SACKVILLE, N. B., APL. 25, 1872. INDIRECT CLAIMS.

So many contradictory rumors are oating about in respect to the ne-Secretary Fish stated to some Bankers on Friday last, that the indirect claims would not be withdrawn by the American Government, nor its case modified in any way. The English Government is quite as firm in its position. Last Thursday even-Commons that the reply to the last despatch transmitted to the Washington Cabinet, is likely to form ar epoch in the history of the matter.

There is no doubt that the claim for indirect damages ought never to claims. Intended to serve electioneering purposes it may result in imperilling the peace of the two countries. If President Grant's object were to manufacture a little chear thunder to serve him in the nex electioneering campaign, he is likely to be disappointed, for nearly all the eminent jurists of the Country and the Press are opposed to the indirect claims. A portion of the Press, the N. Y. Herald for example, goes still further and calls for a square back down on the part of the Ameri can Cabinet. The N. Y. Evening

Sackville or Amherst, but no one else can put faith in so incredible an assumption. The seat of government must of course be a city, and there are only three cities in both Provinces. Halifax and St. John would of sourse be too jealous of each other to have the seat of Government is either of these places. Frederic's neutral in the strife and central in position, would of course be chosen, but notwithstanding the flattering prospect which such a measure would open to us, we counse! the politicians to leave the Provinces as they are, and not by atterpting to unite two Provinces, which flattering to be consumed to be a time to be at great pains to separate, awaken feelings or sectional rivalry and bitterness by a union which they ignore antly supposed would result in harmony and peace."

The Farmer may rely upon it, that the flatterness of the Archbishop's words and reference not to the absolute scriptural truth of the so-called "damnatory clauses," but only to the meaning of them. He quoted the Bishop of Peter orough as hold-Sackville or Amherst, but no one
