Morris's Promises Only Made to Gull the People of Conception Bay.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—In the spring and fall of 1908 a great hue and cry was raised about the coastal steamer not calling at Harbor Grace on her way north and when returning south. But like all the other rackets kicked up, it was only meant to embarrass the Bond Government and make a little political capital for the Morris Party. It is true that the Prospero did call once or twice at the Bay Metropolis; but the trips there were soon abandoned after Morris got returned to power; and the result is that the Bay people are worse off than ever. It is now said that the Invermore will not take up the Labrador service before the 7th or 8th of June, almost a week later than other years, and as a result fishermen will be that much time behind other years in getting to the coast. This is a great hardship, and one that the Government will be called to account for when the proper time arrives. A second steamer on the Labrador shore is also another one of Morris's promises that helped to fool the baymen last May; but there seems to be some difficulty in getting a boat ready to do the work down there—the interests of the fishermen are not considered in the least, and the chances are that before this boat arrives there some of the fishermen will be ready for home. Morris is a failure as regards providing facilities for the fishermen, and his agricultural policy is going to work in the same manner.

Sincerely yours,
LONG HARRY.

Patsy Doyle and Councillor Martin

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—It was with pleasure that I read in the Evening Telegram about the philanthropy of our Councillor, Mr. Martin, to import trees from Luke Brothers for the graveyards of the Church of England. Now this great act raises my ire to see the poor Methodist, Salvationists and the poor Roman Catholics left out in the cold; but it is the same old story, "Alma Machree ashore"—nothing for the Irish. Musha, Councillor Martin, have you turned your back on us already, you that were so good to give a note for a poor man to get on the work to shovel snow. Why, sure your head is turned entirely since you've got in with the "big folks," and now, sure, you might get knighted if you could fix up things and smooth away the Coronation Oath; and it is yourself will do it, I know; but then don't forget the poor Irish when you are knighted. Sorry I am to-day to see these trees which came all the way from Luke Bros. Please, Councillor Martin, tell us where Luke Bros. live, so we might get some trees and not keep us benighted, for I have a hankering after the graveyards myself, but don't want the undertaker.

Living on $1 a Week

In these days, when the cost of living weighs on no class more heavily than on the sturdy and ambitious young men who are "pulling themselves through college" by dint of devoting all their spare time and some that should not be spared to earning their expenses, there is more than a casual interest in the announcement which has just been made in Boston of what a Harvard student has managed to do. The story is told by E. V. M. Long, a senior in the university, who has shown that it is possible to be a star student and a star football player at the same time, and still keep one's expenditure for food down to one dollar a week. In case there should be any doubt as to Long's physique, stamina and endurance, it may be added that the records of the university gymnasium show him to be the third strongest man attending the institution.

All through his college course Long has lived on a dollar a week—the first year because he had to do it or give up his college course, and the other three because he had found that the regimen was not only sufficient but health-giving. In explaining how he did it, the other day, he said: "It is easy enough to live on fourteen or fifteen cents a day when you've worked it out to two things—system and habit. First a man has got to find out the greatest amount of nourishment that a given allowance of money will buy, and so arrange his diet that it will best fit his individual needs. That's system. Second, he has got to get used to eating those things right along and forget the saw that variety is the spice of life, and that's habit."

All the system in the world added to the best habits that ever came out of a Sunday School, however, would not have made it possible for a healthy college student to live and play football on a fifteen-cents-a-day diet unless there were peculiar facilities at the institution he attended for carrying out his plan of living. For instance, Long explains that at one of the Commons it was possible to get plenty of bread and a cereal for three cents, and that this made a good breakfast. For lunch, cream toast or some vegetables could be obtained for as much more. This left nine cents for a good heavy dinner. Long's own deduction, after nearly four years of this kind of diet, is that ninety-nine people out of a hundred eat too much for their own good, which entitles him to rank as a philosopher as well as a student and an athlete.—Montreal Star.

Comments On Roosevelt's Splurge.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, June 1.
Theodore Roosevelt's speech at the Guild Hall yesterday continued to-day to be discussed by the newspapers throughout the country. The editorial comments upon his utterances, concerning British Rule in Egypt were influenced as a rule by partisanship. The Conservative press defends the conclusions drawn by the former President, while the Liberal papers oppose his deductions with equal seriousness, but outside the questions of fact set forth, the newspapers almost without exception challenge the propriety of a foreign guest of the city criticizing the Colonial policy of the Empire. Of the comments of the Conservative press the following are samples. The Globe: "It was not the time nor the place, nor was the ex-President the person to display this particular form of interest in the business of his hosts."

