The Scrap Bag.

Does the fashionable woman, in her smart turnout, drawn by sleek, docked horses, ever think of what the future of the poor maimed creatures is to be? Just now, no doubt, it is very "smart," although neither fit nor beautiful to see the beautiful forms-than which nature makes nothing more beautiful -ending abruptly in a thing like a smooth hearth brush sticking out at sharp angle, revealing much that was meant to be concealed, and in flytime, never ceasing from that nervous, impotent jerk, jerk, which tells of the keen but vain longing to feel the sharp swish of horse hair sweeping away the vicious insects which torment the poor

I cannot get these newspapers to give me three lines of praise; yet, here's Gregg with a half column for beating his wife, and every newspaper filled with Collins' history because he ran away with his sister-in-law, and Chubb's divorce suit, and Parker's shortage in accounts, crowding out every item of interest. I am going home to murder the cook, and then I'll have a notice headed with letters an inch long.

Probably climate has much to do with her independence, as no London girl could possibly follow own pedal ornaments by not cramping them in fashionable shoes.

The question of the expediency of lisbanding the militia company was leing agitated one town meeting day n a certain hamlet not a thousand hiles from Boston. The tavern-keepir, a most pompous individual, who had courteously preserved silence during several noisy harangues, threw a the iconoclasts by the solemn interrogatory, delivered in his most impressive manner:

"Gentlemen, let me ask you this: What could we do without militia in case of a resurrection?"

One of the commonest mistakes of women cyclists is to have the saddle placed too low. The result of this is that the rider is unable to get the proper leg-reach, and has to work much harder than is necessary to propel the machine. Her knees are constantly bent, and the cramped position soon begins to tell upon them. She occasionally to straighten them out, and she doesn't know why they feel so dreadfully stiff the next day. Sitting so low does not lock well either, for it gives the spectator the impression that the rider somehow does not appear to have absolute control over her wheel. The saddle ought to be placed so that when the leg is fully extended the toe of the foot will just reach under the pedal when that is at

It is always better to ride a wheel with as high a frame as possible, so that when your saddle is right there will not be too great a length of saddlepost above the end of the frame tubing. The more of this post you are obliged to let out, the more the rigidity of the bicycle is likely to be di-

Mrs. May R. Thornley Re-elected to the P esid ncy-Mrs. Carson Retires After Several Years' Service-Debate on the Question of Extending the Franchise

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in Somerset Hall, Dundas street, yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. May R. Thornley, in the chair, and the following among the members present:

Flora Carson (secretary), Wilson, D. H. Williams, W. J. Saunby, Mountjoy, J. W. Jones, J. G. Jones, Cosford, Evans, Wm. Heaman, Tilley, Chapman, Armstrong, Gordon Wright, Griffiths, W. Saunders, Douglas, Trebilcock, Robertson, McDermid, John Williams, (Rev.) B. Clement, Fife, Pike, Ward, Burnett, "Which," asked the unsophisticated G. Powell, Holmes, Richmond, Connell, Tennent, Ashplant, (Rev.) Geo. Fowler, Ware, Henderson and Barrett, and Misses Ella Cosford (recording secretary), Ada Spence, Manville, Burgess, Law, Loughrey, Barrett and McLeod. The meeting was one of real pleasure to the members, for the reports read from every department of the work showed that the sixteenth year in the London union's history had been very

The meeting was opened with the hearty singing of a hymn, followed with prayer by Rev. Robt. Johnston, pastor of St. Andrew's church. Mr. Johnston was introduced to the meeting, and he gave an instructive Bible reading, indicating several suitable lines of thought for the temperance workers. Another prayer and the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted without discussion, and the president called for nominations for membership. The following were made Mrs. Wm. Clumas, 558 South street; Mrs. (Rev.) George Fowler, Lyle street; Mrs. Colwell, Askin street; Mrs. J. H. Taggie, 775 Colborne street; Mrs. (Rev.) Robert Johnston, Mrs. (Dr.) Ziegler, Wolfe street; Mrs. A. Gardiner, 246 1-2 Dundas street, and Mrs. A. W. Simpson, Wilton Grove. Rev. Dr. Daniels, Rev. Robert Johnston and Mr. W. J. Saunby were referred to the committee on honorary members. The nominations were adopted, and several of the ladies took the pledge and were

