Railway Men's Big Loan.

In the transfer securities ledger, under the heading Mackenzie, Mann & Co., date Dec. 1, 1902, appeared an item, "To loan, $125,000." The Mackenzie firm at that time held $185,000 in stock. There was another item dated Dec. 26—"By cash, $127,580.05."

"That was the repayment of the bean," explained Mr. Junkin.

Referring to another entry of Jan. 8 1903, indicating a loan of $125,195.55, to Mackenzie & Mann, Mr. Junkin explained that this was on the same security as the old loan and for about the same amount. The securities were 200 bonds of Inverness Railway stock, at $500 each par value, aggregating $100,000; also 4,000 shares of Manufac-$100,000; also 4,000 shares of Manufac-turers' Life stock, par value about $80, 000. The loan was paid off in Decem-ber, 1902, possibly on the understand-ing that a new loan would be made to Mackenzie & Mann in 1904. To the best of his recollection that was the case. He did not recollect what bank Mackenzie & Mann's cheque paying the loan was on.

The books also tended to show that on March 3, 1904, the Manufacturers' Life advanced a private loan of $11,000 to William Mackenzie, on the security of Inverness bonds. Later, this loan was transferred to the account of Mackenzie, Mann & Co., Limited, on the rearrangement of securities. The entire loan was paid off in three payments during the year 1904.

Mr. Tilley then read the agreement for transfer of Manufacturers' Life stock from Gooderham to Cox. This agreement had been made on Dec. 1, 1898. Charley Cox purchased from Gooderham 3,106 shares of capital stock of Manufacturers' Life and 250 shares of guarantee fund of the Temperance and General Life Co. For the first lot he paid $140,000, and for the second $132,000. Cox at that time had held 2,732 shares of capital stock, and 550 shares of Temperance and General. The agreement stipulated further that the sum of $36,000 would be paid on execution, and the balance in semi-annual payments extending over a period of four years with interest at 4 per cent. per annum.

Letters under date of May 30, 1904, written by Junkin to Mackenzie and Mann, were read by Mr. Tilley.

Correspondence relating to the loan to Mackenzie and Mann for 1905 was again produced, and Junkin gave evidence as to the dates of certain memos.

transfers which marked the history of the company during the period of the amalgamation of the Manufacturers' Life and the Temperance & General Life Insurance Co., was the subject of special inquiry before the Insurance Commission yesterday morning.

The control of the two companies, the Manufacturers' Life and the Temperance & General, passed from the hands of Mr. Geo. Gooderham to those of Hon. Geo. W. Cox, thence to those of C. J. "Yes." Unauthorized Security.
Mr. Tilley then took up a loan of $11,000, dated April, 1903, given to Wm. Mackenzie, through Pellatt and Pellatt, for which Manufacturers' Life were given 30 bonds of inverness Railway and Coal Co. with par value of $15,000 and market value of $11,000 or 73 1-2.

"This was unauthorized security, of course?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"Did you know this was not exactly aght under the act?"
"It was probably technically wrong under the act."

"You would not put through a loan on unauthorized securities with anyone but a director, would you?"

"Yes, anything as good as Mr. Mackenzie and the margin of the security as large as it is there, it might be put through."

One Other Instance. "Did you loan money to anyone else in this way?"

"Yes. A small loan to F. Sanderson, the actuary of the Canada Life."

"Any more?"

"No one else."
"If the three men who negotiated this loan of $11,000, Mackenzie, Mann and Pellatt, had not been on the board would the company have gave them money on such security?"

"I don't think so, but I think, at that time, anyone of good substantial financial standing might put through a deal like this, but they wouldn't do it now." (Laughter.)

The accounts of the Crow's Nest Co. and Dominion Coal Co. were next ex-plained by the witness. The evidence given when the Manufacturers' Life was the subject of enquiry in Ottawa was practically dupli-cated when the matter of the Pruden-tial Securities Co., the holding company formed by the fourteen directors of the Manufacturers' Life for the purpose of holding the unauthorized investments of the company company of the company came up.

A Colored Resolution.

"The minute which approves of the sale of 1,800 shares Dominion Coal at 1261-2 and 202, Crow's Nest at 3001-4 to Mackenzie and Mann, the witness admitted was a colored resolution. He considered that it was simply a nominal sale, and not done intentionally to make a good appearance."

"There was a loss on the stock a the end of 1902, was there not?"

"Yes."
"Did the directors consider them-selves responsible?"
"It was not discussed then."
"When did the department call your attention to this sort of business?"
"In 1913"

"In 1903."
"It had been subject of discussion a meeting of the board of director at a meeting of the board of directors re investing in securities like C. P. R., Crow's Nest, etc., was it not?"

take the profits."

The operation of December, 1903, was described by the witnes.

Secrecy to Avoid Odium.

"At the time of the buying of stocks," said Mr. Junkin, "we went into the game with the sole idea of making money. So when stocks went down, at the end of the year the directors realized their position, and to save the adium which would result if it were generally known that the directors' stock dabbling had proven a failure, the deals did not appear in the annual financial statement. As far as he was aware no one had been asked to reaware no one had been asked to releve the company of the stocks.

"If any single one of the directors had made the slightest objection the deal would not have gone through," said Mr. Junkim.

"Was this manipulation brought before the directors?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"No."

"Then the directors did not get a chance to object?" "The duties of the various committees of the Manufacturers' Life were being explained by the witness when the comnission adjourned.
