It is about six feet in length and one and a half in breadth, and resembles a huge black loaf of Vienna bread with the thick end for a head, or more properly speaking the mouth, for head it has none, its eyes, which are small and black like shoe buttons, being set deep in between its shoulders. Its skin is tough and elastic like India rubber, black, except for the belly, which is as white as a man's hand. It propols itself by means of two flippers and a large broad tail, hard and solid as a board. Its natural food is seawced, but since its captivity it has been fed entirely on bread and crackers which it cats with a relish, sometimes
