The proposed street thru Mount Plea-sant Cemetery as advocated by the suburbanites is on the the west side suburbanites is on the the west side of the Belt line ravine; the one offered by the cemetery board is on the east side of the ravine. The trustees claim that the ravine is a natural division and if the street were on the east side they would retain the bank and slope most desirable portion of their property as a site for vaults and large plots. A street on this side would cut all this out.

According to the cemetery map the suburbanites want to run the street thru at a point 2588 feet (about half a mile) east.
