Some Dealers Think
They Have a Monopoly Of Buying Furniture.

Let them think so, it does nobody any harm, and it pleases them. But for fear the public might be led away by their extravagant utterances, we humbly rise to remark, that we have been and are still buying from almost every manufacturer in this broad Dominion—and further, we are content to sell at a much smaller profit than most people ask. We would like the opportunity of showing you our Furniture, and would like you to compare, and we think we can convince you that what we say is true.

JOHN NEWSON.

TEAS!

Did you ever consider the advantage of buying your TEAS from us? It will pay you, as we can give better values than up-town stores. Why?

Because

Our buying facilities are unequalled, our expenses are less, and we give you the advantage of this in quality. Our reputation for Good Teas is now established, and we guard it jealously. We are to-day the acknowledged leaders in the Tea Trade.

Make Weak Hearts Strong,
Make Shaky Nerves Firm.

They are a Sure Cure for Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Loss of Energy, Brain Fog, After Effects of La Grippe, Palpitation of the Heart, Anemia, General Debility and all troubles arising from a run down system. They regulate the heart's action and invigorate the nerves. This is what they have done for others! They will do the same for you.

GREAT RELIEF.
I have taken Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for palpitation of the heart and shattered nerves, and for both troubles have found great relief.—Mrs. W. Acker, Ingersoll, Ont.

FEELS SPLENDID NOW.
Before taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I was all run down, could not sleep at night and was terribly troubled with my heart. Since taking them I feel splendid. I sleep well at night and my heart does not trouble me at all. They have done me a world of good.—Jan. D. McLeod, Hartsville, P.E.I.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The girl who sits in the parlor and sings "Who will care for mother now?" while her mother is doing the family washing, will prove a great disappointment to some poor man.

A Terrible Cough

Mrs. Thos. Carter, North port, Ont. says: (I caught a severe cold which settled on my throat and lungs and my friends thought it would send me to my grave, when other remedies failed, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup completely cured me.

He.—But couldn't you learn to love me, Ida?
She.—I don't think I could, George.

He (spitefully, reaching for his hat).—It is as I feared. You are too old to learn.

If a child eats ravenously, grins the teeth at night and picks its nose, you may almost be certain it has worms and should administer without delay Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup, this remedy contains its own cathartic.

"Do you pull teeth without pain?" asked the sufferer.

"Well, not always," answered the truthful dentist. "About six weeks ago I sprained my wrist while pulling a tooth, and it pains me yet occasionally."

A Druggist Opinion.

Mr. W. J. Stinson, Austin, Man., writes: Our customers speak so highly of Milburn's Stealing Headache Powders that it is a pleasure to recommend them to others. They never disappoint but always cure." Price 10c. and 25c.

"What would you do if you had a voice like mine?"

"Have it operated on."

"Have it operated on, Why? I have you to understand that I made my fortune through my voice."

"Yes, I heard you proposed to your wife with it."

Hagyard's Yellow Ointment can be applied externally for rheumatism, stiff joints, chapped hands, chilblains, sprains, etc. It can be taken internally for croup, quinsy, bronchitis pains in the stomach, kidney complaint, etc. Price 25c.

Gentleman (who has saved a lady from drowning).—She opens her eyes! She lives! Can you speak, Miss?

"Yes, I have you a looking glass about you?"

Minard's Liniment cures Burns, etc.

Doctor.—No better, eh? Well, you must not worry or get nervous, you know. Four years ago I had the same complaint as yours, and you see I am perfectly well now.

Patient.—Yes, but you didn't have the same doctor?

Minard's Liniment cures Distemper.

"Great guns!" exclaimed the absent-minded man. "I just stuck the lighted end of this cigar in my mouth."

"How fortunate you were in discovering it at once, dear!" rejoined his wife.

Jottings From Rome.

(N. Y. Freeman's Journal.)

Rome, Sept. 20.—For one whole day Rome was in a state of terror. A general strike of cabmen, street car conductors and operators, bakers and butchers. Even the newspaper presses suspended their work. Ten thousand Italian soldiers in the streets of Rome ready for the hour of trouble. But it passed over. All over Italy the workers stood still for that one day, facing defiantly the Italian soldiery and (except in some few instances) then quietly resumed their work at bench and table and tram depot and pressroom.

They had demonstrated that they could not unanimously and to the great discomfort of the public. They had done so as a protest against the government's action in sending troops to shoot down strikers in other parts of Italy. Having given quite a scare and a warning as to what they might do at some future time if provoked, they are satisfied.

Meanwhile in the midst of the excitement of the strike a ceremony of importance to Americans took place in the Church of St. Ambrose, near the once great Benedictine convent.

