PARIS' GAYEST HOUR.

The Climax of Adventure and Excitemen is Reached on the Day of the Grand Prix.

The spirit of adventure and excite ent that has been growing and feeding upon itself throughtout the day of Grand Prix reaches its climax after the dinner hour, and finds an outlet ng the trees and Chinese lanterns of the Jardin de Paris. There you will see all Paris. It is the crest of the highest wave of pleasure that rears itself and breaks there.

You will see on that night, and only on that night, all of the most celebrated women of Paris, racing with linked arms about the asphalt pavement, which circles around the band stand. It is for them their one night of free dom in public, when they are permitted to conduct themselves as do their less prosperous sisters, when, instead of reclining in a victoria in the Bois, with eyes demurely fixed ahead of them, they can throw off restraint, and mix with all the men of Paris, and show HEAD OFFICE - - 51 Yonge-street. their diamonds, and romp and dance and chaff and laugh as they did when of $1 and upwards. they were not so famous. 'The French wells who are their escorts have cut down Chinese lanterns with their sticks and stuck the candles inside of ther on the top of their high hats with the urning tallow, and made living torche of themselves. So on they go, racing by-first a youth in evening dress, dripping with candle grease, and then a beautiful girl in a dinner gown with her silk and velvet opera cloak slipping from her shoulders—all singing to the music of the band, sweeping the people efore them, or closing in a circle around some stately dignitary, and waltzing furiously past him to preven his escape. Sometimes one party wil storm the band-stand, and size the mu sicians' instruments, while another invades the stage of the little theatre, or overpowers the woman in charge of the shooting gallery or institutes a hurdle race over the iron tables, and the wicker of title from the Jockey Club jostling tockney bookmakers and English lords to look at a little girl in a linen blouse the same circle of shining shirt-fronts person in Paris, who wears diamonds in ropes, and who rode herself into notoriety by winning a steeplechase against a field of French officers. The first is a hired dancer, who will kick off some gentleman's hat, when she wants it, and pass it round for money, and the other is a companion of princes, and has probably never been permitted to enter the Jardin de Paris before; but the are both of the same class, and when the music stops for a moment they approach each other smiling each on tion or familiarity; and the hired dancer young girl with the ropes of diamonds is in hers, compliments madame on her dancing, and madame calls the other "mademoiselle," and says, "How very warm it is!" and the circle of men around them, who are leaning on each other's shoulders and standing on benches or tables to look, smile delightedly at the spectacle. They consider it very chic, this combination. It is like a meeting between Madame Bernhardt

But the climax of the night wa d last year when the band of a hundred pieces struck buoyantly into the most reckless and impudent of marches and comic songs. "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monto Carlo." The symbals clashed, and the big guns emphasized the high notes, and the sure the musicians were of pleasing that particular audience with that parthat they could be heard defiantly pro-claiming who they were and what they had done as far as the boulevards. Even St. Louis has sent some fav-orable reports on the crop, and our ad-vices from the southwest are that the Vices from the southwest are that the vices from the southwest are that the southwest are that the vices from the southwest are that the visit and thelp from the other side at present prices. Clearances are very light. We have been a little persistent in advising our friends to sell wheat this week, and feel the same way still. Of course, we get a lot of returns from threshing that will not be favorable. In fact it will be very bad, but we put wheat up 30c on expectations, and it will be very strange if we don't get a further reaction during June.
