A Head Dress of Pearls.

With the increased simplicity of the new coiffure all sorts of elaborate head dresses are allowable—when they are becoming—and usually on condition that they are so arranged that they cling closely to the modern dainty imperi their pose. This is a dainty affair worn at the Metropolitan Opera by a fashionable box-holder. It was built of gold mesh, incrusting with pearls, a bunch of aigrettes flaring up front in Oriental fashion.

Mother's Clubs

The regular monthly meeting of St. George's Mothers' Club was held in the school-room on Tuesday evening, when Mr. Thompson, Inspector of public schools for Middlesex, gave a very interesting and instructive address. Mr. Thompson spoke on "The Instincts and the Part They Play on the Development of a Child." He divided the instincts into classes and sub-classes, and showed the important part each plays in the development of a boy or girl, both at home and in the school-room. Speaking of self-will and of tempered children, Mr. Thompson said that the parents should see that the child gains nothing by these outbursts, and that all irritating conditions should be removed in order that such tendencies might be checked.

Mr. Thompson does not believe in the doctrine that a boy should not fight. Boys and girls should be leaders as well as followers, and a boy must learn to fight his own battles in order that he may retain his self-respect and that manliness may be brought out.

At the close of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Thompson.

VICTORIA SCHOOL.
An interesting debate between the Mothers' Club, of Chesley Avenue, and the club of Victoria School, was held in the kindergarten of the latter institution on Tuesday evening. The subject: "Resolved that the country is a better place than the city for child life." The debate was thoroughly discussed, the visiting club taking the affirmative, and winning by a close mark. Mrs. McCrae, of Chesley Avenue Club led in the discussion for her side, and ably showed how the country proved better than the city in sustaining physical, mental and moral life. She was supported by Mrs. Hyatt and Miss Andrews.

The negative side also put up some good arguments in favor of city life, pointing out that the advantages of education, and so on, were vastly superior to the country. Those taking part for Victoria School were, Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. McKim, and Mrs. McDonald.
Mr. Gibbs, of the Chesley Avenue School, Mr. Ferguson, assistant principal at Victoria School, and Miss Benton, supervisor of kindergartens, were the judges. Musical numbers rendered during the evening by Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Palmer, were highly appreciated. At the close of the debate, the Victoria School Club served refreshments.

FISH DISHES FOR LENT

[BY CAROLINE COE.]

Turbot.

Any dry fish may be used, but those having much oil or color to flesh do not make as pleasing looking dishes. Halibut or whitefish are the nicest. Steam three pounds of fish until tender. Remove bones, skin and flake the fish. Sprinkle with a little salt and white pepper. Make a sauce of three cups of milk, six tablespoons of flour blended with five tablespoons of butter. Put milk in double boiler. Add flour and butter. Stir to avoid lumps. Let cook 20 minutes. When slightly cool add two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoon of minced onion and one teaspoon of minced parsley. Put layer of fish, then layer of sauce in baking pan until all is set. Sprinkle top with crumbs and dots of butter and bake until brown.

Crabmeat Cakes.

Boil and flake two cups of crabmeat. Make a thick white sauce using one cup of milk and two tablespoons of flour blended with two even tablespoons of butter. When smooth, put into milk. Turn into double boiler and cook 20 minutes. Add one-half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of parsley, dash of nutmeg and one-half teaspoon of minced onion. Cayenne if desired. Turn in the cooked crabmeat and stir all together. Allow to cool a little. Make this mixture into little heaps or balls and allow to stand an hour in cold place.

When ready to serve, form into cutlet shape. Dip in beaten egg and then fine bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat. Drain and serve with slices of lemon or hot tartar sauce.

Salmon in Molds.

Remove bones, oil and skin from fish in one can of salmon. Mince fine with fork and rub into the fish three tablespoons of melted butter until smooth. Beat three eggs until light and foamy. Add to them one-half cup of fine bread crumbs. Season fish to taste with salt and pepper. Add one teaspoon of egg and crumbs. Put in well buttered molds and steam one hour.

