THREE MONTHS' CONTRIBUTION IN EUROPE BY AMERICAN VISITORS.

London Season Has Been Busy, But Intermittent - Continentals Rushing There - Passages Home at Big Premium - Mr. Hepburn on the English Railways.

A London cable says: Although the tourist season is nearing its end, American visitors are still arriving at the hotels, mostly from the Continent on their way home. The demand for steamship passage is such that while it is possible to secure a few first class berths for the end of September no second class accommodations are obtainable until mid-October.

The first Japanese school of forestry was started twenty years ago; now Japan has an organization embracing sixty-two schools for the training of students and the directing of popular attention to the science and practice of forestry.

There have been many estimates of the number of American visitors to Europe this year, but all have been exceeded by that of the London manager of the American Express Company.

While the hotels, restaurants and tradesmen have benefited this year by the influx of Americans to a great extent, it is held pessimistically that the benefit has not increased proportionately with the increase of Americans coming abroad.

"Americans, save those who are visiting Europe for the first time, do not seem to care to remain in London for any lengthy period, and the more prominent Americans pay their visits here when the crowd of visitors has departed.

"The most distinguished passenger on the American liner St. Paul, which sailed today, was Congressman Hepburn, who has just completed his first trip to Europe, and while over for a vacation found an opportunity to investigate railroad management conditions in England.

"Railroad problems in the United States arise principally from the dual nature of our Government, and nothing I have seen here could be introduced in America. Mr. Willis, who has charge of the railroad department of the Board of Trade, gave me every facility for investigation, and the tremendous power which this organization has over transportation impressed me.

"For instance, a new railroad is projected. The route and the amount of capitalization must meet with the approval of the Board of Trade before the project is sanctioned. When the road is completed inspectors thoroughly examine every detail of the equipment. If the rails are too light they must be replaced, if the bridges are unsafe they must be strengthened, and the road cannot be utilized until every detail satisfies the inspectors.

"This initial investigation would have been a good thing for America when the railroads in that country were in their infancy, but I think it is too late to try to introduce it now."

A close friend of his says that when Mr. Hepburn returns to Washington he will make a determined effort to do away with the large coterie of army and military officers now stationed there, and will make them return to active duty. Mr. Hepburn characterizes this coterie as nothing but a governmentally paid lobby, which answers no more useful purpose than wire-pulling.

"A ten penny nail means that one thousand nails weigh ten pounds. The word 'penny' in this sense is a corruption of pound."

Japanese Forestry. The first Japanese school of forestry was started twenty years ago; now Japan has an organization embracing sixty-two schools for the training of students and the directing of popular attention to the science and practice of forestry.

The climate of the Hokkaido country, the present principal forest area, like that of California and British Columbia, is favorable to forest growth. In older Japan reforestation finds scope mainly on the rugged slopes of the mountain ranges.

Unfortunately, the Japanese are wasteful of young forest growth. The framework of buildings is largely of rough hewn poles, and far too much young timber goes for charcoal, which is so generally used in Japan.

Easily Turned.

A small boy was asked to take dinner at the home of a distinguished professor in Princeton. The lad's mother, in fear lest he should commit some breach of etiquette, gave him repeated directions as to what he should and should not do.

"Upon his return from the great occasion, says the Youth's Companion, the mother's first question was, 'Harold, did you get along at the table all right?'"

"Yes, mamma, well enough." "You are sure you didn't do anything that was not perfectly polite and gentlemanly?"

"Why, no—nothing to speak of." "Then something did happen. What was it?"

"But I fixed it all right, mamma." "Tell me at once."

"Why, I got along pretty well until the meat came, but while I was trying to cut mine it slipped off onto the floor. But I made it all right."

"Oh, I just said, sort of carelessly, 'That's always the way with tough meat.'"

Presence of Mind. Mrs. Smithson had a terrible temper, and her husband was much in awe of her. One day, in his own den, he was discoursing to a few friends concerning some of her peculiarities.

"I have thought for some time," he said, "that my wife was utterly devoid of taste, but the other day she put on a new dress in which she out-Heroded Herod. It was so awful, and as she went out, I leant out of the window to have another look at her and—"

"At this moment his wife entered suddenly. —And the funniest part of the whole thing," went on Smithson, without turning a hair, "was that they found the cow eleven days after on the third platform of the Eiffel tower."

Mrs. Smithson never understood what there was in this silly statement to make them all laugh so much.

