THE EASTERN TRUST COMPANY.

The business of the The Eastern Trust Company is to administer trusts. In this work it specializes, and it does no other. But no trust is foreign to its scope or beyond its power to administer successfully.

The Eastern Trust Company never speculates. It invests. It demands for its property upon the efficiency of its management of its trust's business and upon the security of its investments.

The Eastern Trust Company executes the office of executor or administrator with unexampled efficiency, and its usefulness in this regard is becoming rapidly more availed of.

For instance—in St. John, New Brunswick, where it has quite recently established a branch, the estate of James Ready, of Fairville, which has been sworn to under $651,300.00, is being administered by the Eastern Trust Company as one of the joint executors of Mr. Ready's will.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, again, The Eastern Trust Company has been chosen to administer the estate of Captain William Fleming, which is valued at more than half a million dollars.

The Company now administers many estates which in value amount to several millions of dollars. Particulars will appear in later advertisements.

The Eastern Trust Company can execute this function of executor or administrator as efficiently in Newfoundland as it can in Nova Scotia, Quebec, or New Brunswick.

The Eastern Trust Company requires commodious offices on Water Street. Apply to A Marathon Race Through Eden.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The goal toward which most men struggle is enough money to live comfortably and to enjoy life. It seems to me that such a chase is like a Marathon race through the Garden of Eden, in which every constant drop of sweat before he has finished.

Enough money to live comfortably on means enough to give us food, clothing and a place to lay our heads. Above that, everything is relative. Enough money to enjoy life? If money is the test of happiness, then there is not enough money in the world. In one of his novels, Charles Reade tells us that the man who has achieved money, fame and power, is happy only if he dies before discovering they were not worth striving for.

Money in the abstract we do not care for. We want it, we explain, because there are so many things one can do with it. One can travel—see the world. Automobiles, yachts, horses, jewels—any or all of these things are at the command of the man with money. In our mind they spell happiness.

To see the world? Have you explored your own world yet? Whether you live in a great city or in the country, there are places or scenes that people with money come to see. If you lived in Boston, for instance, you would not visit Bunker Hill monument or "T" Wharf, Longfellow's home or a thousand other places of local or historic interest. If you lived in Los Angeles, you might travel thousands of miles to Boston, and spend days viewing them. Living in Boston you prefer to ignore them, and wish you might go to Los Angeles.

We speak of the world as a world merely of human beings. The things that we want to travel and see are man made things, which while they differ in degree, do not in kind. I know of one rich man who, having exhausted the pleasures of travel—much more quickly than you will suppose—has returned to his home and found a new interest in life in his own backyard. He is exploring a new world—the world of birds.

With all that wealth can command at his call, he has found within himself the one thing that contented him and holds his interest—the study of the feathered architects and songsters that call upon him during different parts of the year. Something that all his millions could not buy him something that if all his millions were swept away, he would still have.

You remember Stevenson's bugle call to happiness:

"This world is so full of a number of things.

I am sure we should all be as happy as kings."

Now, Stevenson did not refer merely to automobiles, yachts, horses, jewels, houses and fine clothes—all man created things, but to those myriads of other interests, some man created, such as books, others God created, such as sunsets and dawns, sparkling seas, fields, flowers and forests and the hundreds of little creature worlds study of any one of which will open up new vistas of interest—and happiness.

Red Cannon

Fashions and Fads.

Tango is the name of the new flame color.

Artificial silk will be much used with white voile.

White buckskin shoes are already in the shops.

Nightgowns of pink and blue batiste are in favor.

Satins, it is promised, will retain their vogue for spring.

One of the great spring novelties is plaids in pastel shades.

Soft, sheer organizes are being taken up for embroidering.

Cashmere shawl designs are coming back with printed taffetas.

One popular new blouse has the back, sleeves and front yoke all cut in one.

Baroque pearls ornamented with jeweled wreaths make charming hat-pins.

Checked skirts with solid colored coats will be much seen among spring suits.

The best tailored shirts for sports wear are those with an extra large armhole.

Filter bands with jet are among the newest trimmings and are a French idea.

With some of the new coats a four-in-hand tie of thick white chevot, is worn as a muffler.

There is no diminution in the liking for rathine; if anything, it increases in popularity.

The styles and materials which "trim themselves" are best to choose for children's dresses.

For negligees, the favorite colors are canary yellow, green, blue, pink, coral and poppy pink.

Figured designs appear in the new moule silks, either with or without the watered effect.

The boudoir caps are now worn with any type of negligee dress, from bed jacket to tea gown.

Some of the new inexpensive cotton waists are of plain white voile with tiny self-pleatings.

Washable tulle blouses, prettily embroidered and lined with some faint color, are quite enchanting.

Emerald green velour with blurry black checks is being used for the new pleated skirts for sports wear.

It is said that we shall see a great many novelty caps worn over light gowns as the spring advances.

Lamp and candle shades, hand-painted in vivid colors on silk or paper, are one of the newest fads.

Some of the new tulie and baiste lingerie gowns have foundation skirts which suggest Turkish trousers.

Tuscan is a favorite color for the new one-button kidskin gloves. With black embroidery it is very effective.

The best choice for a really elegant tea gown is black or dull velvet, with metal embroidery or silver lace.

HR. Grace Notes.

A number of brethren of the Masonic fraternity was in town during the week taking part in the installation of the officers of Lodge "Harbor Grace," for the present year.

Mr. M. Tobin caught a silver-hair fox in one of his traps early this week. The animal had apparently been trapped before as a wire was tightly fastened around its body, and it could not have lived much longer, had it escaped this trap. It perished shortly after the lucky huntsman brought it home.

Mr. Arch Munn and Mr. Alex. Bryden were here during the week and received as usual a great many hearty handshakes from their friends who are numerous.

The outdoor skating rink was opened to the public yesterday afternoon and night. The admission to the fine sheet of ice is free, and in one respect at least are a step ahead of St. John's. For this opportunity of enjoying this very healthy pastime the skating public are indebted to a few young gentlemen in town, who seeing it was too late this season to build a rink thought out this next best plan for this year. We hope the public will show their appreciation by attending whenever convenient, as well as by protecting the ice, and in every way assisting the children to enjoy this pleasure placed within their reach by the thoughtful young men mentioned above. You are deserving of the thanks of the whole town, gentlemen.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Nicholas Fitzgerald, on Sunday evening, January 18th, when her daughter Miss Clara Fitzgerald, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Frank T. Bateman, of Leeds, England, now one of the Cable Staff at Bay Roberts. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Walker, of the Cathedral. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, and the groom was supported by Mr. S. J. Thomey. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and to the bridesmaid a Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power.

Electricity does not viliate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Barry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the advent of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity. The latter has been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Virvan B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—Nov. 14.
