Gabel Medical Instruments Limited was started two years ago as the medical division with the licensing of the Q.A. Pressure Measurement System from a local hospital. The system is a revolutionary diagnostic tool used to assist therapists in the early detection of pressure and the prevention of pressure sores in people who spend extended periods of time seated or reclining. The company has a 2,000 square foot laboratory for production and research and development using leading edge technology. The firm has engineers and technicians on staff who are available to assist customers with technical questions relating to the system.

The Q.A. Pressure Measurement System is sold to hospitals, home healthcare professionals, and medical dealers who service hospitals. There are corollary applications for the system in mattress and seating design and manufacture. The firm is willing to discuss new applications for the system and to assist in meeting special requirements wherever possible. The firm currently exports to the United States, Britain and parts of Asia, and sales have been both direct, and through distributors. The firm is seeking to expand markets further into Europe and the United States.
