

CHICAGO POLICE START DRIVE TO ELIMINATE VICE

Officers Placed at Doors of Buildings Believed To Be Frequented.

SPENDING MILLIONS

(Practically Entire Force at Work Following Drastic Orders of Chief.

Special to The Advertiser.
Chicago, March 6.—A uniformed policeman was stationed at the front and rear of every vice den and gambling place in Chicago today.

Fifty per cent of the city's total police appropriation of $13,000,000 will be spent in the crusade.

As a result of drastic orders by Chief of Police Fitzmaurice, efforts of practically the entire city's police organization will be devoted to stamping out vice.

The action was taken when a third grand jury investigation was ordered into vice conditions in Chicago by Chief Justice McKinley of the criminal court. Two previous juries had failed after exhaustive investigations to find any connection between organized vice and the city police department. Fitzmaurice told friends he believed the vice investigators were on a man hunt—and he is the man.

The chief was previously opposed to allowing his force to spend most of its time in hunting gamblers and immoral resorts. He believed the officers should give most of their efforts to protecting residential districts and hunting major criminals.

After running the department for two years and a half along this line, Fitzmaurice told friends he was ready to let the "Reformers and moralists" have their way.

Enters Lion's Den To Assist Sister

Boy Goes Into Cage With Trainer To Secure £50.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 6.—The happiest, proudest boy in London today is 15-year-old Alfred Garcia, the son of an omnibus conductor.

Alfred recently was offered £50 if he would enter a cage of circus lions with the trainer. For two days the boy considered the offer, his thoughts constantly turning to the 13-year-old crippled sister, who would be benefited immeasurably by the operation the money would make possible.

"Lions or no lions, I'll do it," he decided, and engaged a first-rate surgeon. Then he "trilled" his part of the bargain. The surgeon, however, learned of the circumstances, and insisted upon giving his services free of charge, whereupon Alfred promptly turned over the £50 to his sister.

INSULIN TREATMENT FOR DIABETES HERE

Hospital Trust To Consider It at Next Meeting—Cost Only Question.

SUGGEST DONATION

James Gray Says Arrangement Must Be Made To Put Banting Remedy Into Effect.

Measures providing for insulin treatment of diabetes that will add long years of comparative health to those suffering from the disease, will be put in motion at a meeting of the hospital trust next week.

Following a recommendation from Dr. Roy Kingswood, the board is expected to arrange methods for procuring the necessary funds to pay for the highly expensive process of insulin inoculation. Dr. Kingswood presented his report at the last meeting of the hospital trust, and will be taken for founding a permanent course of treatment before the end of the month.

Laboratory work involved in the process of procuring insulin is extremely costly, and will have to be carried on at Toronto. The problem which the hospital trust will be called upon to solve is how to obtain the money to pay for treatment of public patients. James Gray, chairman of the board, asked for his opinion, declared the hospital trust could not possibly refuse to endorse the proposals made by members of the medical profession, but did not offer any suggestion in connection with the procedure to be used for getting the money.

Beef Juices Used.
Originally Dr. Banting procured the precious rejuvenating liquid called insulin from the pancreas of dogs. Since his discovery was broadcasted over the continent the pancreas juice of beef have been substituted to a large extent. Thus the expense is greatly decreased, but is still of such proportions as to be virtually prohibitive for patients of small means. Until insulin can be manufactured on a large scale the cost is expected to remain stationary.

Of course we cannot help but approve Dr. Banting's system of treatment at Victoria Hospital," Mr. Gray said, "but the problem will be how to pay the costs of insulin infusions. Private citizens will have to supply the money themselves. We cannot, however, make a discrimination against ward patients, and how the expense is to be defrayed is a question the trust will have to decide."

Endowment Suggested.
"Could not you persuade some wealthy man who had been benefited by the treatment to make an endowment for the purpose of helping diabetes who cannot afford the cost?" The advertiser suggested.

