"The Victoria Theatre, London, has been the come of a fearful calamity, by which no less than scene of a fearful calamity, by which no less than scene of a fearful calamity, by which no less than 16 human creatures, most of them young persons, from 15 years and upwards, lost their lives. Sons, from 15 years and upwards, lost their lives. It was intended to give two performances of the It was intended ge representations, the stairs leading to the became thronged by those who came to attend the evening representation.—A cry of Fire! was raised without any adequate cause, and those in the gallery rushing to the door, overpowered those on the landing, many of whom were precipitated over the ballustrade and hence the disaster. Some of the sufferen were liferary trampled to death in the confusion which followed. The theatre, strange to say was opened in the evening, and the performance proceeded as if nothing serious had happened Subsequent investigations have all the subsequent investigations. equent investigations showed that a boy in the boxes had a box of fusees in his pocket hese ignited, set his coat tail on fire' and indu masses above to rush in wild despair to wards the stairs, and produce the tragedy. The Victoria is unenviably notorious for calamities.— Many years back-little less than thirty-imme diately after its erection, a portion of the building fell during a performance, and killed a great

The Beacon says: At home, the agitation for a new reform bill continues. Mr. Bright has inished his Scotch tour of agitation; and is now allowing himself some little relaxation; or what is perhaps more likely, is devoting himself uninterruptedly to the perfecting the details of his bill. In other quarters of the country the subject attracts attention. A great meeting was held the other day at Leeds, in the new Town Hall which the Queen opened in the course of the summer, at which the old Reform leaders of the town attended, and the people showed a dispo-sition to continue to put confidence in their gui-dance. One amendment or addition to the original resolution was carried, defining the extent to which the franchise should be carried rather more distinctly than the projectors intended. But the minority was a large one; and, upon the whole, extreme opinions have never had much hold on Leeds. At the last general election Leeds was the only large town that returned a Conservative as one of its members; and when he died, soon after, the constitutents deliberate-

There is a revolution, on a small scale, in Servia, that semi independent province of Turkey, which, while it pays tribute to the Porte for the privilege of being governed by its own laws, has recently deposed its Governor, and demanded a n. There is nothing in this to disturb the repose of the diplomatists of Europe, except as another indication of the unsettled condition of the whole of Turkey, and the loose bond by which the various provinces are attached to the Sultan. We need not say, that Servia is wholly Christian in its population, and is not likely therefore, to have much sympathy for a Mahommedan ruler. When the recent war broke out Servia was expected, in many quarters, to de-clare for Russia, and it was then thought, that nothing but the masterly movements of Omar Pasha on the Danube prevented at that time a Servian revolt. There is a suspicion that the these movements; but it ought not to surpise Englishmen that a Enropean and a Christian

RENEWED PARDON TO M. DE MONTALEM-"The Emperor, renewing his first decision, grants to M. le Comte de Montalembert the re-mission of the penalties definitely pronounced against him by the decree of the Imperial Court Paris of the 21st December, 1858,

"His Majesty also remits the sentence of imprisonment pronounced against M. Douniol, gerant of the Correspondant, in the judgment of the 24th of Nov."

The Times has the following remarks upon this second pardon:—"We trust that the eminent man whose cause has been pleaded with the whole world for an audience will accept with dignity this second concession, and not think it of grace. We test to object of an Imperial act of grace. We test it our duty, or the amount ment that M. de Montalembert persisted in his appeal, to point out that a continuance of the ruggle was likely to abate the enthusiasm for the voluntary martyr's cause, and incline the judgment, if not the sympathies, of reasonable men to the side of the Emperor. The result some may think not unsatisfactory, inasmuch as the Count has been acquitted of part of the promise, it is, no doubt, so far a victory to the partizans of free speech. But, although M. de entalembert has fallen on his feet, we think that in tempting fortune by a prolongation of the conflict he was not well advised. However, all that is past and gone. Nothing now remains but to receive with good sense and good taste the second remission of the sentence. The victory has been gained, but it is a victory of public opinion, and public opinion is proverbially variable and impatient of tedium. Let the matter, then, be concluded for the present. There is now a legitimate termination, and M. de Montaembert may carry his shield unstained out of the fray. The press of Europe, and the national opinion which it represents, have fairly beaten the Emperor, or those unhappy myrmidons who instituted the prosecution against the Correspondant. On the one side were the Chief of a great Empire, an army of 400,000 men, a great band of officials managing every department of State, a powerful priesthood, a number of Bonapartist men of letters, ready to throw mud at any oppon ent of the Government, and a timid bourgeoisie who have not yet recovered from the fear of Communist spoliators. We cannot but believe that the Emperor's design was to show how easily he could crush an opponent. M. de Monta-lembert was higher game that a mere democratic orator of the Left. He was a Peer of Louis Philippe's monarchy, the representative of a powerful party, and an honoured son of the Church. He was about the last man whom Church. He was about the last man whom people would have imagined likely to be attacked by a deepet beat people would have imagined likely to be attacked by a despot bent on absolute rules, while willing to retain friendship with the priesthood. To take such a man, to hold him a moment in his grasp as Gulliver might a too obstructive Lilliputian, and then contemptuously commit him a short term of imprisonment, would have been a moral victory. Indictments for high treason, or even fulminations in the official newspaper, are dangerous proceedings. The offender is made too great; the matter takes the appearance of a conflict between equals. But to send an eminent orator and publicist before a police-court, to sentence him without a jury to imprisonment and fine, with a liability to banishment at any fature time, was a safe and cutting punishment. A Villemain or a Guizot, with all the disaffected of the Academy, wou d be humiliated

The affairs of Italy still continue to attract attention. Though there is no actual insurrec-tion in that country, yet it is said that the nation al discontent, especially in Austrian Lombardy, has risen to such a pitch as to render the longer has risen to such a pitch as to render the longer preservation of tranquillity well nigh impossible. It would be less alarming could we believe that the agitation pervading those provinces was the genuine outgrowth of popular discontent. But there is reason to fear that foreign States are fomenting the diaffection, and mean, at the proper time, to divide the spoil. Already there are speculations afloat to the effect that Sardinia will yield to France a large share of her dominious lying contiguous to her bounds received. minions lying contiguous to her bounds, receiv-ing for compensation the present possessions of Austria. Such an arrangement would certainly involve the interference of the other Powers of Europe, who would not willingly witness the aggrandisement of France bowever much they might cheerish the strengthening of Sardinia.

