BARON MUNCHAUSEN.

He Turns Up Again as Alive and as Chipper as Ever.

A native newspaper published at Bitlis, in Asiatic Turkey, narrates the following remarkable story: Three Mussulman travelers were lately journeying to Poulank. On arriving at a spot called Ahlat on the Lake of Van one of them approached the water and began his ablutions. As he was dipping his feet into the lake he uttered a scream. His legs had been seized in the jaw of a marine monster, which was dragging him into the water.

His companions ran to his assistance, and, taking him by the hands, they succeeded in bringing him ashore; but what was their surprise when they saw the monster also emerge from the water, firmly attached by the teeth to the calf of his leg. Knives, sticks and every thing else that was brought to bear upon the monster proved unavailing, and at last the ingenious travelers bethought themselves of a heroic measure. They lighted a good fire, and on it the jaw of the colstante animal holding the man's leg was placed, the companions of the victim, who was yelling with pain all the while, standing near to watch the result.

The heat apparently roused the animal e craning their necks for a sight of the icians. Just then the fire-bells over

The heat apparently roused the animal from its torpor; it began to move its body, and suddenly flew into the air, still holding the man by the leg. After flying up to a height of about forty yards it directed its course toward the lake, in which it plunged with a mightly splash, burying its victim in the depths of the water.

How Two Men Fought for a Lady and Neither Got Her.

Melancholy Adventure Which Befell a Couple of Selfish Passengers.

Railvay pigs do not always secure happiness for themselves by making their fellow passengers comfortable, writes a Boston correspondent. A friend of your correspondent chanced to witness a melancholy adventure which befell two of the breed on anoburban train the other day. Pig No. 1 was enjastifiably occupying two seats will of her people were compelled to stand reast of skiling room. To keep the second power of skiling room its way into town and pig No. 2 entered the car with a slam. Pig No. 1 was a selfish pig, whereas pig No. 2 was an aggressive pig. Both varieties are only too familiar. Now ensued a tragedy in one act. Pig No. 2 made his way along the aisle until he came to the bench occupied by pig No. 1 for the accommodation of himself and his paper bag. Then he paused and glared. Doubtless if he had asked pig No. 1 to remove the offending parcel and make room for him, pig No. 1 www been peaceful and lovely. Pig No. 2, however, did not choose to make any such politic request. He simply spread his coat-tails and sat down upon the paper bag with the pounderous emphasis of about 180 pounds avoirdupois. Squash! Pigs Nos. 1 and 2 leaped to their teet simultaneously. On the countenance of the former was an expression of pardonable anger, on that of the latter were written emotions of horror and alarm. At the same time the passengers near by observed that pig No. 2 was literally covered as to his rear with a fluid of chrome yellow tint, which trickied down the legs of his trousers to the floor. The the legs of his trousers to the floor. The eat he had so suddenly vacated was a pudile of the same,
"Sir!" exclaimed pig No. 1, wrathfully,

Where do worthless men and women come from the Lose of the worthless homes. This is probably the best direct answer that can be given to this comprehensive query, says the Pittsburgh Commercial-Gazette.

Badly-reared children develop into worthless men and women. This is the rule. The exceptions either way are not numerous. Occasionally you find a boy or girl in a respectable family whose instincts are low and whose tastes are inclined to be vicious. These are the "black sheep." They are not uncommon even in the best of families. Is there any necessity for these being black when all the others are white! In some instances there is, because some children are born with a very low order of intelligence.

The greater number of wicked and immoral men and women are such because of defective training rather than because of inherent copyavity. They have not had the BEAUTIFIER USE HANDS CMPERIOR PALINOS SULPRIS

How Two Men Fought for a Lady and Neither Got Her.

Something like fifty years ago two young men, one a lawyer and the other a doctor, loved the same girl in the town of Grand Gulf, Miss., says the San Francisco Chronicle. Both could not have her, and neither could live without her. It was to be a duel to the death. There was no insult to be avenged by a discharge of fire-arms, no stain on a reputation to be wiped out by a few drops of blood. The lawyer said it was to be a duel a Poutrance. The arrangements for a massacre were complete. The principals were armed with rifles, revolvers and bowie-knives. They had more confidence in the continuation of their hate than in the accuracy of their aim. The rifles were to be discharged first at twenty paces. If neither combatant was killed they were to advance, fring their revolvers at will, and if they still lived the battle was to be continued with the knives.

It was early morning when the party of four men, principals and seconds, left the little town of Grand Gulf and sought a grove a few miles distant. No effort at reconciliation was made; no time was lost in the preliminaries. The men were placed, the word given to fire, and the rifles eched the signal. The lawyer stumbled forward and fell, blood streaming from his mouth. He was unconscious when his second raised him, and it was found that the bullet had entered one cheek, torn away a section of the jaw, and had made its exit through the other side of the face.
