

BANDITS SEIZE PAYROLL FROM ARMED GUARD

Thugs Calmly Waited for Victim in Heart of New York and Got Away With $8,870

Special to The Standard.
New York, Oct. 4.—Four men who lay in wait in an automobile at First Avenue and Fifty-second street got away with a payroll consisting of $8,870, the payroll money of the American Cigar Company. After beating the paymaster and his armed guard, the men sped down Second Avenue and out of sight. No trace of them has been found.

Four Crew Guns.

An automobile was standing at First Avenue and Fifty-second street as the two approached. Five men were in the car. Four jumped out and ran up to them, drawing pistols. Two of them assaulted Newman, one striking him on the head with his pistol butt, while the other wrenched the money bag from his grasp. Two men attacked the guard. One of them landed a heavy uppercut on Bolton-Jones's jaw and the other twisted from his grasp the pistol he had drawn as the bandits approached. The two of them beat Bolton-Jones with their guns.

When the rate who had attacked Newman got the money, all four ran to the automobile and jumped in. The driver had the car moving before they were actually in and the car dashed into Second Avenue. It turned a corner and was lost.

Newman lay on the sidewalk, unconscious. The police called Dr. Mackell of the Reception Hospital, and they took Newman to the East Fifty-first street station. He was suffering from a deep cut in the head and lacerations of the scalp. It was two hours before he fully recovered consciousness. Bolton-Jones was not badly hurt.

When he recovered consciousness, Newman said he believed he would be able to identify the bandits.

A storekeeper near the factory of the American Cigar Company told the police that Newman had remarked last week that he was suspicious of two men who had been hanging near the factory a day or two before. The men had remarked, Newman told the storekeeper, "that's the fellow."

ARNEL LOVE MAY BE LIBERATED AFTER CONFESSING MURDER

Toronto, Oct. 4.—It is understood that the Attorney General's department will deal this week with the alienist's report upon Arnel Love, the young man of Grey County who "confessed" at a religious revival meeting that he killed his mother, for whom murder Love's father was hanged more than seven years ago. The young man is said to have epileptic tendencies and it is not probable any proceedings will be taken against him. He has been under detention for some time, but may be liberated.

PRINCE GIVES U. S. ADMIRAL A PHOTO

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 4.—The Prince of Wales called at six o'clock this evening, after a three days' visit to the Bermudas. During his stay, here the Prince was enthusiastically received. The Prince went on board the United States battleship Kansas, while here and presented to Rear Admiral Charles F. Hughes, an autographed photograph, in a silver frame. The British cruiser Renown, on which the Prince sailed, is due at Portsmouth, October 11.

LEAD WORLD IN WIRELESS PROGRESS?

Germans Claim to Head List Both as to Extent and Efficiency of the Service Given

(Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic Newspaper Service.)
Berlin, Oct. 4.—It is the boast of the German postal authorities in a report which they publish on Wireless Installations, that no country can vie with Germany as to extent or efficiency of its wireless facilities. On June last, according to the report, 50 stations were in working order. Two special central stations and one supplementary station are in communication with the United States, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Hungary, and Holland. The wireless service with France, Italy, Switzerland, Tschecho-Slavonia and Rumania on the other hand is in the preparatory stage.

MONTREAL PLUMBERS STRIKE.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—According to a statement from plumbers union, about six hundred men went on strike this morning to secure higher wages, for which they have been negotiating without success for the past three months. The men are demanding a one hour, with time and a half for the ninth hour and double time for anything over that.

INDIA'S PRINCESS CHARMS SOCIETY OF OLD LONDON

Special to The Standard.
London, Oct. 4.—Princess Tikka of Kapurthala, member of one of the most noble of the ancient Sikh families in the Punjab district of India, is giving London society fresh insight into the manners and bearing of high-caste Indian women.

Her face is distinguished by features of aristocratic breeding; her costumes and ornaments are marked by elegant simplicity; her personality is unaffected and charming; and her use of English is as choice as if it had been cultivated in the best schools of England. She has proved a decided acquisition in the social activities of the summer, and naturally she is in great demand.

She is the wife of the son and heir of Sir Jagjit Singh, present titular ruler of Kapurthala. Before her marriage she was Princess Beinda of Jubbal, daughter of the Rajah of that district. She was educated in Paris and often visited England, where many of her old friends are now welcoming her. Her husband, the Prince, rendered valuable services to England during the late war. He has travelled widely and is keenly interested in art and education.

His ancestor, Jassa Singh, made himself the leading Sikh of his day by his intelligence and bravery, and he gained extensive possessions, some of which were forfeited in the first Sikh war. The loyalty of Rajah Randhir Singh in the mutiny of 1857 in which he led a contingent to Oudh and did good service, restored the former lands to the family, but he retained only the title of Rajah, with the status of a large land-holder.

The present head of the family is Sir Jagjit Singh, born in 1872, and succeeding his father in 1877, and coming into full authority in 1890.

DAUGHTER OF RICH SHOE MERCHANT MURDERED ON ROAD

Kansas City, Oct. 4.—Miss Florence Barton, 24, daughter of K. L. Barton, president of a shoe manufacturing company, was killed last night by an unknown person while riding in a motor car with Howard R. Winter, her fiancé, it became known today. Winter was wounded.

According to Winter, the shooting took place on a lonely road in a suburban residence section. He told the authorities he had stopped his car to light a cigar, when three men appeared in another car. One of the men asked the direction to go to Lee's Summit, Mo. When he had been told, Winter said the man leaped upon the running board of his car, with a revolver in his hand and fired several shots. One struck Winter in the left arm and another wounded Miss Barton over the heart.

