COLUMBUS RUBBER BOOTS

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHO'S TO BE BLAMED?

I heard a woman in a trolley car the other day making some very indignant comments to her companion because an Inn to which she wanted to go was not willing to take her with her three children.

"I don't know what the world is coming to," she said, "when children are discriminated against like that. It's an outrage. I think there ought to be a law against it. I don't see how anyone can feel that way about children."

As I listened, I thought of some tales that a woman who goes every year to some summer Inn had told me in this connection.

Here are some of them.

In one Inn where she was staying, half a dozen guests were sitting in the living room when a child came down the stairs, sat down at the piano and commenced playing scales. "Mother told me to practice," she explained when remonstrated with. And she continued doing it every day until formal remonstrance was made to the manager.

Mother Wanted A Nap.
On another occasion a little girl was running the phonograph, putting on record after record of jazz music while the guests were all gathered around the fire on a rainy afternoon. After awhile someone asked her if her mother knew what she was doing. "Oh yes," she answered, "she told me to stop bothering her and come down here and do this. She wanted to take a nap."

This same woman was disturbed for several nights at a large hotel where she was staying by a baby crying, and asked one of the attendants to whom the child belonged. He told her the name of the mother. "Why, that's queer," she said, "I thought she had rooms in the other wing of the hotel. I was sure I had seen her coming from there." "That's right, ma'am," said the attendant. "That's where she and her husband have their rooms. It's just the nurse and the baby that are down this end. She has the baby here so it won't disturb her husband. He's a very light sleeper."

The Infant Terrible.

Still another case in my own experience was that of an infant terrible of five years old who grabbed away people's books, rushed up behind and startled elderly ladies, slipped into people's rooms and examined the contents of their bureau drawers, knocked the balls out of place when grown ups were trying to play croquet, and otherwise endeavored himself to a household of guests while his parents and grandparents looked on blandly and refused to try to control or discipline him. The climax came when he crawled along the fire escape into a lady's room and turned the key in her bathroom door locking her in (in her tubling costume, by the way) for several hours. The host at that Inn does not take children any longer unless he knows just what kind of children they are.

The Innocent Always Suffer.

Hard on the other children? Yes, but the penalties which the people who abuse privileges break down on people who would be considerate are always hard on the innocent. It's not because all children are ill mannered and undisciplined and make life uncomfortable that the Inn keeper charges high for children or refuses to have them. It's because some parents do not do their duty. And isn't it they that the lady should have been cross at rather than the Inn keepers who are afraid to take children?

Last Government Controlled Wool Disposed Of

On April 30, the last bale of wool remaining from the British government wool control scheme was sold, and thus ended the government's intervention in the wool market originated in 1916 as a war measure. As reported to the Bankers Trust Company of New York by its English Information Service, in July, 1920, when the government control scheme came to an end, it was found that 2,908,000 bales of wool from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Falkland Islands were left in the hands of the authorities. The task of marketing this large carry-over in a way not to endanger the wool market was skillfully performed by the British-Australian Wool Realization Association. Under the wool control scheme 9,895,000 bales of colonial wool were dealt in at a profit, estimated at par of exchange, of $340,620,000. There was great danger that the residue of 2,908,000 bales in 1920 if thrown on to the market under conditions of unrestricted competition, would have depressed wool prices to uncommercial levels and made wool growing unprofitable. This danger was avoided through the operations of the B.A.W.R.A. To-day, it is stated by those informed regarding the wool industry, that there is an underproduction of wool.

Appropriate Hymns

Mr. A. G. Bradley, the well-known writer tells a couple of good stories concerning his schoolboy days at Marlborough College.

On one occasion (says Mr. Bradley), I remember that the late Dr. W. G. Grace played in a match at Marlborough, and, marvellous to relate, the famous cricketer was bowled out by a schoolboy first ball.

Whereupon the choir at service that evening sang a hymn containing the boastfully significant lines "The scanty triumphs Grace hath won!"

On another occasion two Marlborough bowlers named Wood and Stone played havoc with the wickets of a visiting team from Cheltenham, and the choir celebrated the occasion by singing, "The heathen in his blindness bows down to Wood and Stone!"

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N. Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with nervousness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet forms, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and run a rooming house and do the work. I recommend your medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the house, ready to take when I feel the need of it."—Mrs. ALICE D. DAVIS, 208 W. Second St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Often some slight derangement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, headache, lack of ambition and general weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Len. Sheppard and child, arrived from Toronto, Ont., last week, on a visit to friends, and will be remaining in town for about a month, and will spend a short while in Montreal before returning. Len is a wounded War Vet, having been one of the first to enlist with "Ours," and now holds a good position in Toronto. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard a pleasant stay in the home town.