It was the consecration of the new Archbishop and Delegate Apostolic to the Philippines, Most Rev. Ambrose Agius, O. S. B. The church was filled with friends and relatives, with Benedictines, with Americans, as well as with representatives of every Roman congregation, though all had to walk there on account of the strike.

Cardinal Merry del Val, the Secretary of State to His Holiness, performed the ceremony, assisted by Most Rev. Archbishop Caspelle and Archbishop Stoner, Bishop-elect Giles of Philadelphia was present. Abbots Krugg, Vagioli, Ciaramella, Polisari, and Sircuzzi of Benedictine Congregations in Roman solemnity to the scene. S. did distinguished representatives of the Capuchins, Carmelites, Dominicans, servites, Christian Brothers and other religious bodies.

The relatives of the new Archbishop occupied special seats, the families of Agius and Nolla (his sister's husband) and Mascat making a noble group of distinguished looking men and women—his mother, Mrs. Agius, at their head.

Next day all these relatives of Archbishop Agius were given a special audience by the Holy Father, and later a very special audience by the Archbishop himself.

Archbishop Agius expects to be in the United States in October on his way to Manila with his secretary, Father Lopez, also a Benedictine. Both speak English as well as several other languages.

The Bishop of Lvallo is here living with the Trappist Fathers. There is some ugly talk back and forth between him and the editor of La Matin, but pay no attention to it. Whatever Mgr. Gay may have said or not said formerly, he has done the right thing now in his humble submission to the Pope.

Another ceremony of importance, recently was the Christening of the heir to the throne of Italy. His father had the good taste not to style him "Prince of Rome," as the Pope's enemies would have liked him to do. He is "Prince of Piedmont" instead, and in homage to the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin "Maria" is occupationally a part of his name.

With the beautiful fall weather now the pilgrims will pour into Rome once after another in almost continuous procession to cheer the heart of the Holy Father and draw from the tomb of St. Peter renewed strength for the church militant.

Thousands from France, from Spain, from Belgium, from half a dozen different sections of Italy poured into Rome during the first week of September. Other thousands from Ireland, England, Switzerland, Hungary, Germany and Austria have sent word of their coming so that from now till the end of the year you may picture to yourself streams of people in procession with bands and banners and joyful as well as reverent attitudes, converging on Rome from all points of the compass, their hands outstretched and eyes strained toward one small figure in white—the great high priest—the representative of the Lord of our race, Jesus Christ—the one man of universal interest to all the world.

The Holy Father's speech to the French pilgrims on Sept. 8 deserves publication in full. It is a sample of sweet dignity and love with which the Holy Father receives his children, and makes one think of the days we read of in the country about Jerusalem when the people flocked around our divine Lord to be taught and fed and comforted, to feast their eyes on His adorable countenance and their ears with the magic of His gentle voice.

The thousands who come to the feet of Pius X., leave their hearts there. But here is his address to the French pilgrims as fatherly as mortal man ever uttered, full of authority as it is of peace and good will:

"Welcome, beloved ones, who come for the thirty-fourth time to venerate the tombs of the Apostles, and to bring comfort by your presence to the successor of St. Peter."

"We thank you, M. signore, for having placed yourself at the head of the pilgrimage, and for having expressed to us in so noble terms the sentiments which animate the Catholics of France."

"We cannot tell you, dear pilgrims, how acceptable to Us is the homage of your fidelity and devotion. This fidelity and devotion you manifest not by words only, but, by acts; even at the price of heavy sacrifice, you take count of the recommendations of Our venerated predecessor, who wished to see every year at the Vatican the representatives of working-class France."

"We are pleased that you put into practice in Christian popular action the teachings of the Holy Apostolic See, which are those of the Gospel of Our Lord Jesus Christ. Our satisfaction increases further, inasmuch as you take for the base of all your works the holy fear of God, the observation of His Divine Law, the practice of Christian virtues, and the frequentation of the Sacraments. Be assured, beloved ones, that if the Lord build not the house, in vain those labor who put stone on stone to erect it; if the Lord keep not the city, in vain the soldiers watch to defend it from the threats of the enemy; and all work is fruitless without the blessing of God."

"Descendants of those sons of France who were faithful to the Church, devoted without reserve to the Chair of Peter, ever ready to defend and propagate the true and the good, be not degenerate heirs. Notwithstanding the difficulties and sacrifices which to-day, above all, you must face, be ever generous in the certainty that in that manner you work not only for your own happiness, but for the prosperity of your country."

"History, in truth, proves it: the epochs at which France attained the splendor of glory, in which she poured upon her children, with the joys so pure of peace, the advantages of the most solid prosperity, have been those in which she listened to the salutary counsels of the Church. In the shadow of that banner which led her to victory she merited the glorious title of Eldest Daughter of the Church, and exercised throughout the entire world the benefits of her influence. The Church was always happy to applaud lovingly this glory. Is it necessary to repeat it, beloved sons?—this love of the Holy See for your country, despite everything, is always living in Our hearts; and were it necessary We would accept suffering to assure the well-being and greatness of your country."

