Decisive Defeat of Greek Army.

Greeks Claim Complete Victory -- Insurgent Irish Become More Aggressive -- Nationals Will Have to Take Stern Repressive Measures.

GREEKS DEFEATED.

PARIS, Sept. 3. The Ankara Government Mission today made public an Official communiqué issued last Thursday by the Ankara Government, stating that after five days of fighting the Greek army had been completely defeated and cut in two. The southern group, the communiqué stated, was annihilated and left only a scattered debris among the hills and mountains. The southern group is continuing to retreat. A large amount of material had been captured by the Turks.

out-look. During the attack, street lights were extinguished and the streets swept by searchlights.

REPUBLICAN ACTIVITY REVIVED.

BELFAST, Sept. 2. Activity of the Republicans has revived in South Donegal, where they destroyed Edrim Bridge, between Donegal and Mount Charles, cut the Telegraph wires, blocked the roads with trees, raided the stores of Alan Dunkilly, and ambushed an armoured car near Brucklish, wounding the driver.

MACROON ATTACKED.

CORK, Sept. 2. It is officially announced that three hundred irregulars, with ten machine-guns, two armoured cars and a trench mortar, attacked Macroon from five o'clock Saturday morning until noon, when they were repulsed in disorder. The Nationals lost two men killed, and two wounded.

A SHOCKING DEATH.

BUFFALO, Sept. 2. An automobile rolled over the cliff just below the cataract at Niagara Falls today and was dashed to pieces two hundred feet below on the river's margin. Mrs. Agatha Miller plunged to death with the car.

KILLED WHILE DRILLING.

BELFAST, Sept. 2. While the National army soldiers were drilling in front of the City Club in Cork yesterday morning, says a despatch, a lorry load of Republican irregulars drove up the opposite side

Mother And Her Daughter Are Restored.

"After taking my third bottle of Tanico I just seemed to be a new woman altogether," is the unqualified statement made, recently, by Mrs. Jennie Gallant, of Lewis St., Montreal, New Brunswick.

"Yes, sir, I can say from experience that Tanico is a grand medicine—just ask my daughter here. She was all run-down and sick enough to be in bed, and one bottle put her right on her feet. And, as for me, I was so worn-out that it took me an hour in the mornings to get on my feet. My legs just would not hold me up and from my knees down were just like lead."

"I had an awful bad stomach and couldn't eat much of anything and would lie awake for hours every night suffering with indigestion and nervousness. Why, if I ate a piece of bread, even, I would almost cough over with pain. I lost all my energy and was just miserable all the time. I was always taking medicines but kept getting worse until I got Tanico. I got benefit from the first few doses and had not taken more than two bottles until I was working around the house. It fixed me up so I can eat anything, sleep good at night, and get some enjoyment out of life. It is just wonderful."

The First English Glassmakers.

Before September 4, 1567, all the glass used in England for windows and various glass utensils, was imported from Lorraine and the Low Countries; but in the above year, Cecil, with Queen Elizabeth's full approval, granted a license for twenty-one years, to two Dutchmen, giving them power to erect furnace houses, etc., and manufacture glass. John Care—the senior partner—appears to have sent two deputies over to England, and they decided to erect glass factories in Sussex. Among the State papers and correspondence of the time we find a letter to Cecil, complaining bitterly that others were allowed the same privileges as the first patentees. John Care wrote: "I have erected two glass factories at Ternefel and one in London, also have I brought over workmen at my own great cost, and to the benefit of this Kingdom, yet I hear that another is likely to have the privilege of making glass which will ruin me, and moreover prevent me from paying you and H. M. what I owe you." For the two Dutchmen had agreed to pay duty on every case of glass that they produced, and also to take so many English apprentices every year in order that they might learn the trade. When Elizabeth heard of this letter she prohibited both the manufacture of glass by any other person, and also the importation of it into England. Some years later the people began to grumble at the monopoly held by the foreigners, and a Bill was drafted, prohibiting any glass worker from carrying on the trade unless he employed one Englishman to every two foreigners, but this Bill was never passed. The art of glassmaking became familiar to many Englishmen, and a year after the patent granted to Anthony Been and John Care had expired, there were fifteen glass factories in the southern counties.

