The last session of the first Parliament of France was opened on Monday the 16th inst. by a speech from the Emperor. The Walden says: "Materialistically considered, his speech is a good one. Twice the Queen of England is mentioned, first as being ready to withdraw her troops, as the Emperor of the French is to recall his own, from the Crimea; or, instead of her further occupation of Greece, there is to be a Commission, nominated by the Protecting Powers, to inquire into its financial and administrative system. Again, as to the quarrel with Naples, which France has reduced to the dimensions of a moral signification of displeasure, this is ascribed to the desire of both the Western Governments to get everywhere in behalf of humanity. It was time to withdraw from friendly intercourse with a King whose captives become corpses still in chains, and who would not permit Pozzo to have the fetters which had adorned his spine removed when the surgeon's knife was cutting a tumor from his loins. A sympathy awakened by these foreign objects, or by our English journals, has led the Emperor to think of his own prisoners at Cayenne, and of providing a less deadly convict settlement at Algeria. It was English influence, too, as we may here mention, that induced the Emperor of Austria to proclaim a general amnesty in Milan, the grace of which he has, however, marred by a hint to her Cardinals, warning because true, that their schismatical expedition to the Crimea has failed to purchase for her idea of an Italian nationality the countenance of either of the Western Powers. On the dispute between Prussia and Switzerland, Napoleon III. only says what amounts to this—that, as the Swiss have sided the prisoners of Neuchâtel, it is to be hoped that the King of Prussia will give up the little Principality itself; which he must not understand the word of France is to be dishonored. The domestic policy of the French Empire just now, like our own, is one of retrenchment and economy; to which are added agricultural and industrial schemes, and the continuance of the offer to the Paris artisans of employment on expensive public works; though the moonshines of the last are slightly acknowledged, for the Emperor feels the impossibility of fulfilling all the vast expectations he is raising, and knows that a people which is taught to depend, not on itself, but on its rulers, will impede to Government every distress which is left unrelieved. He says bravely that it is his mission to conquer both the physical and the moral difficulties of France; to represent the undulations both of land-floods and of ideas. It is a point of honor with him that in France rivers and revolutions alike shall flow into orderly channels, instead of bursting forth into appalling desolations. His Majesty has always had a turn for engineering, and we shall see in time what becomes of his hydraulic machinery. Our greatest concern is, that no longer speaks of an amelioration of the political institutions of France, but only of the consolidation of those which now exist. To suppress the "licence of the tribune," and to suppress the "contests which bring about the rise and fall of Ministries," is, in his matured view, a service to liberty herself.

By the R. S. Merlin we have late St. John's papers. The Legislature was in session. There is nothing new discussed in the Legislature or out of door, but the recent Fishery Treaty concluded between England and France, by which most important concessions have been made to the latter, as respects the right of fishing on the coast of Newfoundland. Great dissatisfaction has been manifested, among all classes of the population, with this high-handed act on the part of the Home Government. The House of Assembly on 14th inst. unanimously approved of the Hon. John Kent (Colonial Secretary) and Mr. F. Carter as Delegates to proceed to the other Colonies, to endeavor to obtain their assistance in resisting the completion of the Fishery Convention. These gentlemen have arrived here in the Merlin from St. Johns. Governor Darling's despatch, dated July 23, 1856, reconstituting with the British Government against giving up the fishery rights of the most ancient Colony is being republished in the Newfoundland papers. Should this convention go into operation there will be lively times in the ensuing summer on the Labrador and contiguous coasts.—Morning Chronicle.

United States. The inauguration of the President and Vice President, JAMES BUCHANAN, of Pennsylvania, and JOHN C. BRECKENRIDGE, of Kentucky, took place at Washington on the 4th inst. Judging from our exchanges a very favorable impression was created by the President's inaugural Address.

Great Britain and the Continent of Europe. NEWS BY THE AMERICA. Advice to Feb. 28th. In Parliament the Chancellor of the Exchequer has carried his Budget against the combined opposition of Mr. Disraeli and Mr. Gladstone. The reductions in the military establishment exceed any expectations formed. Substantially, says the Christian Times, they may be considered to be brought down to the level at which they stood immediately prior to the war; which he increased estimates are not more than is called for by the additional burden which the war has left. According to the opinion of the Chancellor for the Exchequer the present generation ought not to pass without the total extinction of the £40,000,000 of debt which this war has added to the national burdens, and which he anticipates will be removed in the course of about sixteen years. But he does not propose to keep up a large taxation for the whole of that time. His idea is, that when the larger and more pressing burden of the Exchequer Bonds has been paid off, the sinking fund may be thrown upon the general taxation, and the war assessment of the income-tax will then disappear. That this may be done with safety, he inferred from the general prosperity of the country, of which he gave a flattering account. We have lately had some unpleasant symptoms of want of employment in the streets of the metropolis, but the statement of the Chancellor, shows that this must be a merely local and temporary symptom, that the sources of national prosperity are sound, and that the pulse of national life still beats firm and true. With such a prospect before them, he invites the House to adopt his measure, and proposes that, if they do so, an increase in the happiness and prosperity of the country.

