

DISCOVERY ALLOWED

Coarse Gold Found on New Zealand

Creek is a Tributary of Indian River Between Montana and Quartz.

The filing of relocations in the gold commissioner's office this morning was somewhat varied by the acceptance of an application for a discovery claim on a new creek, or rather a new discovery on an old creek. Paul Krumenacher was given a discovery claim of 1000 feet upon New Zealand creek, a tributary, right limit of Indian river, coming in about six miles above Quartz and two miles below Montana. The discovery was located April 21 and in his affidavit Krumenacher states that he has been prospecting the creek since July, 1901, and the claim which he staked since three months ago. He has put down one hole 24 feet in which he drifted 30 feet; another 20 feet with a three-foot drift, another 17 feet. In two of the holes he reached bedrock and swears to having found coarse gold in the gravel.

New Zealand was first staked several years ago but was entirely abandoned, all the claims reverting to the crown.

Another Evidence.

One more harbinger of spring, gentle spring, appeared Monday in the shape of some small bunches of lettuce and a handful of radishes, each about as large as the end of one's thumb. They were raised in a hot house in West Dawson and looked good to one after a steady diet straight spuds and canned goods.

Assistant City Engineer.

Malcolm Scarth, for several years an attache of the gold commissioner's office, has been named by City Engineer Randall as his principal assistant. Mr. Scarth is a bright, capable, energetic young man and his appointment meets with the approval of everyone.

Important to Miners.

In another column will be found an announcement of the Canadian Bank of Commerce relative to the purchase of gold dust. We should advise that miners and others having commercial and other dust on hand should dispose of same on or before 30th April and thereby avoid the export tax.

Was Well Known.

It appeared yesterday evening after the account of the unfortunate accident at Shindler's store in which Mr. Clifford C. Whitaker lost his life, was published, that there are many people in Dawson who well and favorably knew the deceased. Whitaker was a native of Ohio and had been in the northern country for many years, being a pioneer of Sunrise City at Cook's Inlet. He was a very successful hunter and had the name of being able to bring down more game than any hunter on the upper Klondike during the past season, he having a record of six moose in one day.

Cold Turkey for one.

There is in Dawson one man who, while he does not care to advertise his good luck, will be enabled to get off the "pig train" when the government refunds the royalty illegally collected in '98. Although the man is now "broke," he paid excess royalty in '98 to the amount of upwards of $28,000 which, when refunded, will place him on his feet for a time at least. However, it may be several months, perhaps a year, before the "blow back" materializes.

Still Expanding.

L. W. Horkan's combination Standard Library, eating emporium, free reading room, chess and checker parlors, conservatory and greenhouse, has long been the biggest thing in Dawson except the ferry tower. Now the establishment is being added to by taking in a tract of adjoining territory which will give him additional space to the amount of 750 square feet. As an expansionist Horkan is the king pin of the broad, white north.

Charter Amended

Ottawa, April 23.—It was announced by the railway committee yesterday, when the application for the Yukon Pacific Co. for incorporation and authority to build to Whitehorse from Pyramid Harbor was reached, that the government would adhere to the accepted policy of granting no further charters for roads from American territory into the Yukon. The company's charter was amended so as to give it power to build from Whitehorse southwest to the boundary line between British Columbia and the N. W. T.

Last Stage Gone.

With the departure of the stage last night at 6 o'clock the last opportunity of going outside this winter over the ice vanished. The through passengers were John R. Gray, of the Dawson Hardware Co.; Sergt. Marshall, who is on his way to the coronation of King Edward; J. Hugo Ross and T. Weissberg, and J. H. Dixon and Emil Sofe for the Five Fingers coal mine. The stage also carried three sacks of lower river mail and nine from Dawson.

From now until the opening of navigation dog teams will be employed exclusively with the mail and will carry neither express nor any kind of freight, the mail leaving but once a week instead of twice as has been the case all winter. Tuesdays will probably be the day of its departure.

Yesterday for the first time in many months there was no mail in transit between Whitehorse and Dawson, though today there is one en route, it having left Whitehorse last night at the same hour the one took its departure from Dawson. When it will arrive is entirely a matter of conjecture, but Supt. Pugham hopes to get it through within a week. How it is coming is not known but it is presumed it is being brought by dogs.

Appropos of the transportation of the mail it is thought at the White Pass office that the first to come down the river after the opening of navigation will arrive on the Sybil, which is wintering at Hootalinqua. Her load of freight will consist entirely of cattle, sheep, hogs and horses, which will be driven overland to the boat and be ready to be taken aboard the moment the river is clear of ice.

The outbound travel this winter has been lighter than it was last, while that inbound has been nearly double the number of a year ago.

Sun Bathers.

Dawson's streets are crowded these bright afternoons with people, many of whom have been hibernating since last November and are now taking sun baths, the only sort they have indulged in since last fall. The man who went without an overcoat all winter is now touching elbows with mining magnates, merchant princes and way up officials. Spring sunshine in the Yukon causes all classes to meet on a common sidewalk—some of them so common and sidling as to be uncommon.

Population Increased.

A little girl arrived yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. Ian MacLean and today the happy father, who is an accountant in the office of Comptroller Lithgow, is receiving the congratulations of his many friends. Mrs. MacLean and babe are progressing nicely.