The Pope ted the act, in each case passing over a has offered up prayers for the success of the rival.

The agitation which has prevailed for the last two months in the north of Italy is beginning to be felt at Rome. Secret societies, it is said, are redoubling their efforts, and there are 'signs, impossible to be defined,' which indicate that 'something is at hand.' Several of the symptoms which preceded the revolution of 1848 are observable. At the beginning of the week two of Garibaldi's old officers, who, it was suspected, had come to en-list 'patriots,' were arrested. Both the Pon-tifical Government and the French General were excessively vigilant. The Archduke Charles Britanniques, with the positive intention, it is said, of becoming a Capuchin monk forthwith."

> The Sardinian journals confirm the repor from various quarters, respecting the inquietude of the Austrian Government relative to its Italian possessions. It has been much alarmed by the late demonstrations at Pavia and Milan; a eneral order has been issued to the troops, that at hearing the sound of a cannon being fired. they are to retire precipitately to their respective barracks, and on hearing three distinct shots, they are to concentrate with all speed at the head-quarters of the Commandant. The Bomboy Times says that the publication of Lord Canning's able and dignified reply to the lamous Ellenborough despatch has exercised a very marked influence upon the Indian press.— "The conviction is gaining rapidly upon all minds that injustice has been done to the charac-ter and administration of this nobleman, in the the taxing upon it by which we shall be able to obtain repayment of any overcharge. Remember of the present juncture would be little short of a national misfortune. Both possess, in a very high degree, the confidence of the natives of India The inauguration of Lord Stanley's policy by the restriction of Dhar exercises a deeper influence upon the native mind of India than English readers can understand; and the clear and emphatic utterance of his Lordship on the broad principles of equity on which the country should be governed in the future paved the way for a frank and loyal acceptance of the gracious declarations of her Majesty the Queen."

The interest of the war is confined to Oude, and the pursuit of Tantia Topes. In Oude the proclamation of her Majesty promises success, and we learn with satisfaction that the most powerful of the insurreents in the south-east of the war is owners every success, and beg heremander in-Chief on the morning of the 10th of November. The return of this man to his allegiance has led, it is affirmed, already to the sub-mission of several chiefs of minor note in that part of the province, and sanguine expectations are entertained that there will be little fighting

The Calcutta Englishman of the 22nd of November says:—

"The whole of the intelligence furnished by Government to the local press with regard to the operations of the army during the last fortnight is confined to four telegraphic messages: one announcing the capture of the fort of Samree, in Oude, by Brigadier Eveleigh, with the loss of only two Europeans killed and four wounded; the other intimating that Madho Singh, the rebel chief of Amethie, has surrendered, an that the fort is now occupied by our troops: a third, from and expecting to form a junction with the col-been contested more obstinately than usual, for the casualties on our side amounted to more than one hundred killed and wounded.

"According to the accounts received from all parts of India, the arrangements under which the Queen's authority over India has been ushered in are very satisfactory, and it is pleasing to learn that, according to all appearances, the re-spectable class of natives generally received the official intimation of the change of government with gratification, and are particularly pleased with the preclamation itself. Addresses to her Majesty are being prepared in several places, to

THE IDOLATRY OF ROME

A LECTURE delivered before the Protestant Allian of Nova Scotia, By Rev. Robert Sedgewick.

A MOTHER wishing to find her son THOMAS Me-KAND, son to John and Ellen McKand, new resid-ing at Wallace River, County of Cumberland, Nova Sco-tia, and son in law to James Machasney, left Ayrebire, Scotland, for Quebec, Canada, in the year 1830. The above Elleu McKand still survives, and is anxious to hear om her son. Canada papers please copy.

Nasa's Superior Horse and Cattle Linder.—One of the most valuable articles ever offered to the public for Sprains, Windgalls, Ringbooes, Spavins, Stiffness of the Joints, Fresh Wounds, Galls, &c.

This truly valuable Liniment has been extensively used for upwards of seven years, and in no instance has it failed to give satisfaction. The Proprietors cheerfully recommend the above remedy to the public, under the full conviction of its efficacy in the above mentioned diseases, where an external application is required.

It reduces inflammation or swelling, or where the fisch has become callous, it softens and reduces it, and produces a full and free circulation to the parts previously affected.

Numerous certificates from highly respectable individuals might be offered, "testifying to its efficacy" but the proprietors deem it unnecessary. All that is solicited is a lair trial of this Liniment, to convince the public of its value.

MORE PROOF! Rev. MR. JACKSON, Baptist Cler-Messrs. Fellows & Co. Gents: It affords me great pleasure in saying that I have known in my own family and in the families of others, wonderful effects produced in the destruction of worms by your Worm Lozenges, and I can certify most conscientiously that I believe them to be the most effectual remedy that has ever been invented for the removal of worms from the human stomach: and I hope, gentlemen, in presenting such a valuable medicine to the world, that you may receive large patronage from the public in general. I remain, Sirs, Yours truly, W. JACKSON. St. Martins, N. B., Aug. 15, 1856. Fellows' Worm Lozenges are sold by all Apothecaries.