SCOTLAND YARD TO PROBE IRISH SELF-DETERMINATION B'D

(Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic.)
London, Oct. 4.—Scotland Yard authorities have received orders from the Home Office to inquire closely into the personnel of the "Irish Self-Determination League," the British prototype of Sinn Fein. Documents lately discovered by the Yard indicate the organization has developed plans to appoint a Government. It is regarded as significant that Sir Patrick K. Quinn, recently retired chief of Scotland Yard, has been appointed to the advisory post in police administration of Irish matters in Dublin and London.

SCOTLAND YARD TO PROBE IRISH SELF-DETERMINATION B'D

(Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic.)
London, Oct. 4.—Scotland Yard authorities have received orders from the Home Office to inquire closely into the personnel of the "Irish Self-Determination League," the British prototype of Sinn Fein. Documents lately discovered by the Yard indicate the organization has developed plans to appoint a Government. It is regarded as significant that Sir Patrick K. Quinn, recently retired chief of Scotland Yard, has been appointed to the advisory post in police administration of Irish matters in Dublin and London.

SCOTLAND YARD TO PROBE IRISH SELF-DETERMINATION B'D

(Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic.)
London, Oct. 4.—Scotland Yard authorities have received orders from the Home Office to inquire closely into the personnel of the "Irish Self-Determination League," the British prototype of Sinn Fein. Documents lately discovered by the Yard indicate the organization has developed plans to appoint a Government. It is regarded as significant that Sir Patrick K. Quinn, recently retired chief of Scotland Yard, has been appointed to the advisory post in police administration of Irish matters in Dublin and London.

RHEUMATISM FOR OVER 16 YEARS

No Return of the Trouble Since Taking "Fruit-a-tives"

183 Church St., Montreal.
"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for over 16 years. I consulted specialists; took medicine; used lotions; but nothing did me good. Then I began to use "Fruit-a-tives," and in 15 days the pain was easier and the Rheumatism much better. Gradually, "Fruit-a-tives" overcame my Rheumatism; and now, for five years, I have had no return of the trouble. I cordially recommend this fruit medicine to all sufferers."

P. H. McHUGH.
50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS OF WAR MARRYING THE GERMAN GIRLS

(Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic.)
London, Oct. 4.—"Bolshevism is penetrating Germany by way of its marriage altar to an amazing extent," said J. P. Dotey, Dallas, Texas, who has just returned to London after a three months' study of the Russian prison camps for its American U. S. C. A. "There are still 200,000 Russian prisoners in Germany, nearly all actual, potential Bolsheviks. They are intermarrying to an amazing extent with Germans. The majority have no desire to return to the chaotic Russia and long for the food and clothing furnished them by the German government. The economic importance of these Russians in Germany is very great. They live in prison camps or guarded along Soviet lines."

LIVING CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Children of Italian Peasants Better Nourished Than Before the War.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger.)
Florence, Oct. 4.—In spite of the high cost of living in Italy, children in the poorer districts of the cities are better nourished and apparently in better physical condition than before the war. This was explained by Dr. P. Bonci Casaroli, a child's specialist in the Italian hospital here, who says it is due to increased wages among the working classes and to improved living conditions induced by the war. The doctor pointed out that peasants now have plenty of wine and bread, and seem to be in better financial condition, while their wealthy neighbors, once forming the landed classes of Italy, have been heavily taxed by the war. There seem to be fewer complaints among children suffering from diseases of malnutrition, Dr. Casaroli said, and in going among the peasant families he said he had found recently many evidences of comfort and improved housing conditions, unknown in the days before the war.

DOCTORS ON STRIKE FOR "LIVEABLE FEES"

Special to The Standard.
Berlin, Oct. 4.—The medical profession of Vienna has announced a general strike, beginning today, for "liveable fees."

All of the physicians attached to the Krankenhaus or state sick relief fund, by which they are compelled to attend patients for nominal fees, voted to strike, declaring that their fees under the system amount from 24 to 66 kronen (approximately 35 to 75 cents) per day. They want 48 to 110 kronen a day. According to the strike edict, medical attention is not to be refused to patients who pay the regular fees usually assessed to private patients.

Small Designs

Elegant Coats

The smartest styles shown in years in Hudson Seal, Near Seal, Muskrat, Opposum, Raccoon, Nairis, Pony, Caracal.

H. Mont. Jones, Ltd.

92 KING STREET, ST. JOHN, N. B.

BRITISH M. P. LAUDS SOLDIER SETTLEMENT

Sir Richard Wintrow, M. P., formerly Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Agriculture, has returned to England after a three months tour of Canada. He gives to the Press a very favorable impression of this country and of the Soldier Land Settlement Scheme. According to the Globe, he observes: "On the whole I was greatly pleased with the work of the Dominion Soldier Land Settlement Board. Facilities were given me for visiting many of the individual settlers in all the provinces. I saw their land and the varying problems that confront them on the prairie, in the mixed farming areas, and in the fruit districts in British Columbia, both on virgin soil and on improved lands—every phase of it. The scheme has been well thought out and in each province the district Superintendents are carrying out their work with praiseworthy zeal, and rendering every possible assistance to the settlers. So far as I could judge, at least 80 per cent of the men will make good. The crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if inter-upted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for the purchase of the land. I question if they can do both at the same time without unduly crippling themselves for working capital. Some, of course, will easily do so, but on the unimproved lands it is more than doubtful, and I do not think it will be found politic on the part of the Government to enforce both payments pari passu. The land cannot run away, the asset is always there; consequently if interrupted, the crucial period will be when the men begin not only to pay off their loans for equipment, but at the same time their loans for