MORAL FORCE AND PUBLIC OPINION

Says Samuel Gompers Are Needed to Make Effective Measures for Improved International Labor Conditions.

By Chester M. Wright. (Special Cable to The N. Y. Tribune and The St. John Standard.) Paris, Feb. 11.—Moral force backed by public opinion will be the only force to be used in making effective the measures for improved international labor conditions emanating from the Peace Conference through the machinery to be set up, declared Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today.

This view is evidently shared by the majority of the committee working with him—the committee of labor men representing the Allied countries, and which will make recommendations to the Peace Conference for incorporation in the peace treaty.

Three distinct sets of proposals for international labor regulation were considered by the committee at its meetings yesterday. A permanent machinery was suggested by the British members. This plan was accepted as a basis for discussion. Details of the machinery are not known definitely. The commission will probably recommend to the peace conference the creation of an international body of workmen and employers, which is to hold periodic sessions for discussion of international labor problems and will act in the capacity of conciliator, and as a high tribunal in industrial matters. There is much discussion here over the machinery of such a body can be given effect.

It is moral certain that no force other than moral could be employed. It is possible that some means will be resorted to of keeping the public constantly informed on labor matters and securing the pressure of intelligent public opinion behind the new tribunal. Mr. Gompers is convinced that such a scheme would mark the broad and general realization of the hopes expressed during the war for the improvement of labor conditions and the better life for the working people of the world. Mr. Gompers said that he is convinced that the position of the American labor movement in protesting against the production of wages for American war munitions has had and will have an influence upon the workers wherever they are combating reaction and making for enlightening progress. Our victory in the war must mean for all victory in making life for the working people everywhere freer from German influence and unjust conditions. We must write into the treaty of peace wise and just provisions opening the way everywhere for the realization of the ideal of the working people. We cannot force the living of better lives but we can open the way for opportunities for better lives.

Mr. Gompers and the commission are expected to agree on certain definite points on which it would be desirable to have a universal standard of labor reform and then try to obtain the agreement of each nation to enforce this standard. Under these conditions alone can the desired results be attained like an international agreement between organized workers and organized employers—in effect two international unions producing on a world scale.

KILLED 100; IS NOT SORRY

Col. William A. Bishop, "Ace of Aces," Despises Huns.

(Baltimore Sun.) The man who has killed more than 100 men in the most thrilling form of fighting the world has ever known, Col. William A. Bishop, ace of aces, the man who has made a greater record than any air fighter in the world, gave a splendid audience of Baltimoreans last night at the Lyric a better sense of what fighting in the air means than they ever had before. And he had no compunction about killing Huns.

"I went out at dawn," he said in his narrative, "and it was not long before I saw a Hun. I got up on him before he knew I was in the neighborhood, and I got him at close range."

He spoke of sending a man down from thousands of feet in the air with no more concern than if he had shot a rabbit.

Fought on Last Day. And that's just the way he feels about it. In fact, he feels that an ordinary rabbit is entitled to a great deal more consideration than a Hun. He thinks rabbits are more civilized. He has felt no compunctions about killing them. He evidently gave him pleasure to do it, for on his last day on the French front, he went out and got five, although he has been ordered back to England for administrative duty immediately and had been told to make no more flights. If he had not enjoyed the killing of Huns, he would have obeyed orders, and not risked his life in the air again, and one man against five at that.

War Has Aged Him. And yet, he's little more than a boy, he's only 24, and went to the war directly from school. But in the four years he has been in the thick of the fighting he has seen things that have made him an old man in everything but years. In a few words at the conclusion of his lecture last night he made this very plain.

"I'm no orator," he said, "and cannot make you feel as I feel. But in this war we have learned many things and have gone through many things, but we have learned nothing so well, nothing so startling, as we have learned the real character of the Hun we have been fighting. Now, for Heaven's sake, don't let us forget it!"

Another thing we have learned is that the Hun has not changed. There have been atrocities in Belgium in the last few months as atrocious as anything that happened in the first months of the German occupation. I will tell you some things that have come under my own observation. Just before the armistice was signed a Belgian woman came into the Twenty-first hospital in an almost dying condition. She had given birth to a child eight days before, and since that time she had been outraged five times by German soldiers. The Hun is the same damnable swine he was when he brot this war on us and brought us all into it.