THE TREASURER'S REPORT. The financial condition of the union was dealt with in the statement of the treasurer, Mrs. Darch. On Sept. the Queen's example, however desirous 30, 1894, the balance in the bank was of preserving the symmetry of her $130 94. The energies of the ladies during fair week had been rewarded by receipts of $1,054; members' fees were $192; receipts from July 10, $90 53; honorary members', $21; rent, $228; donations amounted to $146 02, and minor receipts, $25 87, making a total of $1.888 32. The disbursements were $1,689 91, including Western Fair, $584; expenses, $27; July 10, delegates' $120 63; rent, $240; donations, $106, and many sundry items. The balance on hand was $198 41.

Miss Ella Cosford, the recording secretary, presented a gratifying report, in which she said: "The sixteenth annual report comes to you, perhaps, not as heavily freighted with records of wondrous successes and remarkable accomplishments as we could desire; luminous as that of recent years; but while to the observer there may appear to have been a lack of aggressive work during the year, to this we final terrible bomb into the camp of | would reply, that the soldier, though his breast may be brilliant with braveearned medals, cannot always be on the battlefield. There are many other movements quite as necessary, and though they are not attended by the sound of the bugle the accomplishment of them is of vital importance. The total paid memberships of our union s 362, of whom 42 are honorary members. Sixty members have been re-ceived during the year, but owing to removals from the city, deaths, and other unavoidable circumstances, we cannot report an increase in memberhip. The average attendance has been 80; the largest attendance at any one meeting being 230. Twenty-four regular meetings, three special and fifteen executive meetings were held. The total amount raised for all purposes was $1,757 42. During the year much atfeels as if she would like to get off tention has been given to educational work in the union, at a majority of the meetings 30 minutes having been devoted to some departmental subjects. Numbers of interesting papers were read, and each was followed by a profitable discussion. devotional exercises and brief Bible readings have been a constant source of inspiration to the members.

"The special work during the year nay be mentioned as follows: The poening of a band of hope in London West and one in East London, and a boys' club in the latter ward. As has been the habit in previous years, the ward committees put in some good practical work at the local elections, and were very successful in electing The report further referred to novements promoted during the year. he visits of Dr. Anna Shaw and Mrs.

his kingdom. FROM THE DEPARTMENTS From every department in connection with the union came reports of a very encouraging nature. The report of the committee on scientific temperance instruction in London public schools reported that the twelve schools had been visited during the year and the fact ascertained that scientific temperance instruction is given in every grade in each school. At present none of the question papers for promotion examinations have on their list the subject of temperance, with the exception of the final one. Better results would probably be obtained if the subject were made a test one in passing from grade to grade throughout entire course. If a request were sent by the union to the city inspector. Mr. Carson, the charge desired would probably be effected. The hospital committee had paid attention to their work during the year, and made weekly visits to the institution. a committee of which Mrs. W. Heaman is superintendent. Only three Sundays had been entirely devoted to the subject, and it was urged that the pledge be presented regularly for signatures. A good number of able advocates were at the service of the committee, and Annual W.C.T.U. Meeting Held had been ever willing to speak where requested. The boys are being well looked after. They give considerable trouble and greatly discourage the workers at times, but the most troublesome have been weeded out, and progress is being made. The largest attendance at the City Band of Hope was 133, the smallest 68, the largest number of teachers 23, smallest 12. In London West Mrs. W. J. Saunby has about 80 boys in the band. The average attendance has been 47 boys and teachers. One cent collections were taken up every meeting, and janitors' expenses were thus defrayed. Twelve prizes for attendance and good conduct were given and fourteen boys signed the pledge. The East London Boys' Club had 50 members on the roll, with a good attendance. The young men were stronger numerically and would soon have to secure larger quarters. The industrial school had flourished during the winter, the average attendance being 45, with 10 teach-

> THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS. The reports were received with an outburst of applause, and were adopted without discussion, Mrs. Thornley briefly touching on some of the most important steps taken in the year. In introducing the closing business of the afternoon, the president followed the example of Miss Willard, the world's president, and retained the chair. She agreed with Miss Willard that resignthis year will miss from its executive staff Mrs. Flora Carson, who for four years has acted as corresponding secretary. Mrs. Carson's resignation, on account of ill-health, was generally regretted, but in Mrs. Samuel Wright the members have a very diligent worker. Mrs. Thornley's return to the presidency was unanimous. The following are the officers.

