Notable Night at Halifax Academy of Music

Boston Opera Stars Captivate Audience in Final Performance

The musical festival provided by the stars of the Boston Opera Company closed last night amid scenes of enthusiasm such as have never been witnessed in Halifax in recent years. It was a notable night. In addition to marking the close of the finest musical programme ever given here, the American premiere of "Andrea Ghenier" an Italian opera of wonderful dramatic and musical effect was held while the concert programme which preceded the performance was, if possible, of a higher standard than on the two previous nights. The Academy and the performance of last night and the manner in which it was received were assurance that capacity houses will rule when these artists return next year.

Never has an opera organization of better stars sung in Halifax, or, for that matter, anywhere in the Provinces. It is a singularly gracious act on the part of the tour management to have arranged presentations in N. Glasgow, Sydney, Truro, Wolfville and Yarmouth. Even the crowded houses here could not have much more than paid the expenses for such an aggregation. But in the short tour half a dozen towns are to be put musically on a par with New York and Boston, and though it be for but one single night, they will have an opera presentation that could not be excelled in any way.

The Art Exhibition At Acadia Ladies Seminary

Wolfville, June 1.—The art exhibition at Acadia seminary was held this year on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, May 27 and 28. While the number of pieces exhibited was not as large as on some former years, the pieces shown displayed careful thought and study, with a decided movement toward more advanced subjects. Miss Marion Marr, of Halifax, who completed the course this year, showed taste and skill in her treatment of decorative work, especially in the composition and broad handling of a panel of field lilies done in soft blues and browns. A pair of portieres were also much admired, both for the originality of design and the beautiful effect produced. Mrs. J. D. Spidell, who completes the course in oils and water colors, excelled in landscape work, choosing familiar scenes and reproducing many phases of nature with true interpretative insight. All of her work showed thoughtful study, careful attention to detail and daintiness in execution.

The china exhibit, while not large, was choice. A tea set in oriental effect, intricate in design (original) and color combination, the work of Miss Nora Lewis, a junior pupil, was much admired. The work exhibited in all departments thus showed a high standard, true artistic appreciation and honest effort.

Do not forget to read our notice to Subscribers in reference to increase in price to all who fail to pay in advance. People who fail to find one dollar to pay us in advance are apt to complain that they are not able to pay when two years or more fall due. June is the month in which every subscriber can settle in full for the cash rate $1.00. After July 1st. the higher rates will apply to all who are in arrears. Last week one subscriber was determined not to pay more than the usual rate and remitted us to 1915. We would like hundreds more to follow suit. Try, and see how easy it is.
