inland New Brunswick town, who somewhat recedes, it seems, considered a valuable horse, belonging to a local man, even to the extent of saying that the certificate of registration regarding the animal, as shown by the local man, was bogus and the man a falsifier. The Albert county man, who takes considerable pride in his horse, which he imported from Ontario and is proud to have a fine pedigree, thought the veterinary was giving a little too far, and according to his information was laid against him by Sir Standish Magistrate Pech, M. P. Bray conducted the case for the plaintiff and the defendant, after hearing the plaintiff's evidence and again examining the papers, decided he had passed in correct judgment, and making due apology, was discharged, after paying the costs of the court.