Hot Tartar Sauce.

Put one-half cup of thick white sauce and one-half cup of mayonnaise dressing, one-half teaspoon of minced chives and one teaspoon of lemon juice. Put into double boiler to heat, not boil. Stir into this one-half teaspoon each of cucumber pickle, olives, parsley and capers, all minced fine. Serve at once piping hot.

Sauce for Salmon.

Thicken one cup of milk with one tablespoon of flour blended with one tablespoon of butter. Put all in double boiler and cook 15 minutes. Stir often to prevent lumps. Add to this the liquor and oil from one can of salmon. Salt to taste and a dash of cayenne. Just before serving add one teaspoon of catsup. Make from stove and stir in one well beaten raw egg. Serve at once.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

Why Indeed.

Dear Miss Grey: I get so much good from the answers to other people's questions, why should I not bother you with some of my own?

1. I have a large, brown silk motor veil that has become soiled with use, also got mud bespattered which left stains. How can I clean it? If with gasoline, how shall I use it, and will it rot the silk as I have been told?

2. Can you tell me if I can buy the "Dipping Chocolate" for home-made candies; is there a recipe for it or is it a trade secret? I have very good success with melted chocolate, but would like to procure real dipping chocolate if I could. Please tell "Irish Molly" (more power to her elbow) that the only dose I know of that will make those "pesteriferous" little green rose lice "hump themselves" is "Canada green" tobacco, covered with water for 24 hours and the strong black water well sprayed on the bushes. One of your readers asked for the song "Chickadee," it is a childish little song, but brings back memories of the long-dead mother who sang it to me in her high, sweet voice over 30 years ago. I am happy to be able to send it.

THE IRISHMAN'S WIFE.

Ans.—1. I should advise you to use the gasoline. No, I do not think this will rot the veil. Simply wash it as you would in water, only do not use soap. Hang in the air to dry.

2. I do not know if dipping chocolate is purchasable or not. Does any reader, fond of making home-made candies, know?

Thanks indeed for the helpful note about destroying rose lice, and thanks also for the copy of "Chickadee." As you will have noticed, this has been published.

A Lamp That Smokes.

Dear Miss Grey: It is a wonder you don't get tired answering these troublesome queries day after day. This is the first time that I have trouble, so you will be pleased if you will help me.

1. What can I do with a lamp that smokes when burning all night? Every morning the glass is jet black. I always turn it down so it don't burn too high and the burner is real new, too.

3. Have you a recipe for orange cake, one that doesn't take too many eggs?

4. I would like very much to get the songs "Pull for the Shore, Sailor."

Thanking you in advance.

WORRIED MOTHER.

Ans.—Although the burner is new it must be clogged somewhere to cause the blackening of the glass. Try putting it into enough cold water to cover well, add a little salt soda and bring to a boil. Remove from the fire, and when the water has cooled wipe the burner thoroughly and see if it does not give better satisfaction.

3. Two-thirds cup butter, 1/2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup water, 2 eggs beaten separately, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 orange, juice and rind grated. Use orange filling made by thickening three tablespoons orange juice with icing sugar.

4. Perhaps someone interested in the old song column will furnish this.

ANSWER FOR JANE.

A. You were naughty, dear child, and wrote on both sides of the paper, so I am not publishing your letter, but just the answer. I presume you desire something that does not require freezing. A Macedonian jelly would be nice to serve! Put two ounces of clear gelatin in three pints of cold water and place on the stove, where it will heat gradually and dissolve. Add to the hot gelatin, strained and cooled to two lemons and sugar to taste; cool a little of the jelly in a mold; have ready bits of pineapple (canned is best), some candied cherries cut in half, and small pieces of orange; place layer of fruit on the jelly, then add a little of the fresh warm jelly; harden again, and add a second layer of fruit and jelly, filling the mold. This should be prepared the day before your lunch; serve with whipped cream, and I feel sure your guests will be delighted with it.

2. A tango tea is simply an afternoon tea at which music is provided and the guests (mostly girls) dance the tango. Sometimes an orchestra is engaged to supply the music.