Girls' Throats Out. "Near Mons we found five Belgian girls in a row with their throats cut. They had all been outraged. I saw them. After a German request just before the armistice they went away so rapidly that they did not have time to bury their dead. And when we buried the bodies we found that each girl had a beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, we got this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we use this famous recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with the compound and rub it over the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies who use "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound" is that it beautifies darkening the hair after a few applications. It also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

No Brothers of His. "I cannot see the logic of it or the sense of it, to go out and fight them, and kill them if we can one day and call their brothers the next. They're no brothers of mine, I'll tell you, I've seen too much of them."

We have beaten them in a fair fight, have beaten them because we were united and because we fought under one command and as one organization, all of us standing together. But to they think they have been beaten? Are they not still carrying on their work of propaganda, and endeavoring to create differences between us? Oh, I know they are whining, and squealing like a lot of whipped dogs, but that is all for a purpose.

Can't Trust Them Now. They who know no pity are begging for pity and mercy now. They are still circulating their rumors about the French charging us for the trenches we occupied, and for the graves in which our dead are buried—all damned lies, every one of them. They are as treacherous now as they have ever been and we will be the fools they think we are if we trust them or believe the things they say. We know what the Hun is, and we know that he is as dangerous now, when he is whining for mercy, as he was before and during the war, and if we are to beat him we've got to stand side by side as your sons and our brothers fought and we've got to stand together as those fellows over there did to gether."

He got this out in jerky sentences, jerky because he had to stop until the applause which met almost his every sentence died down sufficiently to enable him to be heard. But what he said reached the spot.

Introduced By General Finney. Colonel Bishop was introduced by Brig-Gen. J. M. T. Finney, who paid tribute to the air forces in general and to Colonel Bishop in particular. Colonel Bishop talked entertainingly, but as a matter of fact did not go into great detail as to his own achievements. He dismissed his own exploits with but little more than passing mention, but he did tell some mighty interesting things about air fighting, and he showed some remarkable photographs of the war front, taken from airplanes, some of the pictures having been taken from the air, about five miles, yet which were directed.

HAVE YOU A HUSBAND

child or friend, who is suffering from eczema, or other skin disease, or an obstinate sore that has defied medical treatment? If so, that is a case for Zam-Buk.

Mr. B. Ellis, of Castleton, Ont., writes: "My husband suffered intensely with a running sore on his foot. The sore penetrated to the bone, and the inflammation was so bad that he could not sleep at night. After spending a lot of money in trying every remedy we heard of, with no result, I read of a cure which Zam-Buk had effected in a similar case, and got a box. Within two hours after the first application the pain was eased; and with perseverance the inflammation was reduced, and before long the sore was entirely healed."

Zam-Buk also cures ulcers, abscesses, eczema, psoriasis, young pimples, cold sores, chapped hands and chilblains.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it falls, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmothers made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and girls who value that ever so color, the beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we use this famous recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. MISSIONARY FINDS "MYSTERY TRIBE" IN WILDS OF CHINA

Rev. Joseph Beech Tells of Strange Polyglot Race That Seems Mixture of Every Human Type.

Fifteen thousand miles from Broadway, in the wilds of Western China, where a white man never before had trod, according to the Rev. Dr. Joseph Beech, a Methodist missionary, lives a polyglot nation of more than 4,000,000 people, of whose race he does not know that there has been a war."

Dr. Beech, who is president of the Western China Union University at Chengtu, in the province of Szechuan, maintained by five evangelical denominations, Canada and the United States, and who recently arrived here to participate in the Methodist centenary, recently told of a journey he took with a native guide last summer far into the depths of the habitat of the "t'uren, or children of the sun," the strangest people in the Orient.

The doctor passed three weeks among the twenty or more tribes in the region about the mountains of Tibet, he said, and while there found almost every type of mankind, including pygmies, men and women resembling the English, American Indians, East Indians, Gurbans, South Sea Islanders, Europeans and other races apparently from all four quarters of the globe. These people, of course, he said, had never been anywhere else than in the country in which he found them, and in a region about the size of New York State, bounded on the north by the province of Kansu, the south by Burmah, Yunnan and Kweichow, the east by Szechuan and the west by Tibet.