Mr. Spooner's annual motion on Maynooth was this year defeated in a House of three hundred and twenty-six members by the narrow majority of eight. The Education Question has been once more brought forward by Sir John Pakington, and this time in alliance with the secular party, who have compromised their opinions so as to allow of the school being converted into a place of religious instruction, and the schoolmaster into the instructor, on condition that this instruction shall only be given at stated hours, when the children of those who object need not attend.

The Christian Times of Feb. 27th says.—The House of Lords pronounced its decision upon the affairs at Canton last night. That decision was in favor of the policy Sir John Bowring pursued, and her Majesty's Government sanctioned, by a majority of eighteen of those who were present, and an equal majority of proxies from those who were absent. In the Commons, the same question is still under debate, a vote of censure has been moved by Mr. Cobden, and supported in a speech of unusual length by Lord John Russell. It is probable that the vote in the Lords will exercise considerable influence upon the members of the Lower House, and that there too a majority awaits the Ministry.

It is reported that the differences between this country and Persia have been arranged. The terms have not yet transpired, except generally that Persia gives up Herat, on which we have expressed our willingness to give up Bushire. Other stipulations are made providing for the progress of the Euphrates Railway through the Persian dominions, and for the establishment of British Consuls in the principal Persian cities. It is a pity that by these terms, so moderate in themselves, had not been agreed to long before. After all, we suspect that this war would never have been undertaken, had not Persia refused to help from Russia, which that power was unable to give.

The same paper speaks of the death of the Earl of Ellesmere whose visit to Nova Scotia a year or two since will be remembered by some of our readers. It says—Though his ill health precluded him of late years from taking an active part in political life, yet he was an attentive observer of all that passed, and his voice was raised in behalf of humanity and kindness between class and class. His lordship was the first to set an example which we trust will yet be more extensively followed, of throwing open his splendid gallery of paintings and statues to the public, having built an entrance in his new house in the Green-park, specially intended for public use, where they could enter without commencing the family. Lord Ellesmere was a nobleman of exquisitely cultivated taste, and his name is not unknown in literature; added to which he was a munificent patron in the domain both of literature and art.

Post Office Orders.—A letter from Mr. DANIEL PALFREY appears in the Liverpool Transcript calling attention to the inconvenience experienced in remitting small sums by mail, and suggesting to the people of Nova Scotia the propriety of petitioning the Legislature for a Post Office Money Order system similar to that in use in England. A form of petition is given which we would have copied but for want of space.

The letter from Canada addressed to us by our valued correspondent, the Rev. Jonathan Scott, will be read with feelings of admiration at the ever expanding usefulness of Methodism in Canada, and of reciprocal affection to those who so fraternally think of us in this Eastern Connexion.

Correction.—In our issue of Feb. 5th appeared a notice of the "Moniers" in France credited to a Correspondent of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate; it should have been, our contemporary reminds us, NORTHWESTERN Christian Advocate.

We are indebted to J. THOMAS, Esq. of this City for a copy of the NEWS OF THE DAY, for which our Correspondent will accept our thanks. We await the promised letter.

LIVES SAVED.—Mr. W. B. F. Oliver, of Drayton, Dooley County, Ga., saved the life of a valuable girl belonging to a planter, by the use of his "Resolving Resolvent." The girl was covered with sores and ulcers from head to foot, and had a very bad cough—and supposed to have had ulcers and tubercles on her lungs. Oliver's "Resolving Resolvent" cured her. Six bottles of the Resolvent was only used.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS, the best Remedies in the World for Diseases of the Skin. The youngest son of Mr. Edward Wright, of Windsor, Nova Scotia, had a most malignant disease of the skin, which rendered the child's life one of misery and suffering. As the mother had tried every remedy likely to benefit him, without receiving the desired result, she became ultimately worn out with trouble and anxiety in the matter, and was lamenting the same to a friend, who recommended Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which the mother commenced using, and by persevering with the same for six weeks, the child was completely cured.

Have you a diseased Liver?—The question, though startling, is sufficiently suggestive when the fact is taken into consideration that disease of the Liver has become most alarming in frequency in the United States. Indeed, there are few formidable diseases that are not in some way traceable to deranged state of that important organ. Many of the complaints usually classed under the head of Consumption, have their origin in the Liver. Any remedy that would insure regularity and healthful action in the Liver, would be a blessing to mankind. There never has been found, it is safe and sound, when a fair trial has been afforded it, it has never been known to fail.
