and the money Tex did not give away, he put into mines. He had gone east to sell out his property and had a deal all but consummated for $500,000 when the panic came.

When it had gone he was broke again, and doing his own assessment work.

But the fates seemed to glory in juggling with him. An unexpected option fell due and saved him from utter ruin, the money coming in during the last few days of grace. Times brightened, the pendulum swung slowly back and Tex Rickard drew a full breath once more. He disposed of $150,090 worth of copper claims, his other interests became of value. Had not Governor Gillette of California heeded the voice of the great minority and banished the Jeffries-Johnson fight to Reno. Tex. would have resped a quarter of a million profit from the contest. His arena was built to hold $700,000 in paid admission, and it now looks as if an army would have clamored outside its closed gates when the gong sent forth its message.

NO MOLLYCODDLES ARE IN RENO FOR FIGHT

The eve of the greatest battle of the century finds this little frontier city packed and jammed by an eager, optimistic, healthy breed of men who, to-morrow, will file out thru the glare and dust to a great unpainted openair arena, there to offer homage to individual excellence. And should Monday prove that their country was in peril and in need of them to safeguard her honor, these same men would go forth willingly, gaily, to do her service, even at the cost of blood. It was men like these and like their less fortunate brothers who will folthe fight story as it comes over the wires, who opened their veins at Shilo or went roaring down to death and glory across the fields of Gettys-These are the men our forefathers bred in the wilderness.
