

BOOK REVIEWS

AMERICAN UROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION.

Transactions of American Urological Association, Thirteenth Annual Meeting at Philadelphia, Penn., June, 1914. Publication Committee, Hugh Cabot, R. F. O'Neil and G. G. Smith. Printed for the Association at Riverdale Press, Brookline, Mass., 1915.

This volume contains 330 pages. There are many very able papers in it, dealing with almost every phase of the specialty of urology. We can speak well of this report. It is in keeping with the others in the series, and does credit to the association. Such reports are destined to advance the standard of those who specialize this field.

HUMAN ANATOMY.

Potter's Compend of Human Anatomy. Revised by D. Gregg Methany, M.D., L.R.C.P.E., and L.F.P.S.G., Associate in Anatomy, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. Eighth edition, with 139 illustrations; also numerous tables and 16 plates of the arteries and nerves. Philadelphia: P. Blakiston's Son and Company, 1012 Walnut Street. Price, $1.00.

This small volume, one of the quiz-compendes, has now reached the eighth edition. It may at once be said that this is an excellent small work on anatomy. It is very complete in every detail, and will prove a good book from which to review the subject. It is an excellent manual for the student to read up before an examination, and a useful one for the general practitioner to refresh his memory by on any subject he may have under consideration.