The Pall Mall Gazette: "The unconventional is justified only by success, if it prefers realities to the properties, where civil interests are concerned, so does the judgment of the British people."

The Standard: "That he should lay his hands on one of the Nation's private and particular political subjects seemed a social crime not far from sacrilegious. But in reading the speech carefully there is found nothing of which to complain."

Of the Liberal papers, the Westminster Gazette questions the necessity and disagrees with the conclusions of the speeches; the Star says that "Mr. Roosevelt should learn that he is not exempt from the customs of civilized nations."

Pope Sends Message To King.

Special to the Evening Telegram.

LONDON, June 1.
There is much speculation here as to the contents of a letter from the Pope which was presented to King George to-day by the Duke of Norfolk. The message was delivered at a special audience granted the Duke. As England has no diplomatic relations with the Vatican, there is no matter for surprise in the fact that the letter was conveyed by the Duke of Norfolk, as he is not only Earl Marshal but the recognized head of the Roman Catholic Church in England. The chief curiosity is to know whether the message is one of condolence or a message of God speed.

A Lunatic's Act.

Special to Evening Telegram.

BERLIN, June 1.
There was a commotion among the Royal Party returning from the annual joint review of the garrisons to-day, when a man who had followed at a short distance, hurled a missile at Crown Prince Frederick. The object missed its mark and fell harmlessly at the feet of a policeman. Upon investigation it was found to be an ordinary can, used for the preservation of fruit and vegetables and was filled with uncooked beans. The party was about to enter the Palace when the incident occurred, and for a moment it was believed that a bomb had been thrown. The police seized the assailant who proved to be a Russian. It is thought that he is not responsible for his act. The Crown Prince represented the Emperor at the review, as the abscence on His Majesty's right wrist is still bothering him.

The Furness liner Tobasco arrived to J. & W. Pitts at 11.50 to-day after a run of 4 days from Halifax. She has been knocking about in the fog the past two days off this port and yesterday saw two large steamers but could not get their names, not being near enough. The ship brought about 500 tons cargo, including 1,330 packages dynamite and rippite for Bell Island. She has a big cargo for England, including a deck load of timber deals. She takes a large cargo of fish and oil from here and sails to-morrow.

WASTE OF MONEY.—Calling for contracts to supply coal is only wasting the people's money, if the people who ask for the tenders have their minds already made up to give the tender to certain dealers who are supporters of the Government. The taxpayers should not be saddled with this extra cost which is only farcical.

GEO. KNOWLING.

Mr. Wm. Van Horne May go to Australia.

MONTREAL, May 25.—The report is current that Sir William Van Horne will shortly leave on a trip to Australia to advise the Commonwealth with regard to the construction of a railway across the continent with the object of settling the interior, which is understood that it was Chief Commissioner Thomas Tait, of the Victoria Railway system, who recommended Sir William as the most competent railway authority whose hands were sufficiently free to advise the Government of Australia and those of various States upon a matter of such importance as the practicability of transcontinental communication, with extensive irrigation as an auxiliary feature. Sir William is at present on a trip to Cuba, and it is consequently impossible to ascertain his views regarding the mission.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, June 1.
Sir Francis Seymour Haden, founder and president of the Royal Society of Painter teachers died to-day.

Woman Dropped Dead.

A very sudden death occurred at Clarke's Beach Tuesday evening, we learn from passengers by yesterday's train. Mrs. Stephens, an old woman, was about to see off some friends who were leaving the place. She was late and ran a considerable distance to try and overtake the train before it moved out. She reached the station just as the cars left and was utterly exhausted. Suddenly she threw up her hands and fell to the platform, dying in a few minutes. She was upwards of 70 years old, and the exertion in running to the train coupled with excitement brought on a fatal attack of heart failure, to which she succumbed.

BEOTHIC READY.—The Beothic, which is now in the stream, having hauled down from the dry dock premises, presents a very pretty appearance in her coat of shining white paint.
