

(Bruns) Press Dateline: Washington, D.C. Jan. 17, 1988
An explosion rocked JFK Stadium, today, mortally wounding one man and injuring a sanitation engineer. Both men were rushed to hospital by the paramedics on hand. Damages to the building were minimal with only one urinal destroyed and the next stall slightly damaged.

A lone man was seen running from the scene of the explosion. Witnesses on hand described the suspect as "a very short, very furry man in a trenchcoat with pointy ears and a Charlie Chaplin mustache." He was brandishing an Uzi and yelling "Belize shall overcome".

Other witnesses stated that he was whisked away in a wing of helicopter gunships of Russian manufacture. A military spokesman stated "After compiling eyewitness descriptions of the helicopters, we are led to believe that they were a flight of 5 Mi24's, more commonly known as "Hinds, in full battle array." The helicopters were followed to the coast of New England where they reputedly "disappeared" somewhere in the Atlantic." One source implied that the helicopters may have been loaded aboard a submarine and whisked away. (see photo page 23).

- Hello, sports editor. . .
- Good afternoon. This is Special Agent Frakes of the FBI.
- (Groan) What's he done this time?
- We have some rather serious news. Mr. Marks was found in a destroyed washroom at JFK stadium in Washington. He was found with some rather incriminating evidence.
- What? How is he? What happened?
- He's dead. . .

Recruiting. That's what I was doing - Honest. These are all legit expenses. I was just trying to help out the poor Devils by getting a couple of players to come here to Fredericton.

I had just gotten back from an arduous journey across the iron curtain and was trying to rationalize justify explain (yeah, that's the ticket) several of my more dubious controversial claims. As I saw the situation the Red Devils needed a little, no a lot of help at every position and seeing as I just happened to be at the World Junior Tournament in Moscow, so. . .

It's expensive to send circumspect messages to players when they're guarded by the world's most possessive hockey moms a.k.a. the KGB. It's amazing what a thermos of chitty chitty Barbarians will get you - like access to a goalie, two defensemen and a center/left winger. And all they really wanted was to be allowed to buy as much booze as they wanted. They were duly informed that the right to become an alcoholic was regarded as very basic at UNB and I gave them promises of free memberships at the Slush Club (don't tell the AUAA or I'll be in beeg trouble).

I did spend a little more than expected on the trip but the results will be borne out in February when four (or maybe more) players skate over to the Canadian bench after their game and say those magic words "mind if we join your side?"

By the way nice photo, eh!

They lose.

By ERIC DRUMMIE

The Red Devils had a tough weekend losing both games. On Saturday they lost to St. FX 7-3 and on Sunday to UCCB 10-3. UNB plays this weekend on Sunday against Mt.A. UNB will be under pressure to play well in this encounter so as to make up some ground on Mt.A and STU for the last playoff spot.

The UNB Rebels played the Dal Tigers to two defeats this weekend. UNB played well in both games but nationally 8th ranked Dal was too overpowering. UNB hopes to improve their record against MUN next Friday at MUN.

With this easy win the Bloomers are heading for a clash against UPEI for the battle of first place. UNB has two games this weekend against UCCB, and seeing that UNB plays the way they did last weekend they should win. This will set the scene for the UNB -UPEI game February 5th. But before that UNB is going to have to beat Acadia. Despite all the "ifs" UNB is definitely on the right track, so this weekend come out and support you school and the Bloomers.
