

BRYAN PARTY CONTROL OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Had but Little Difficulty in Selecting the Temporary Chairman—Other Offices Filled Expect a Stiff Fight on the Make-Up of the Platform—Injunction Plank Likely to Make Trouble

DENVER, Col., June 28.—This city took to-day its last political stir for at least a fortnight to come. The Democratic politicians of prominence who have already arrived for the national convention of next week this morning for a pleasure trip into the mountains. By the time they are all on the ground one more tomorrow the advance guard of the state delegations will be here or on their way and there will be an ever-increasing activity until the curtain has been rung down on the final scene of the Democratic national convention.

The Bryan men were today highly pleased with the manner in which Theodore Bell, of California, was yesterday named temporary chairman. There were reports before Mr. Bell had been selected that a fight was to be made on him by Thomas Tammart, chairman of the national committee, and Roger C. Sullivan, the national committeeman from Illinois, but the promised struggle did not materialize.

The vice-presidential situation from the present outlook offers the greatest encouragement. It is known that the selection of a political convention. Unless the nominee for the first place on the ticket should demand of his friends the selection of a running mate on whom he may have set his heart, the indications would seem to point to numerous ballots in the completion of a ticket. That frequent balloting and spirited contests are wonderful features in creating enthusiasm is asserted by Democratic people everywhere and they are looking forward to a scramble over the vice-presidency, particularly if a nomination for the presidency is made on the day after to-morrow.

SPEAKER ATTACKS SALOON KEEPERS George Blewett Vigorously Applauded at Every Day Club At the Every Day Club temporary meeting last evening George Blewett was vigorously applauded when he remarked that the saloons, though they might place bar-tenders in white suits in a Labor Day parade, never dared to exhibit the product of their workmanship along with that of industrial concerns. Mr. Blewett said he opposed the liquor traffic because of its workmanship, and because of what it did in the home and to the children. Moreover, it was opposite to Almighty God, for its product, it is written, shall not enter the kingdom of heaven. The speaker could not understand how men, knowing this, could continue in a business that makes drunkards. He gave pitiful illustrations of the havoc and ruin wrought by drunkards, and earnestly besought men to become or remain total abstainers, for their own sakes and because of the effect of their example upon others. Arrived at 8:15 p. m. The choir of Tabernacle church Sunday school sang two choruses, and a quartette and chorus, and there were talks by Mr. and Mrs. Baynes and Miss Patterson and Miss Blair, and a solo by Miss Lulu Colwell.

THAW MAKING ANOTHER EFFORT FOR LIBERTY FOUKHEEPHIE, N. Y., June 28.—Harry K. Thaw will leave Poughkeepsie tomorrow morning in the custody of Under Sheriff John Townsend, who will produce him in the supreme court at White Plains in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus issued Friday. Thaw will be accompanied by his new attorney, Charles Morschauer of this city, who will ask Judge Mills to grant a jury trial and to order him detained in any other place other than the Mat-tawson asylum until the question of his liberty has been adjudicated by a jury. As the question of Thaw's right to a jury trial was not raised in the first habeas corpus proceedings before Justice Morschauer, who decided that Thaw was insane and ordered him committed to Mattawson, it leaves a new issue to be presented to Judge Mills and one on which the young man and his counsel hope to be successful. All the doctors who have been in opposition from District Attorney Jerome. From his room in the Foughkeepsie jail, Thaw gave out the following statement today: "I am sane. Before the last writ was served we knew from our attorneys that my sanity was perfect and therefore made no adequate preparation for the hearing before Judge Morschauer. The doctor at Mattawson told my lawyers and me and told Dr. Pilgrim the middle of April, after I had been there ten weeks, that he and Dr. Lamb had watched me carefully and that they were positive that I had not the slightest symptoms of paranoia. After what he had stated to all these gentlemen, we were not prepared for the way he testified. There was a general feeling that the present question was connected with my trials, whereas it is simply whether I am sane or not. I have seen and examined me and have no doubt whatever as to the result. They do not wish me to return to Mattawson, nor do I. After the commitment to which I have been subjected, the association with criminal lunatics might ruin my health. The fact that I am well mentally and physically, after two long trials and fifteen months in the Tombs and three at Mattawson, in itself practically proves that my condition is normal in every way."

SENSATIONAL STORY IN A PARIS MURDER Butler Who Killed His Employer Was Boss of the Household PARIS, June 27.—The arrest in this city of the butler Renard, charged with complicity in the murder of August Remy, a wealthy retired banker, who was stabbed to death June 6, in his home in Paris, has revealed the existence of an astounding state of affairs in the banker's household prior to the assassination. The butler's nephew, named Rafano, after a severe examination, told the magistrate that Renard had killed his uncle. Rafano explained that after years of service in his uncle's house, Renard had become completely master of the establishment, gaining ascendancy over the banker's wife to such a point that the keys to her money and jewel boxes were always in his possession. Contrary to all belief with the young man, then confessed that he and Renard had had relations similar to those which created the recent so-called "round table" scandal in Germany. M. Remy often complained of Renard's over-dominance in his household, but his wife defended the butler. He then informed his wife that he would no longer endure the situation and that he intended to send his nephew to a disciplinary school and that he was going to discharge the butler. His wife followed this announcement. Madame Remy refused to believe the stories told her and finally in company with her maid, she left the house. That same night, Rafano has declared, M. Remy and Renard quarrelled during dinner and Renard killed the banker by stabbing him with a desert knife. After killing the old man the butler arranged the house and the dining room in such a manner as to give support to the theory that the crime had been committed by burglars.
