Ontario Apples in the West

Plunkett & Savage, Lethbridge, Alberta

The Ontario apples we have handled from time to time have given very poor satisfaction for the reason that they had not been properly taken care of during the growing season with respect to spraying and cultivation, as well as through not being properly packed. The only proper way to pack apples to handle to advantage is in boxes with each individual apple wrapped in paper and the box paper lined.

We have received cars of apples from a shipper in the State of Washington who has frequently offered us one hundred dollars if we could find one apple in the whole carload with a worm-hole. When we take into consideration this offer, we believe there are very few apple growers or shippers in Ontario who would be prepared to make the same offer.

The fruit trees in Washington and the States generally are far better taken care of than in Eastern Canada, and we believe if the Ontario growers and shippers intend to retain the western market, they have got to wake up and use facilities necessary for keeping their fruit clean and free from defects.
