training and practice. I am not considering the daughters of farmers, but those of mercan-tile and professional men. In England the custom is to train the girls to relieve their mothers of many of the duffee of housekeep-mg. Among families where there are several daughters it is a common practice to have each in turn take charge of the house for a week or a month. I do not assert thats such a plan is never followed here, but at the most ft is done with comparative infrequency. The system of living in boarding-house has in-many instances made it impossible to instruct our out-bred girls in domestio duffer, but happily the increased facilities for suburban travel have placed it within the bower of many heads of families to secure homes of their own.