"Taught by the lessons of the past, enlightened as to the dangers of the present, inspiring yourselves, above all, by the precepts of your Faith, hold yourselves always most closely attached to the Church and the Holy See, sure of thus arriving at true prosperity. It is by that means you will bring down on yourselves and your country the blessings of Heaven, and will hasten the coming of days less sad and agitated."

"In this hope, and as pledge of our affection, we accord with all our heart to your venerable Bishops, your clergy, yourselves, your families, your works, and to all France, the Apostolic Benediction."

Items of Interest.

The commission appointed several months ago by Pius X., to supervise the preparation of the Vatican edition of the Gregorian chant have concluded their sittings at Appuldurcombe Abbey, Wroxall, Isle of Wight.

Dr. Schorr, the distinguished Professor of church history in the Catholic Theological Faculty of the University of Bonn, has been elected rector magnificus of the university for the scholastic year 1904-05.

Writing to the London "Catholic Times," Dudley Baxter, B. A., expresses the hope that some day the friars, both Franciscan and Dominican, will be enabled to resume their original mendicant state and preach in the open air to that appalling multitude who never go inside a church. It seems deplorable, he remarks, that this apostolic method of evangelization should be utilized by Protestants alone, e. g., the Church or Salvation Armies, among a people turning towards the True Gospel.

Very Rev. Father Miller, assistant-general of the Order of Oblates of Mary, has been appointed Bishop of Johannesburg. Father Miller is a native of Dublin, an enthusiastic advocate of temperance and a priest who was never lukewarm in the cause of faith and fatherland. In his new diocese he will have as his neighbor in the adjoining diocese the Right Rev. Bishop Gaughren, O. M. I., who succeeded his brother in the Bishopric of the Orange River.

In London, on the 8th of September, Captain and Mrs. Bartle Teeling celebrated their silver jubilee. His Holiness Pope Pius X., sent them a special blessing on the occasion in recognition of Mrs. Teeling's services to Catholic literature during a quarter of a century. Their marriage on the 8th of September, 1879, was the first celebrated since the "Reformation" in the historic Church of Saint Ethelreda, which was built in the year 1297, and is the only church in London at present in the possession of Catholics which dates from pre-Reformation times.

Amateurs are now ransacking the second-hand book shops of the Paris Latin Quarter in the hope of coming across a little book written by M. Combes, now Premier, some forty-four years ago, and having the title, "The Psychology of St. Thomas Aquinas." This book, which for many years could be found in the 14. box of rubbish, now finds ready purchasers at 25 francs. It is a masterly exposition and defense of the Philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas and of the role of the Church in the progress and civilization of the world. The admirers of the "Tu quoque" movement are now very fond of quoting the M. Combes of 1860, professor of logic, against the M. Combes of 1904, Prime Minister.

According to recently published statistics there are 6,560 Catholics in Morocco. For these there are seven churches and fifteen chapels, and for the children, twenty-one elementary schools. In Tangier there is a higher school for boys and a college for girls taught by nuns of the Third Order of St. Francis. The mission is under the spiritual care of Spanish Franciscans—twenty-seven priests, thirty-one lay brothers and seventeen nuns. Besides their purely spiritual work and the ministry of teaching, the Franciscans are engaged in the study of languages and the natural history of Morocco. They have published many works which have deserved and received the praise of the learned. The Spanish officials value the Franciscan religious as their most helpful auxiliaries, always amongst the people, by whom they are esteemed.

Under the heading, "A Popular Bishop," the London "Catholic Times" tells of the exceptionally heavy reception accorded to Bishop Mangan, of Kerry, after his recent consecration. Not even, perhaps, in Ireland were ecclesiastical dignitaries so near to the hearts of the people has there ever been on such an occasion a more enthusiastic popular demonstration than that which the Bishop was greeted. No less than thirty addresses were presented. They were tendered by representative bodies of every kind in the diocese—by clergy and teacher, local councils and Chambers of Commerce, the United Irish League, the Gaelic League, the National Foresters, and so on. The secret of his Lordship's great popularity is his manliness of character, which has prompted him to do battle for oppressed tenantry and to help forward every good cause no matter how great the opposition to it.

Mgr. Pelaco, Bishop of Troyes, considers that the consequences of separation between Church and State in France would be "ruinous both for the Church of France and for the country itself, which does not demand it." In the opinion of Mgr. Dubillard, Bishop of Quimper and of Leon, the consequences of the separation will be "a complete loss of faith by a certain number of souls who still hesitate, while that faith will be decidedly fortified in many others. We shall," he says, "be less numerous, but stronger."
