

A moment's thought for those he loved in the dear old English home,

And then again his longings roved to sift the cannon's boom :

Will he die before the victory assured is in his ears,

To sound the valedictory of his earthly hopes and fears?