3. I am so glad you brought your question to me, and I do not by any means think you foolish. As I read about your troubles, I could not but think about that grand, noble woman, Helen Keller, and the obstacles she has overcome. Perhaps it was your good fortune to see her and to hear her speak this winter. If you are not familiar with her story, do ask at the public library for some of her books. I feel sure they will help you to take a more cheery mental view of life.

Of course, I think that most people are happy. Why shouldn't they be? We all have our troubles, as in your case, but it's a pretty glad old world after all. One generally finds that the unhappy folks are those who continually think about themselves, their ailments, real or fancied, and who are on the lookout for slights from the people they meet.

Of course, in your case I realize that the burden is not a fancied one, and I sympathize with you very deeply. Do you not think that you could be fitted with glasses that would prevent the feeling you speak of? I feel sure that a great deal results from nervousness, and proper spectacles would help you to overcome this.

Do write me again, if it helps any, and tell me how you progress.

He Is a Widower.

Dear Miss Grey: I have taken such a delight in reading your helpful column, I come to you myself for some of your kind advice. I am a young girl of 16. About a year ago, while on a visit to some friends in a city some distance from my home town, I met a young man of twenty-two. This young man was very courteous to me and asked permission to correspond with me. I gave him my address and he wrote me very often.

Now, I have now been corresponding with him about a year, but the fact he is a widower has caused a great deal of criticism among my girl friends. I know I am a young girl to be corresponding with a gentleman friend, but I do not want to give him up just for "talk's sake" if I am not doing wrong in writing to him. I do not keep company with any young gentlemen and the young man is the only one to whom I write. Would you advise me to give him up?

Ans.—No, indeed, do not cease writing because of what your girl friends say, as long as your mother approves of the correspondence it is all right. So keep on writing, Jacqueline.

Songs We Used to Whistle and Sing

Mrs. L. T. sends words of "People Will Talk," asked for some time ago by "Ruth," and desires to know if anyone is familiar with the words of "Who Will Care for Mother Now?" and

"It's goin' down to Dixie, Where they tell me I will find Money hangin' round like apples on the tree."

People Will Talk.
[Old Favorite.]
You may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow
If you listen all that is said as you go;
You'll be worried and fretted, and kept in a stew,
For meddlesome tongues must have something to say.

And people will talk.
If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed
That your humble position is only assumed,
You're a wimp in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool;
But don't get excited—keep perfectly cool.

For people will talk.
And then if you show the least boldness
Of heart,
Or a slight inclination to take your own part,
They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain.

But keep straight ahead—don't stop to explain—
For people will talk.

If threadbare your dress and old-fashioned—
Your hat—
Someone will surely take notice of that,
And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way;

But don't get excited, whatever they say—
For people will talk.

If your dress is in fashion, don't think to escape,
For they criticize then in a different shape—
You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's made;
But mind your own business, there's naught to be made—
For people will talk.

Now the best way to do is to do as you please,
For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease.
Of course, you will meet with all sorts of abuse;
But don't think to stop them—it's not any use—
For people will talk.

INTERESTING PAPER ON "EARLY COMPOSERS" AT MUSICAL RECITAL

Woman's Music Club Listens to Most Enjoyable Program—Mr. Mitchell-tree Plays.

A most interesting and instructive feature of the program rendered at the Women's Musical Club recital yesterday afternoon was a paper on Early Composers, prepared and read by Mr. F. Killmaster, organist of St. Paul's Cathedral. In an interesting way, Mr. Killmaster traced the history of music since earliest times. Much in connection with church music was due to Pope Gregory, who lived during the sixth century. The Agnus Dei and Gloria in Excelsis, and many of the chants sung in the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches today were set to music by Pope Gregory.

Musical Renaissance.
After his time musical knowledge was but little increased until the 11th century, when interest was again revived, and in 1350 a musical renaissance took place in England, France and Germany; Italy for a time being but a follower.