In Fertile Country. "I found a land of beautiful valleys, covered with fine farms and homesteads," said the explorer missionary, "while towering above them were mountains from 6,000 to 18,000 feet high. The frontier of the country was marked by a line of low stone fortifications, manned by natives armed with weapons resembling the old-fashioned blunderbuss. It is not impossible that the latter raise huge numbers of gunpowder, for the Chinese, who for years, have tried to rule them, admit it is of better quality than that which they manufacture themselves.

"Although suspicious and warlike, and hostile to some kinds of Chinese, the 't'uren proved to be most hospitable and friendly to the missionaries, and were employed solely for the purpose of drying and curing vegetables, meat and fish, which were suspended from the rafters for the entire height of the chimney."

The architecture of the country was distinctly foreign to China, resembling in many respects the feudal castles of Normandy. In other respects it was not unlike the structures of Babylonia and Palestine. Grain, for instance, after being harvested, was trashed upon the roofs of the houses, just as in the Holy Land. The houses themselves are nothing more than a platform, perhaps open on window, from which the odors and smoke of cooking escape.

"On top of practically all the fortified castles flags were flown, and had no special tribal or patriotic significance. Every man in the country, apparently, is a law unto himself. Each tribes has its chieftain, but there is no national head, and China exercises only nominal sovereignty."

"Quarrels are settled on horseback with blunderbusses, spears, bags of stones and broadswords. The enemies challenge each other, and at a given signal ride full tilt on small, very ponies at each other. It is seldom that both combatants escape alive, but the victor is usually the stronger. The cloth of the family of his dead adversary as long as they live, and this makes 'duels' rare. In many respects these combats resemble the tournaments of the Middle Ages."

Many Tribes Found. Dr. Beech said that while he believed he had penetrated further into this section of Western China than any other white man, he regretted that he had not done so.

Catarhal Deafness May Be Overcome

If you have Catarhal Deafness or head or ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmitin (double strength), and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Borham's FOR THE GUMS

Just as the strength of a building is dependent upon its foundations, so are healthy teeth dependent upon healthy gums.

Permit the gums to become inflamed or tender and you weaken the foundation of the teeth. This condition is called Pyorrhoea (Riggs' Disease). Loosening of teeth is a direct result. And, spongy, receding gums invite painful tooth-base decay. Quarrels are settled on horseback with blunderbusses, spears, bags of stones and broadswords. The enemies challenge each other, and at a given signal ride full tilt on small, very ponies at each other. It is seldom that both combatants escape alive, but the victor is usually the stronger. The cloth of the family of his dead adversary as long as they live, and this makes 'duels' rare. In many respects these combats resemble the tournaments of the Middle Ages."

that he had not gone still further. "For my guide," said he, "said that four or five days' journey beyond there were tribesmen, near Sungepan, who are fast like you are—that is, natives who appeared like Americans. Their dress, conversation and mode of living were characteristic of the country."

"How so many different types of people located there is a problem for the ethnologists," resumed Dr. Beech. "One theory is that they represent all the warring tribal elements that have come into the continent of Asia and the northern part of Asia. The Tartars, made their last stand in this rugged region between India, China and the northern part of Asia. Each tribe is independent of the others, all speak a patois of Tibetan and Turkestan and their religion seems to be animistic, or that of the Lamas. The most numerous are the Lolo, which again are subdivided into smaller tribes. Others are the Miao, who are polyandrous or polygamous. These people, I believe, are responsive to Christian influences and kind bring to them the most interesting things about the world. Nothing has ever been done for them by civilization."

Great Trade Field Open. "All of the natives are farmers or herdsmen. The latter raise huge numbers of goats, hundreds of thousands of which can be seen on the mountain sides. Recently, or since the Chinese

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate of lime will keep you healthy and keeps it.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incandescent material in the form of ash, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which must be eliminated from the system each day. This comes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this food they derive their energy, and produce a mass of poisons and ptomain-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of Limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean. This is the only way to get rid of dandruff. It is then you get about four ounces of ordinary liquid aron; apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single flake and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and itching of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get Liquid Aron in any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Gas in the Stomach is Dangerous. Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble. Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and soars, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acid. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bismarck Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and acid right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bismarck Magnesia in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk—is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of Magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.
