Letters to the Editor.

SOLUTION FOR PAVEMENT PROB LEM. To the Editor of The Advertiser: Here is a suggestion as a solution of the Dundas street payement difficulty: Pave the road from the south curb to south street car track. Then start at the north sidewalk, put in a curb, pave the road for an equal distance with the south side of the street, bring the north street car track to the north to a distance equal to that between the south track and the south sidewalk. Then Deer River were new, and Western Tenthe two tracks. This would do four things: Equalize the cost of building all for a long time broken up by a gang of the roadbed needed; beautify the city; reduce the cost of maintenance, and force the street car to observe the speed away. At last the Rev. Arthur Davis, a

In many lawsuits in the court of probate relating to wills during the last few years, it has been shown beyond all doubt that anxious and suspicious relations have so arranged matters that testators, desperately ill, have been attended by nurse-detectives, whose mission it has been to see whether their charges were of sound "testamentary disposition," and to ascertain, if possible, in what direction any money left in a new will would be likely to go. In one case the judge commented very severely on this matter, for the nurse-detective in this case had actually in the emergency of the moment been made one of the witnesses of the will in dispute.

In another case a nurse-detective had tried to extract admissions from a person periously ill. He was not the sort of man to resent his identification with any character in liction, good or bad. The only persons he would have poured slops upon would have been those who failed to recognize him. It is told of him that he was once riding on a railroad near his home, when a dapper youth entered the car and attempted to crowd into a seat beside him. He refused to move and make room, disliking the young man's manner. The newcomer bridled up and exclaimed:

"See here, sir, do you know who I am? The newcomer bridled up and exclaimed:

Family Struggle in the Water, the Son Being Lost. Brandon, May 17 .- A sad accident occurred yesterday afternoon in which Gilbert Posthelwaite, 9 years of age, was drowned. William Posthelwaite. with his wife and son, were driving into town, when nearing First street bridge the horse got into a washout and before help came the three were in deep water, over their heads, and being carried away by the swife current of the river. Mr. Posthelwaite told the boy to hold on to the buggy while he tried to save his wife. she had succeeded in getting hold of the top of a maple tree Mr. Posthelston, who claims Guelph as his home had disappeared beneath the water. waite went to rescue the boy, but he and who was locked up last Friday The father clung to another maple. night for drunkenness, claiming at the lime that "knock-out" drops had been who were passing, rescued the couple was done for their comfort.

The boy's body has not been found.

Chemists at one time believed that petroleum was formed in the depths of the earth by the action of water working on metallic carbons in a state of fusion. Now that statement is challenged by some geologists, who contend that petroleum is the result of putrefaction ed in enormous cataclysms, similar to that of Mont Pelee. This upheaval, says Professor Engler, buried millions of prehistoric quadrupeds, lizards, serpents and sea monsters, and during all the cycles of years that have elapsed since then the bodies of these animals have been distilled by Mother Nature in her immense laboratory beneath the earth's surface. The result of this distillation, acording to his theory, is petroleum. A MILITANT PARSON. When the settlements on the Forked make a grass strip of the space between nessee was still Chickasaw country, all young outlaws, who drove the ministers

In many cases persons recovering from the effects of the anaesthetic in question are semi-hysterical and readily yield to the effects of suggestion, as in the case of hypnotized persons.

It was shown that the mere babblings of the patient in question had formed the basis of after-inquiry, and that the nurse's notes of the semi-incoherent things said by the patient were actually suggesting a part of the cross-examination, though the barrister did not know this, and was only following the instruc-
