

matters having been made at the time of the discovery, by Dr. Williams, of the fistulae. Patient has hay fever, and was operated upon some years ago by Dr. Holbrook Curtis for its relief. I am inclined to attribute his occasional epiphora partly to the irritation set up by the nasal disease.

essure), a small
limited number

a gentleman aged
oms except some examining him for
minute and faintly
urnished me with age (1876) he was night. His eyes
bles, he noticed
eyes, especially of
innati, who care-
rmal opening into
g out the sacs,
of the eyes, the
ly on driving in

This symptom
e only when the sleep. It is also

evealed a minute hrymal sac. On ft, but is in both
e. A line drawn
oint of the corre-
rough this small
distant from the
at six mm on the probe through a
to either sac. All
s, and I satisfied
of either the nord learn from the m the unnatural
ora. There was
ner or himself of the eyes, shortly
relative to these