Her Endorsement. A lady entered a bank in Syracuse, says the Herald, of that city, and handed a cheque to the paying teller.

"Madam," said he, gently, "you have forgotten to endorse it." "Endorse it?" she repeated, with a little worried smile.

"Yes; you must write your name on the back to show that you will repay the bank in case the issuer of the cheque should fail to answer our call."

"Oh!" she said, accepting the pen. "When the teller looked at the cheque again this is what he said: 'The bank has always paid up what it owes, and you need have no worry. Therefore I endorse this cheque. Very truly yours, Mrs. J. B. Blank.'"

Compulsory Arbitration. (Exchange). Compulsory arbitration in New Zealand is undergoing a severe trial. It worked well while it helped to raise wages. Now, however, it is resulting in some reductions. The workmen whose pay is cut refuse to work. The law, therefore, prescribes a fine, failing the payment of which imprisonment is called for. A man being imprisoned because he refuses to work at a lower figure than he thinks fair is precisely a slave.

Woman a Lighthouse Keeper. Most people, says London Woman, are unaware that there is a woman in charge of the Leasowe Lighthouse, which stands on the Cheshire side of the entrance to the Mersey—a most important light-house, commanding as it does the entrance to the port of Liverpool. Mrs. Williams, who is the lighthouse keeper, is assisted in her duties by her daughter.

On a Liner. (Translated from Transatlantic Tales from "Stimplicissimus.") "Does not the motion of the ship make you sick?" "Yes, Miss Bond."

HOW TO BRUSH THE TEETH.

There's a Right Way to Do It, and Here It Is.

In the first place, says Tooth's Companion, the brush should not be too hard and the bristles should not be too close together. The surface of the brush should be serrated or uneven, with longer and shorter bristles, so that the projecting ridges may penetrate between the teeth. It is better to have the brush slightly concave, to fit the arch of the teeth, but in that case one must have a second one for brushing the backs of the teeth.

The teeth should never be scrubbed by moving the brush from side to side across them, as soap-powder does, for it is that that pushes the gums back and tears them. This motion, especially when the brush is a stiff one and a gritty powder is used, may also injure the enamel of the teeth. The brush should be cleaned by rolling the brush in a direction from the gums toward the cutting edge, so that the bristles will not only scrape the surface, but sweep between them. This motion will also clear the edge of the gum over the neck of the tooth, because the bristles will sweep the movements in this direction can be neither so rapid nor so forcible as when they are from side to side, the gums are less liable to be irritated by the bristles.

The backs of the teeth are to be brushed in the same way, but the bristles should be cleaned by a to-and-fro as well as a lateral rubbing.

Lament for the teeth, and some good dentifrice should be used once a day.

The Power of the Black Vote.

The recent Republican State convention in Kentucky refused to endorse Taft for the candidacy in 1908, although most of the Republican papers in that State favor him, and a majority of the white Republicans of the State are believed to prefer him to any other person for the candidacy, except Roosevelt. It is said, however, that negroes threatened to cut the State ticket in the election of 1907 if the convention endorsed Taft for 1908, and that this was the reason why it refused to declare any preference for anybody, although it recommended the selection of somebody in accord with Roosevelt's politics.

The negro hostility to Taft is his connection with the order to disband the black troops for political reasons. In ordinary canvasses the negroes hold the balance in many States which are usually Republican—New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and others. Kentucky, which has been a close State recently, has 75,000 negro voters, and Kentucky is one of the southern States in which the negro who wants to vote is allowed to vote. While the Kentucky Republican convention was refusing to endorse Taft, his rival, Senator Foraker, was delivering the annual commencement address at Wilberforce University, in Ohio, the leading negro college in the middle West, and he was condemning the stand taken by Roosevelt and Taft in the Brownsville matter. It is said that the negroes are organizing in Ohio to fight Taft in the primaries in that State, and to defeat, if they can, his endorsement for President there. Possibly Brownsville will figure in the election of 1908.—From Leslie's Weekly.

As to the Spinal Cord. A young teacher whose efforts to inculcate elementary anatomy had been unusually discouraging, at last asked in despair: "Well, I wonder if any boy here can tell me what the spinal cord really is?" She was met by a row of blank and irresponsive faces, till finally one small voice piped up in a great excitement: "The spinal cord it what runs through you. Your head sits on one end and your feet on the other."