Use Sunlight Soap and Save Money

A half bar of Sunlight contains 6 ounces of PURE SOAP and will cost you only 7 cents.

A bar of inferior Soap contains no more than 6 ounces of Soap with 2 or 3 ounces of injurious chemicals or adulterants, and costs 9 or 10 cents.

From the foregoing you should realize that Sunlight Soap besides being ALL PURE SOAP is better and cheaper than inferior Soap.

Honest shopkeepers and intelligent women prefer Sunlight Soap which they know to be purest and cheapest in the world.

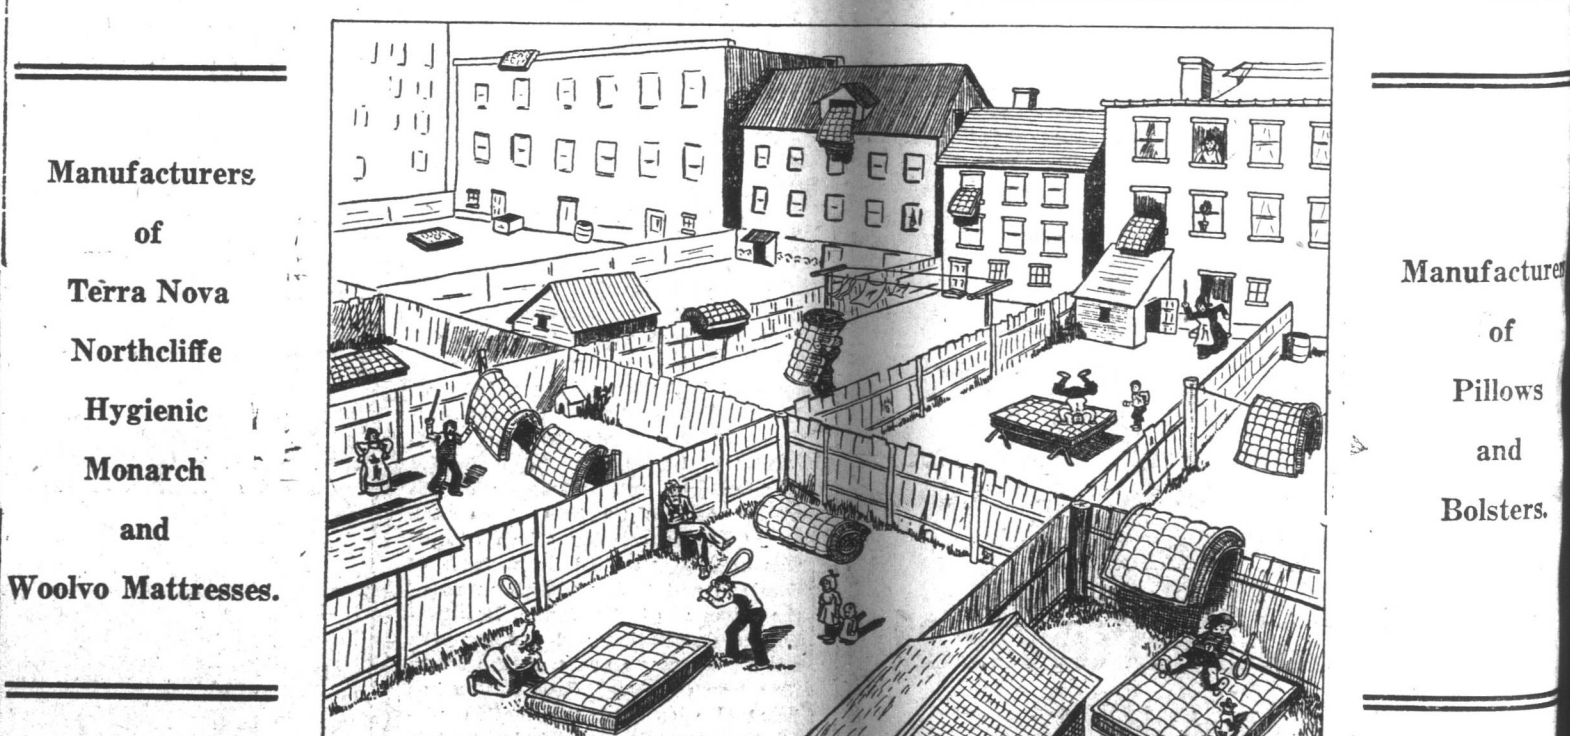

Low grade inferior Soap will damage your clothing and make your hands sore—Clothing is expensive and sore hands are unpleasant.

Sunlight Soap is so pure that it cannot injure even a baby's tender skin. It's almost good enough to eat.

You can buy Sunlight in bars for 14 cents, in half bars for 7 cents and in cakes for 5 cents.

All First Class Stores sell SUNLIGHT SOAP.
