Locomotor Ataxia

When your nervous system becomes so thoroughly exhausted that you cannot control the movements of your legs, you have what is known as locomotor ataxia, a form of paralysis.

Mrs. T. F. Tweedie, Brighton, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with the stomach, and have always been of a nervous temperament. The death of my husband was a great shock to me, and a few months later I was prostrated by nervous trouble. Locomotor ataxia developed later, and I was in a bad condition. I took treatment from different doctors, but did not gain until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. When I had used five boxes I was so fully relieved that I was like a different person. He is accompanied on his return journey north by J. J. Roberts, of Ottawa, and J. J. Cummings, of Montreal, and the entire party will consist of seven white men and four Indians, carrying four tons of supplies and will go to Cochrane and proceed to Ungava via Frederick House and Moose River to Moose Factory where a Hudson Bay steamer has been chartered and will be awaiting the party, which will be conveyed to Rupert House, and thence to East Main River, which is in the vicinity of the discovery. It is reported that New York is also on the ground and satisfied that diamond possibilities there, are good enough to warrant the expenditure of a large sum of money in sending in men and supplies for development work. The samples brought out are said to have been very favorably passed upon by experts.

OUT GIN PILLS

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the bladder. He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and to be crushed. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try Gin Pills. I believed the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take Gin Pills, and to my surprise and joy, I passed the stone. It is the best medicine in the world, and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life." J. ALBERT LESLIE, Joliette, P. Q. Brave Sisters Save Brother

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 3.—A remarkable case of life saving has just become public. The child was Albert Harkin, aged eight years. He had been playing on the banks of the river Thames in company with his sisters, Bertha, aged fourteen, and Edna, aged twelve, when he fell in where the water was about fifteen feet deep. Bertha standing on a bridge saw this and plunged after him. She was unable to swim but managed to paddle to the shore leaving the little boy whom she could not aid. The younger sister then seized a fishing pole, which they had been using and in a last hopeless effort to save the child, cast the line at him. Providence was kind and the hook caught in his clothing, thus allowing the girls to drag him to shore, although he was almost past rescue.