LEARN DRESS-MAKING BY MAIL.

In your spare time at home, or Take a Personal Course at School.

To enable all to learn we teach on cash or installment plan. We also have a personal class at school once a month. Class commencing last Tuesday of each month. These lessons teach how to cut, fit and put together any garment from the plainest shirt waist suit, to the most elaborate dress. The whole family can learn from one course. We have taught over seven thousand dress-making, and guarantee to give five hundred dollars to any one that cannot learn between the age of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dress-making as thorough as this course teaches if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations as we employ no one outside the school. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada, and excelling by none in any other country. Write at once for particulars, as we have out our rate one-third for a short time. Address—

How Charles Son Got His Name. Charles Son, proprietor of the Lyceum Theatre Cafe, was Charles de Capus when he landed in this country from Italy several years ago. When he came to New York to make his home in America he went to work at his trade as stonecutter. Employed with him were many other Italians, many of them with names difficult to pronounce and even more difficult to remember. For that reason the employers made a practice of having the Italians all numbered, and they were paid off each week by number instead of by name. After that Son, or De Capus, worked at other places and he was again merely a number. It was getting to him to be short of all individuality and go by a number the same as a convict. He decided that he would change his name.

One day he was walking along Broadway and noticed a great number of men having such names as Taylor & Son, Gray & Son and others in which Son figured. He decided that Son must be one of the prominent families in New York, and as the name was simple and easy to remember he decided to adopt it. From that day he has been known as Charles Son.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GOOD BECAUSE IT DOES GOOD. The common ailments, while few, are liable to arise at any time. The best kept horses, and those receiving the least care, are alike liable to the ordinary troubles as sprains, ringbone, splint, curb, lameness, cuts and bruises.

It is well for horse owners that these diseases all yield to the same treatment, and can all be cured completely with the same remedy. This dependable remedy—which is very inexpensive—is Kendall's Spavin Cure. Even the most stubborn cases, which veterinaries have failed to relieve, yield to Kendall's Spavin Cure.

In the thirty years in which this reliable remedy has been used by farmers, stockmen, liverymen and in private and racing stables, it has given complete satisfaction.

Certainly, those who own horses are not consulting their own best interests if they do not keep a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the barn.

Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., makers of this famous preparation, publish a book entitled "A Treatise on the Horse and His Diseases," which is invaluable to those who want to keep their horses well and sound. A copy may be obtained at most dealers or will be sent free by addressing the above company at Enosburg Falls, Vermont, U. S. A.

CONUNDRUMS. What should a clergyman preach about? About a quarter of an hour. How do you define a ring? As a hole with a rim around it. Why is the letter D like a hoop of gold? Because we can't be wed without it.

Why is the root of the tongue like a dejected man? Because it's down in the mouth. Why is the wick of a candle like the city of Athens? Because it is in the middle of Greece.

Why are there three objections to taking a glass of brandy? Because there are three scruples to a dram. Which has the longer life of it, coffee or tea? Undoubtedly, for while coffee can settle down tea is compelled to draw.

Why is a dog biting his own tail like a good manager? Because he makes both ends meet. Why are bald-headed men in danger of dying? Because death loves a shining mark.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia. Give me the patience that it needful is; Give me contentment that from patience lives; Give me the victory that Thy power hath won; Give me the rest that is for work well done.

Give me the trust that never greater can be the position of a sinful man; Give me the wisdom that Thy power creates; Give me the riches that Thy Wisdom makes.

Give me the love that is each man's blessing; Give me the help that overcomes all sinning; Give me the death that is the one that can make me like Thee, who art both God and man.

Knowing that when I lose, I needs must win; Give me repentance for each separate sin. Give me the manhood that at least will be Likeness and image of the God in Thee. CHOCOLATE IS DEAR.

People Will Find This Out When Buying Candy at Christmas.

Cocoa, which has been advancing in price since April, says the New York World, was marked up two to three cents a pound in the last week by various manufacturers, and is to be further advanced, it is predicted. Prices of cocoa, chocolate, and chocolate confections are now said to be higher than for 25 years. This reason given by the manufacturers is that the bean costs them more than ever before and double what it did a year ago.

Thus far the retail prices have not been generally put up, but dealers say that users of cocoa and chocolate will soon have to pay considerably more. It is estimated about $9,000,000 more than last year. The public will feel this, it is said, in the coming holiday season, when the demand for bon bons is greatest.