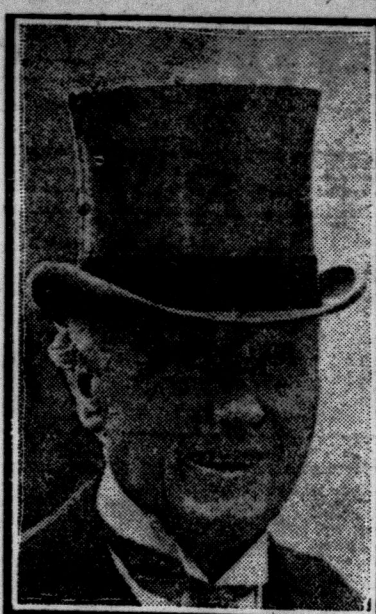

"That would be an admirable plan if it could be worked out," Mr. Gray said. "The difficulty is to find the man. As things stand now we will have to make some arrangement by which all suffering from the disease can be treated regardless of rank or financial rating."

There are at present no less than a dozen men in the hospital in various stages of the disease. Consequently, local doctors declare, the sooner a specific form of insulin injection is decided on, the better are the chances of diabetes victims enjoying a return to health.

BALLOT MUST DECIDE EAST LONDON SCHOOL

Mayor and Ald. Judd Not at All Disturbed by Silverwood Threat.

ISSUE IS DIRECT

West London Must Get New School First, Says Ald. Judd.

From the attitude of Mayor Wenlock and Ald. Albert Judd, chairman of the finance committee, it would seem that the school trustees will have to take their east London high school proposal to the people for a mandate.

"School Trustee A. E. Silverwood may have his bluff called," announced the chairman. "I am very much afraid that such will happen. When the mayor and I conferred with the school board, I came away with the understanding that there was to be no construction program other than the additions agreed to at the time. I maintain that if any new school is to be built, it must be in London West."

"Quite right," agreed Mayor Wenlock, also referring to the statement credited to Trustee Silverwood that he would "resign if the building program was rejected."

"Trustee Silverwood made it quite plain," commented the mayor, "and if there is to be a school in London West it will be because of sanitary reasons," pursued his words.

"I notice also that the trustees have reduced the estimated cost of their proposed east end high school by $100,000 as the elimination of the so-called 'frills' and then they say that the frills do not cost much."

"We want just plain schools without the frills. It is all right for the school inspectors, the school principals and the educationalists to urge the adoption of their programs. That is their business. They look at it from a different angle."

It is quite possible that the board of education building program will be considered at tonight's informal session of the council.

SAYS CITY LIGHTLY TAXED FOR CHAMBER COMMERCE

Speaking today on the work and usefulness of the Chamber of Commerce, which was questioned at Monday's council meeting, Gordon Philip, secretary of the chamber, said:

"The chamber really has done a good deal for the city, in one way and another, and it seems to me to be poor advertising, to say the least, to give so much publicity to this sort of criticism."

Compared with other cities in the province London is lightly taxed for such work as the Chamber of Commerce can accomplish.

Montreal Colleges Buy Noted Egyptian Museum

Contains Exquisite Alabaster Vases, 3,000 Years Older Than Those in Tutankhamen Tomb.

Special to The Advertiser.
Montreal, March 6.—The noted Garstang collection of Egyptian antiquities, which contains relics more ancient by 3,000 years, than those of the Tutankhamen tomb, has been purchased by the joint board of the Montreal theological colleges, and will arrive in Montreal within the next month. Thus another British treasure will soon cross the Atlantic to become the property, under changed conditions, of the new world.

Exquisite alabaster vases, cleverly sculptured figures of Egyptian royalty, which reigned before the age of the Pharaohs, valuable scarabs and necklets of amethyst, are included in the museum, gathered, while excavating in the valley of the Nile, by Professor John Garstang, chief archaeologist of the University of Liverpool. The museum is now sheltered by the University of Liverpool, and the Montreal purchasers expect news of its shipment to come at any time.

The oldest specimens of the museum are said to have been the products of the people who lived about the year 4,000 B. C. or nearly 6,000 years ago, a time prior to that recorded by actual history. Of that time, there survive pottery vases and bowls, an axe carved in alabaster, shell bracelets and tables.

Of the age, centering around 3,000 B. C., there are even more beautiful souvenirs, consisting of dishes, bowls, vases, and best of all, intricately carved and skillfully wrought hanging boxes of veined alabaster. Later in the epoch of the first Pharaohs, there are long-necked jugs, bowls, vases and red, burnished pottery and stone vessels.
