

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.

A BRIEF PROSPECTUS FOR 1883-'84.

The programme for the fourteenth year of this Magazine, and the third under the new name, is if anything more interesting and popular than ever. The new volume begins with November, and, when possible, subscriptions should begin with that issue. The following are some of the features of the coming year:—

A New Novel, by George W. Cable; author of "Old Creole Days," etc., entitled "Dr. Sevier," a story of New Orleans life, the time being the eve of the late Civil War. Will run through the year.

Three Stories, by Henry James; author of "Daisy Miller," "The Point of View," etc.

A Novelette, by H. H. Boyesen; author of "Gunnar," etc. A vivid and sparkling story of unusual situations.

A Novelette, by Robert Grant; author of "Confessions of a Frivolous Girl," etc., entitled "An Average Man,"—a story of New York.

The Bread-Winners; one of the most remarkable stories of the day, was begun in the August number, and will be completed in January.

The New Era in American Architecture, a series of papers descriptive of the best work of American architects in Public Buildings, Churches, City and Country Houses, etc. To be profusely illustrated.

Coasting about the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a series of entertaining articles, the result of a CENTURY expedition, written by S. G. W. Benjamin, and illustrated by M. J. Burns.

Scenes from the Novelists, a unique group of papers, descriptive of scenes from Hawthorne's, George Eliot's, and Cable's novels, with authentic drawings by the best artists.

On the Track of Ulysses, the record of a yacht-cruise in the Mediterranean. By W. J. Stillman, late U. S. Consul at Crete. Illustrated by Harry Fenn.

Art and Archaeology, papers on various American and French artists, and on American and European archaeology, by Dr. Charles Waldstein, of Cambridge University, England, Charles Dudley Warner, and others.

The New Astronomy, several untechnical articles, by Professor S. P. Langley, describing, with many illustrations, the most interesting of recent discoveries in the sun and stars.

Papers on Outdoor England, by John Burroughs and others, including a superbly illustrated article on Devonshire, and two on the Thames River.

Papers by Alphonse Daudet. A Series of reminiscences of prominent Frenchmen.

A Young Explorer, a biographical sketch of the late Mr. Frank Hatton; with selections from the diary of young Hatton's travels in Borneo.

Dante, an essay by Christina G. Rossetti, with notes by Miss S. F. Clark, on the exile of Dante, and an illustrated paper on "The Portraits of Dante."

"Life in the Thirteen Colonies," by Edward Eggleston, D.D.

"Garfield in England," extracts from the private journal kept by General Garfield during his trip to Europe in 1867; including his notes of a debate in the House of Commons, a day in Westminster Abbey, etc.

"The Capture of Jefferson Davis," an interesting narrative of personal experience, by Burton N. Harrison, which will be found of decisive historical importance.

"The Silverado Squatters," by Robert Louis Stevenson, author of "The New Arabian Nights," etc.

"Christianity and Wealth," with other essays, by Rev. Washington Gladden, LL.D., author of "The Christian League of Connecticut," etc., on the application of Christian morals to the present phases of modern life.

The Departments. "Topics of the Time," "Open Letters," and "Bric-a-Brac" will be full and interesting as heretofore.