Some authorities say that the dear cocoa has been brought about by a combination of New York and European dealers cornering the market. A large importer said it is due chiefly to the increase in consumption, amounting to one hundred per cent. in five years.

St. Isidore, P.Q., Aug. 18, 1904. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen, I have frequently used MINARD'S LINIMENT and also prescribe it for my patients always with the most gratifying results, and I consider it the best all-around Liniment extant.

Yours truly, DR. JOS. AUG. SIBROIS.

SOME RECENT INVENTIONS. A pinless clothes line is composed of a number of long wire links designed to stretch from post to post, the ends of each link being interlocked in such a manner as to hold the ends of fabric which may be thrust into them.

A metal flagpole, consisting of a number of tapered tubular sections, one fitting into the other, with means for securing the ends.

A new fire stopper has a central aperture with movable crescent-shaped members on either side of the said aperture. As these sections are drawn together the amount of air passing through the flue is regulated at any desired point.

The roller towel in the office or workshop soon becomes very much soiled, and in a place where there is any attention given to the proprieties the towel must be changed several times a day. This care is rarely given to the matter, and the result is that a dirty towel is exposed most of the time. An invention has been recently brought out on which a clean surface is presented to each corner. It is an automatic roller containing many yards of towelling, which hangs in much the same manner as the towel on the ordinary roller, but as the clean portion is drawn down within the reach of the user a similar portion of the soiled part is drawn up behind the second roller.

The office telephone directory is constantly becoming lost or mislaid, and must be hunted up just at the moment when one is in a hurry. A new invention provides for a clip which holds the book at some point near the telephone where it can be readily consulted and always be found. It is also supplied with a device for holding the book open at any desired point.

A new last for the shoemaker's use has a metal heel for the purpose of clinching the nails driven into the heels of shoes.

For the cure of baldness a large hood of metal has been devised to fit over the head and a pump exhausts the air and subjects the scalp to an action similar to tanning. Means are also provided to treat the scalp to the electric current at the same time.

ENGLISH SPAVIN LINIMENT. Removes all hard, soft and calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs, splints, ringbone, swellings, sprains, sores and swollen throat, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful Blemish Cure ever known. Sold by druggists.

Sunday Labor. (Acton Free Press). The movement for Sabbath rest is gaining in popular support. Mass of all classes are in it; there are no denominational or sectional lines; there are no party boundaries. The appeal is made to all employers of labor to give their men the day of rest which belongs to them. In this the highest interests of both parties are involved. The man who rests on the Sabbath is a better man for the remainder of the week. Workmen are better in every way, day at home and in the shop, if they have a day of rest. It is more than a man's higher nature, and without it there is a steady and unceasing lowering of the moral standard.

HOW TO LIVE LONG. Rules for attaining an active old age by adopting a rational scheme of living are given by General Booth.

"The possibility of prolonging one's life by living rationally is far greater than most people suppose," he said. "Anyone with normal health by making an effort can live if not a full century at least much longer than they otherwise would. I agree with the Harley street physician who said that a man was as old as his organs. I totally disagree with another correspondent in the 'Daily Mail' that life beyond fifty is not worth while."

"Take myself. Had I died at fifty half my life's work would have been left undone. People call me old, but I deny it. I sometimes say I am seventy-nine years young. At any rate, I don't feel old, and I expect to live a great many years yet."

"After my motor tour I am going to tour Canada and the United States, and then I am going to hurry back to attend a convention in Berlin. What is the secret of my vitality. I will tell you later on. First, let me say I dislike the conventional notion of associating old age with helplessness. When a man gets to be sixty or seventy he thinks he must quit work and sit in a chimney-corner or go out in the garden to play with the children. He thinks he is old just because his family regard him as such."

"I deplore this idea. I believe every old person who is not physically disabled should be profitably employed. For my part, if I live to be 150 I shall keep on working to my dying day."

A Medical Test of Sobriety. Accused of being drunk on his own premises, a Wigton licensed victualler called Dr. Blacklock to give evidence before the Cumberland Justices in his defence. The doctor said that immediately after the police visited the house defendant called at his surgery and asked to be tested for sobriety. In his presence the man walked perfectly along a straight line, stood upon one leg for three-quarters of a minute, repeated the word "hippopotamus" quickly and distinctly and told the time by a watch to a quarter of a minute. The magistrate dismissed the case.—London Globe.