A German composer came to Venice from Bruges, and introduced the madrigal, which was to become so popular. In 1530, however, the Italian composer, Palestrina, established a new style of music, uniting old Gregorian modes, and also introducing new counterpoint and harmony. This might be said to be the golden age of ecclesiastical music.

Oratorios were introduced about the 16th century by Bach and Handel, and later, in the next century, the first opera came into existence in Paris. The Protestant Reformation had a great effect upon church music. Martin Luther advocated congregational singing, which had been almost done away with, and translated a number of hymns and songs from Latin into English.

Many of the English sovereigns, Henry VIII., and Henry VIII., and Elizabeth, particularly, had encouraged the musicians of their time. It was owing to Edward VI. that the Book of Common Prayer was set to music for use in the Anglican Church.

Mr. Killmaster interspersed his address with several early airs and an Ave Marie, and a pleasant feature was the singing by members of St. Paul's Choir of a motet, "Laudate nomen Domini," composed in 1511 by Christopher Tye. "Cherry Ripe," an old English ballad, was also sung by Master Robert Shaw, who possesses a peculiarly sweet soprano voice.

Mr. Thomas Mitchell rendered two numbers by Mozart—Fantasia in D minor, and a Rondo in C major. Anyone familiar with Mr. Mitchell's mastery of the piano will realize the beauty of expression and harmony with which he rendered his selections, and also his encore, "The Rose," a tender bit of his own composition.

Mrs. A. C. Paterson rendered Handel's "O Lord Correct Me" most beautifully, and Miss Florence Eggleston also delighted her hearers with her violin solo, "Air for G String," by J. S. Bach.

The program was arranged by Miss K. Moore and Miss M. Raymond, and was certainly one of the most enjoyable ever rendered before the Music Club. There was a large attendance.

THE HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1914.

Neptune and Mars Give hint of wars.

An unfortunate day. Astrologers find that Mars and Neptune both are in evil aspect.

Soldiers of every rank, who are believed to be ruled by Mars, should be on their guard while this configuration prevails. There is an especially evil sign for naval officers and marines. The seers prophesy warlike activities, which will involve diplomacy, because of loss of life outside the limits of battle.

Steel-workers, foundrymen, smelters and all who are engaged in handling metals are believed to be subject to extraordinary dangers when Mars is adverse.

There is a warning against those who use sharp instruments. It is not an auspicious time for submitting to a surgical operation or for going to the dentist.

It is a time to guard against fraud and deception. The influences are believed to enable schemers of all sorts to be more convincing than in ordinary circumstances.

Investments are subject to a malignant rule of the stars today. Wise men and women will not buy what promises gain until the astral figure changes. New friendships or business partnerships should not be made while Neptune is adverse, for the evil vibrations are said to produce confusion and poor judgment.

Women are warned against indulging a desire for luxuries, for the sway of the stars is likely to intensify the emotions and produce extravagant impulses.

There is a strong probability of turmoil and unrest in London during April. It is predicted that Great Britain and Ireland will face a severe crisis. Debates embarrassing to the Premier and the Chancellor of the Exchequer are probable in Parliament.

Startling discussions of the marriage problem are foretold for this country. A movement to change the laws is a probability, which will produce scandal and criticism.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the prognostication of a quiet year. They may have many small worries, and they should beware of new ventures.

Children born on this day have the omen of a smooth and uneventful career, but the hour of birth may change this prediction.

GOLFINES USED FOR COATS.

That excellent understudy of corduroy, golfine, is evidently going to take the world by storm. Perhaps much of its success is due to the remarkably soft colorings which have been developed in this new cotton material. Chamoms, the new and brilliant "egg yellow," rose emerald, and tomato are all deftly brought out here. For this reason coats of golfine have already made a deep indent upon spring fashion. One of the newest of these coats shows a deep yolk from which extend long and ingeniously strapped sleeves. The coat is hip length and terminates at the sides in places pointed both up and downward. These places are connected in the back by a strap which is repeated in the front by an extension of one pointed piece but tapers over to the other. Such coats will undoubtedly be very popular for the spring and summer.