of thanks and the benediction. THE EVENING MEETING. An open meeting was held in the First Congregational Church in the evening, when a most interesting debate was held on "Resolved, that the franchise shall not be abridged or denied on account of sex." The meeting was held in connection with the W. C. T. U. annual meeting and the county convention to be held today, and a large number of the local workers and delegates from outside places were present. Mrs. Thornley occupied the chair prior to the debate, and introduced Mrs. Evans, of this city, who delivered an address of welcome to the convention delegates. Mrs. Kerr, of Strathroy, replied, thanking the London Union for their kind words. U. A. Buchner and F. W. Daly took up the negative, and Messrs. Finlay Perrin, Rev. E. H. Sawers (Westminster) and Jared Vining the affirmative. Messrs. Wilson and Perrin led their respective sides, and were allowed fifteen minutes each. The rest of the debaters were thlowed ten minutes each.

Mr. Perrin opened the debate, and after a few introductory remarks, said the woman's franchise question would soon become paramount in political battles. In discussing the question it was thoroughly necessary to get at the root question-"What was the object of government at all?" Logically it was said that the purpose of gov ernment was to protect property and There was a higher object-an ideal object. It was to develop the highest types of men and women, and to attain this object it was necessary to have the most moral class of voters. Woman had demonstrated in the universities of this land and Europe that she was a highly intelligent being, and thoroughly capable of expressing her opinions.

Mr. W. A. Wilson took up the negative side of the debate, and was followed by Rev. E. H. Sawers, who considered it utterly amazing that such a meeting should be held in the latter part of the nineteenth century. To get at the very heart of the matter, the whole subject turned upon one pivot-"What was woman?" Was she some thing or chattel, or was she a person? There was a time when she was considered a mere chattel, but that day was now base, and she was lcoked upon as man's companion. She has responsibilities and rights to exercise, and among her responsibilities was the franchise. "What is she in the home?" asked Mr. Sawers. Wilson did not know yet, nor Mr. Buchner did not, but he hoped they would soon. Woman was the homemaker in the home; in society she was the charm: in the church she was the prime mover: in Christianizing the world she was in the front rank, and in prayer meetings she was a leading figure; but Messas. Wilson and Buchner were lawyers and did not know that (Laughter.) The women had fought their way into that position, and they would continue to fight until they were given a God-given right. Mr. U. A. Buchner did not want a new type of woman. What he wanted was the higher development of the present woman. He did not believe there was any desire on the part of the women generally to secure the franchise. There was no necessity for ance had been presented on her side; on the contrary, she had many powers not possessed by man. She could leave a husband on a dying bed without any means, while a wife has, by statute, a third interest in his estate. A wife was not bound to support her husband, the husband has to keep the wife or go to jail. Every law school, medical school and university had been thrown open to the woman, but Mr. Buchner wanted any man to try and enter a ladies' college, and see what success he would meet with. Women were protected in every way, and it was claimed that their danoling in party politics would injure their morals. Mr.Jared Vining had expected to hear some reasonable excuse offered by the tion. apologists for the injustices done to women for centuries past. It had been said there was no desire on the part of women for the franchise. There was no universal desire for Christianity, but it had come, however, and had never done any (Applause.) So long as women were denied the right to vote so long would their interests be in peril. the principles of English government that taxation and representation go hand in hand. Women were taxed on their property, and why should they not have the franchise? It was necessary for the benefit of the country's morals that woman should have the franchise. In Wyoming they had voted for years, and there was on the assertion that some women were mentally equal to men. The experience of Wyoming could not be taken, as the State had only about 20,-000 population, it contained no large cities, and there were no slums. It was proposed to introduce political strift into homes, and to allow women to go on the stump and to Parliament. The debates in Parliament, Mr. Daly held, were long enough now, but it was hard to say how it would be if the women were there. (Laughter.) Mr. Daly had twice as much to say, but was called to time by the chairman, Mr. Sayers.

This concluded the debate, and the meeting was closed with a circulation of franchise petitions, which will be presented to the Dominion Government when official signatures have been se-
