THE UNTRUTHFUL STANDARD

Having violated the established principle among reputable newspapers that damaging statements should not be made without some basis of fact to sustain them, the St. John Standard, in the matter of the Torrey meetings, brazenly asserts this morning that its sensational article had "the desired effect" of bringing out proof of the complete innocence of Rev. Dr. Torrey, Rev. R. P. McKim, Rev. J. C. B. Ayer, and all the other ministers and prominent business men who were accused of being fools or knaves.

The view of the Standard apparently is that it is quite proper to administer poison, in order to be able to come around a couple of days later and administer an antidote.

The course pursued by the torrey (not Torrey) organ in this affair may be illustrated in this manner:—

Let us suppose that the Times today published a statement to the effect that it was believed in some quarters that the four or five editors of the Standard had come to blows over the policy of the paper, and that while one of them had bitten off the nose of another, the latter had breakfasted on the ear of a third, and the fourth had lost all his teeth in a frontal assault on the fifth. Suppose that the Standard had come to blows over the policy of the paper, and that while one of them had bitten off the nose of another, the latter had breakfasted on the ear of a third, and the fourth had lost all his teeth in a frontal assault on the fifth.

Not content with having made a gross attack upon the ministers and other leading citizens, who are responsible for the evangelistic campaign, the Standard today tells a falsehood about Dr. Torrey, quoting him as having said that "the Times had attempted to interview him on Saturday with the object, he thought, of getting him to severely condemn the action of the Standard." Dr. Torrey flatly denies that he made any such statement about the Times. He says further that the Times accurately reported him in that interview, except that in referring to the Standard story it omitted to say that he had qualified his reference by saying that he had never seen such a story in a "reputable newspaper."

A reputable newspaper, if it heard such rumors and thought it desirable to have them set at rest, so that the usefulness of the evangelistic campaign would not be affected, would go at once to Dr. Torrey and the executive committee and tell them about it. This the Standard failed to do. It has become so accustomed to a political organ to distort facts and make reckless charges and accusations, sometimes supported by affidavits, that it simply cannot be fair in its treatment of a series of religious meetings. Generally, "if you see it in the Standard, it isn't so."

CONCERNING INDUSTRIES

If St. John, in competition with other cities which offer great inducements, is to secure new industries, it must be in a position to offer certain advantages, such as tax exemption for a period of years, and perhaps in some cases free sites. It is even more desirable to encourage the enlargement of existing industries which have proved successful to the extent their present capital permits, and this may be done by offering some exemptions. Of course this relates to non-competitive industries, since it would be manifestly unfair to extend to a firm (in one line of manufacturing privileges not available for another firm in the same line.

The advertising committee of the board of trade has found itself confronted by this problem, and has asked the city council to seek legislation giving it larger powers in this matter of exemptions and free sites. When it asks is not forth in the communication from Secretary Anderson in another part of this paper. The matter was before the city council last winter, and was favorably viewed by the aldermen, but no action was taken. It is desirable that such action be now taken, in order that the matter may go before the legislature at its next session. The committee has had great difficulty in getting accurate information concerning the actual property owned by the city which might be available as factory sites. Apparently there are no complete maps or plans available, although one would expect a progressive city to have them, so that the fullest information could be promptly given to all-comers. The condition of affairs in this instance is another evidence of the need of reform in civic administration. In the meantime, however, that which may be done to encourage the enlargement of present industries and to secure new ones should be done without needless delay.

WORKING FOR ST. JOHN

One group of public spirited citizens has taken up the question of tree planting in St. John and is making substantial progress. Could not another group get together and study the question of town planning, with special reference to the expansion of the city east and west, so that a general plan may be devised and adopted, providing for a symmetrical development that would provide for the needs of the future in the matter of streets, play centres and sanitary arrangements? This is a very important question, and if a group of citizens with a liking for that branch of study would get together, study the situation, gather information by correspondence and observation, and present their findings to the citizens at large it ought to be possible to gain acceptance of a general plan that would be of the greatest possible value. This is a time when every public spirited citizen should look about him and ask where he can best take a hand to good advantage in the work of planning and providing for a better, bigger and busier St. John.

BRITAIN'S DEFENCE

The London correspondent of the Toronto Telegram states that the British government is decidedly stronger than it was on the question of naval defence. We quote: "It appears that the discovery of a new gun which is proposed to mount on the new British Dreadnoughts has given Germany pause. The additions to her Dreadnoughts are after all to be delayed, with the result that instead of Great Britain having 25 Dreadnoughts in April, 1913, as against Germany's 21, we are to have 25, or counting the two colonial Dreadnoughts, 27, to Germany's 22. This, for the moment at all events, has knocked the bottom out of the naval scare. On top of this comes Mr. Haldane's declaration that instead of talking of the small British army, people should talk of the colossal British army, for there was no other country which had an average army approaching ours in number, and all we wanted was a sufficient citizen force to compel an attacking army to come in such size as to be a target for our navy, and if any part of the enemy slipped through and landed, to overwhelm it by vastly superior numbers. These two facts have given much comfort to the country, and they serve also to show that it is not by raising scares, but by propounding really serious questions, that real progress is to be made. The yellow press, of course, is not content, but would raise a new scare. Be- cause shipbuilding can cross the Channel to severely condemn the action of the Standard." Dr. Torrey flatly denies that he made any such statement about the Times. He says further that the Times accurately reported him in that interview, except that in referring to the Standard story it omitted to say that he had qualified his reference by saying that he had never seen such a story in a "reputable newspaper."