Oldest Symbol in World.

The swastika is the oldest symbol in the world. Also it is the oldest mystery. One finds it engraved on primitive tools dug up in the mounds of Ohio, Tennessee and Mississippi, and a year after the patent granted to Anthony Been and John Care had expired, there were fifteen glass factories in the southern counties.

Independent Order of Foresters.

Forty eight years in existence and steadily growing.

(Editorial Staff Correspondence Commercial and Financial World.)

While we have referred at some length in these columns to the various insurance activities of Toronto, especially as regards fire, life and casualty lines, it must not be forgotten that there is quite a volume of fraternal insurance written here as well. As a matter of fact, one of the largest orders of this kind on the American continent has its head office in this city—in its own great office structure, the Temple Building, at Bay and Richmond streets in the heart of the business section.

For the purpose of finding out the present condition of business in the fraternal field the writer called the other day upon Mr. W. H. Hunter, the Supreme Chief Ranger, or President, of the Order. During an informal chat that gentleman stated that last year was quite satisfactory as regards the volume of business written, while the first seven months of 1922 have been even better than the corresponding period of 1921, both as regards the admission of new members and the low mortality rate. From present indications the present year will be one of the best in the long history of the Order and it is confidently expected that 1923 will set a new high record, turn of general business conditions to normal.

The Independent Order of Foresters especially in view of the gradual expansion of the Order since 1914, as Elizabeth, N.J., and in 1921 the head office was removed to Toronto. It now has over 175,000 members, of whom at least 100,000 are to be found in the twenty-six American states in which the Order does business, the balance being scattered throughout every Province of Canada and in some foreign countries. It maintains for the benefit of the orphans of deceased members one large and liberally conducted home and also two tuberculosis sanitariums, and has achieved quite as enviable distinction for its maintenance of its charities as for its unquestioned financial strength.

Its management is especially strong and conservative. President Hunter has occupied that position since 1917, prior to which he had been for many years head of the legal department of the Order. Mr. Hunter is widely known among the insurance fraternity and legal profession in his Dominion and he has the support and co-operation of a very strong board of directors and official staff.

The Independent Order of Foresters, as it proudly boasts, is 101.4 per cent sound. That is to say, its ratio of assets to liabilities is 101.4 per cent. It now has over $45,000,000 of accumulated funds, has an investment reserve fund of $600,000 and a sick and accident fund of over $101,000. It today takes first rank among the ninety-three fraternal societies enrolled in the National Fraternal Congress of America and has the largest reserve of any of the orders represented in that influential organization. Last year the I.O.F. paid $3,683,023 in various benefits and for the maintenance of its benevolent work.

The Independent Order of Foresters is to be noted as one of the most beneficent and at the same time rapidly growing insurance institutions in both the Dominion and the States, and it is gratifying to note that at this time, when it is nearing the completion of its first half century of active and successful business life, that its opportunities for future expansion were never brighter and its financial strength was never more pronounced.

(Mr. W. E. Bradbury, of Heart's Content, is the Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger of the Order, and its representative in Newfoundland.)

The Outlook Unpromising.

The weather the past three weeks has been very favorable for fishing with hook and line and on trawls with squid-bait, and nice catches have been made from Cape Race to Cape St. Francis and at Grate's Cove, Bay de Verde. Those who have followed up fishing since trapping was over are doing very well and will have made up fair voyages by the end of October should the weather permit.

The chief topic of discussion now is whether the price of fish will be better than $6.00 and $6.50 in the course of the fall. As conditions look now, it is not likely that there will be any advance in price. In fact it looks as if those who sell earliest will get the best price.

The Boy Grew.

The hungry post took a seat in an inn where the servants were of the "small speed" type. A young boy took the order for a plate of beef and after an hour's lapse of time returned.
