bushel and-a-half to the stook; wheat is much the same as at home: all is grown without any manure. This farm is 200 acres in size. and there is a good stock of cattle on it; also there are splendid hay barns here, the work I have got to do here is much the same as I have been doing with you, sometimes carting, helping to milk the cattle, and such like; I have built a splendid stone wall, a foundation for a wooden shed, eighty feet long, and two feet in height, and other little jobs of mason work, since I came here, and there is more of the same kind of work laid out for me to do. Dear sir, I am well cared here, I get flesh-meat 3 times a day, tea twice, and butter in abundance. The wages I had at home would not purchase the same food that I get here, I am 14lbs heavier since I came here, tell James Castles the beef is doing the work well! I wish you to remember me to all my fellow workmen, ell them I am well, strong, and in good health. I sent a letter to Elizabeth on Saturday last, and £2 in it. I hope she has got, it, I don't mean to let her want anything she stands in need of so long as I am able to earn money, I will send her plenty, I hank God for all his mercies to us. I seen Catherine Armstrong twice since I came here, she lives 4 miles off where I am, she is well and in a good place. I had a letter from Frank Girvan a few days ago, and expect to see him in a few days. Dear sir, I wish to be remembered to your misses and family. I hope you and them are well, I will be glad to hear from you all as soon as possible, let me know how the coursing meeting got along. I get my washing done in addition to my wages, which is a great favour. Elizabeth Walker is well, and sends her kind love to your Mrs. and tamily, she is a smart girl and a good cook, she could serve in any gentleman's house at present. Please, sir, send me a few lines, and tell me all the news you can. No more at present. - I remain yours truly, are the ment of the first all are no no