The lunatic who wrecked the Boileston railway station is evidently a reader of the Standard. He believes in smashing things first and letting the enquiry take place later.

Before the end of the present week, the winter port season of 1910-11 will have been opened. It is expected that the business of the season will be larger in volume than that of last year.

The new pavement on Germain street will probably be finished this week. The work has been done in a very short time, considering its extent. When the poles have been removed and trees planted next spring, there will be at least one section of model street in St. John.

The Vancouver Province says:—"The immigration officials at the provincial boundary should carefully inspect the bales of hay now being shipped from Quebec to British Columbia for any evidence of the bilingual language germ at present causing so much trouble in the East. Any shipment found to be affected should be promptly deported."

Of forest protection in Ontario the Toronto Globe learns that it is the intention of the Provincial Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, on the advent of the new year to grapple once and for all with the perennial problem of adequate protection from fire for the forests and timbered crown lands of the province. While the official reports show that Ontario has escaped remarkably well from fire, the dangers incurred have resulted in a searching investigation of Ontario's ranging system, by Hon. Frank Cochrane. The minister has not yet made public his plans, but it is safe to assume some of the plans contemplated will be of an original character.

YOUR DAY WILL COME
Just because you've not attained An honored place as yet Because some other one has gained Life's summit, do you fret? And do you sit disconsolate Discouraged, sore and gloom? Take heart, if you will only wait Your day will surely come.

Just plod along, and do your best, Attention you will claim; Some one will choose you from the rest, The world will know your name, Although unnoticed you may be. At present, you will rise, Your courage some one's bound to see, No good work ever dies.

IN THREE VIN
NOT A COLLEGE MAN.
"Your husband seems less clever than formerly."

AN OLD MAID
"Are you satisfied with your new maid?"
"Very. She's too old to get married and too fat to wear my things. So I think I'll be able to keep her."—Detroit Free Press.

EXCUSE
"Shame on you! You came home last night actually tipsy!"
"So I did, my dear. I just couldn't resist the pleasure of seeing two of you at once."

WAITING FOR HIM
"Yes, mum," said Portie Peto, as he twined an autumn leaf through his buttonhole. "I am a great lover of the romantic. I stopped at his gate because I saw de sign 'Juleswood'."

TOO SLOW
Doctor—"You need exercise."
Patient—"Why, I'm working as a riveter."
Doctor—"Working by the day, I expect?"
Patient—"Yes."
Doctor—"Well, you had better work by the piece for a while."

BRAVE MAN!
Silently the burglar proceeded from the pork pie to the burgundy, from the Burgundy to the silver spoons.
But it was a house of antique build, and a board creaked.
"John," whispered a voice in the bedroom above, "I believe that there are burglars in the house."
"Well, I don't!" came the gruff reply.
"Wake up, John, and be a man!" also urged.
"What shall I do?"
"Do," exclaimed his better half. "Why, go and catch them."
"All right, dear," answered John, and began slowly to crawl towards his dressing gown. Then an idea struck him. Seizing one of his slippers, and banging it upon the floor, he shouted:
"Hi, there! I shall be down in a minute!"

QUEER, ISN'T IT?
This life is inconsistent, for you find where'er you go That the ones who work the hardest have the least to show; While the scheming and the bluffing many follow day by day To stem the stream of fortune till the tide is turned their way. Queer, isn't it?

When things don't go to suit you and you feel there's some disgrace, With its odium or trouble that you're sure of, If you go to face, And you wonder how the stinga ever reached your honored name, You can always find some comfort if you place elsewhere the blame. Queer, isn't it?

When luck is plumb against you and you're run down at the heel, And 'twould be such consolation just a friendly clasp to feel, Why do all those who used to listen, heeding every word you'd say, Cross the street there ere they meet you, and pass down the other way? Queer, isn't it?

How plainly shows the mote there that's in your brother's eye, You'll think that he'd remove it; he could if he would try. And you watch so closely day by day to see if it has grown, That you fail to find the beam there that's filling up your own. Queer, isn't it?

Strange what lack of judgment some people always show, Why can't they be consistent and ask of those who know? Now, you'd find them frankly the very thing to do, Then how much better 'twould have been, or so it seems to you. Queer, isn't it?

Granary of the World
A report was recently made to the Turkish government by the engineers who have for a year been planning an irrigation system for Mesopotamia. The engineers propose the building of a series of dams in the Euphrates and Tigris Rivers to control the floods and impound the water for the irrigation of what was once the granary of the ancient world.

They estimate that an expenditure of $10,000,000 would produce so great a result that it would earn an annual profit of nearly 20 per cent. When the country was thickly populated it was irrigated, but in the centuries since then engineering methods have improved so that water can be distributed much more successfully than was possible in ancient times.

Making Bread in Sheets
Women of the Mohi Indians in the deserts of New Mexico make bread in sheets no thicker than a sheet of paper. The corn, of which the bread is made, is ground between two heavy stones until it becomes very fine. Then it is mixed with water and a very thin batter prepared. This batter is spread on a hot stone over the fire, where it is allowed to bake for considerable time. When one side is baked the other is turned. Sheets after sheet is baked in this manner. No salt is used in the batter, and the bread has a sweetish taste. It is usually blue, taking the color of the corn from which it is made.
