LABOR TROUBLES.

Editor World: The solution of the labor problems rests with the producers themselves. Production by employers on the one hand and employees on the other has failed to satisfy either party, the distribution of the product being the stumbling block. Common sense would indicate that the workers should co-operate and produce without the aid of employers, and so end the recurrence of strikes and lockouts.

Legislation which is supposed to enact laws for the greatest good of the greatest number is at fault in that it does not safeguard the rights of the workers. Under present conditions we are told that labor and capital (also land) are the factors in the production of wealth, yet labor is the only factor that is ignored, and capital, the production of man, alone is considered. Labor is degraded to the condition of a commodity, and the worker is above God's creation, which is idolatry.

Parliament, which grants charters to corporations (or persons individually) to engage in manufacturing or transportation, is quite right in granting such privilege to the shareholders of such corporations, but when they assume substitutes to do such manufacturing, then the legislative body which granted the charters should determine as to whether the substitutes should not be considered as partners in the industry, and as such should have a voice in the apportionment of the product. At present the employee claims the business as his very own, and the substitute (labor) has only to be obedient and accept the share which the employer chooses to give him. It is a wonder that the workers should be dissatisfied. Parliament authorizes the issuing of a substitute for money to move crops, and permits interest to be charged as if it were money. Why then, should not the substitute of the shareholder be on an equality in the apportionment of the product of the industry? If he is not, the worker's substitute for money to aid in production and so aid in relieving labor from the thralldom of employers whose arrogance is a menace to the welfare of the country.

Meanwhile, licenses should be required to be taken out by corporations or others employing labor, and in the event of any trouble with their employees, the license of the corporation or employer refusing the offices of the department of labor in settlement of any dispute, should be revoked and the cancellation of their charters should result.

A Run on Coal.

The number of tons of coal we have booked during the past two weeks for winter delivery has exceeded all our expectations. We have not on all the extra rigs available and notwithstanding this we are one week behind in our deliveries of coal for present use. To all customers who have ordered a trial order previous to booking for the winter we would say that on account of our inability to deliver before the 15th, we will, in such cases, hold our offer open to book at the $5 rate should they desire to do so and notify us. HAMILTON HAPPENINGS

Rev. Dr. Lyle Tells National Council to Leave Combat to Sterner Sex.

Hamilton, Oct. 15.—"Shun politics," was the advice Rev. Dr. Lyle, who presided at this evening's session in the lecture hall of Centenary Methodist Church, gave to the National Council of Women. His story of what the day was for him, when he hoped the women would enter the political field and let themselves be kicked about like footballs from one party to another. He also cautioned them against saying or doing anything that would cause friction with the French-Canadian, of whom he spoke in the highest terms.

Mrs. Sanford gave an address on the "International Council." Mrs. Wiloughby Cummings, Toronto, followed with an address on the coming quinquennial meeting of the International Council, Mrs. John Patterson, Toronto, also read a paper on arts and handicrafts. The session closed with a paper by Mrs. Dignam, Toronto, on the handicrafts of youth.

The closing meeting will be held tomorrow behind closed doors, when the subject of traffic in white slaves and political equality will be discussed. The new officers will also be chosen.

At this afternoon's session Professor R. Harcourt, Guelph, read a paper on the adulteration of foods. He said that there was a difference of opinion about the wholesomeness of so-called chemical preservatives used, but it was generally agreed that formaldehyde and fluoride were injurious. He regretted the extravagant claims made by manufacturers about the nutritive qualities of breakfast foods, for he said that common oatmeal, cornmeal, etc., were just as good. Nearly all meats sold in a finely comminuted state had preservatives in them. Fruits, jams, sauces, spices were also frequently adulterated.

Dr. T. C. McLaughlin, inspector for Ontario West, said the law was well carried out with reference to women and children, but some of the food factories might be closed.

Miss McNaughton, Montreal, thought the official organ of the council ought to be discontinued, but it was agreed to continue it.

At this morning's session Mrs. Hoodless, who was not satisfied with the recommendation of the committee on political equality for the sexes, tried to have the matter re-opened. Dr. Stowe-Gullen, Toronto, objected that Mrs. Hoodless was out of order, and Mrs. Hoodless had to content herself with giving a notice of motion that she would seek to have the matter re-opened Tuesday morning. Her idea is that efforts should be made to better the condition of the weaker sex rather than to seek political equality.

Mr. Goldwin Smith has the following letter in The New York Sun on the recent lynching festivals in the republic: "Lynching Bee" is the ghastly heading of a despatch recounting a gathering of 2000 American citizens for the purpose of hanging or burning a negro. The negro is lynchable, and his dignity is not really founded. But of what, when roused, he is capable, Santo Domingo knows too well.

In Jamaica the whites are immensely outnumbered by the blacks, and the sexual morality of the blacks is said to be very loose; yet we do not hear of any lynching of whites. The white women of that island.

The black footman in "Thackeray's 'Newcomers' is a type of those who used to be found in the households of the West Indian proprietors, showing, as far as I can remember, no propensity to rape.

These examples seem to suggest that antagonism of race rather than negro propensity may be the main source of the danger.

Severance of the white race from the black is general. But this intense antagonism seems limited to a country in which the blacks are emancipated slaves raised by law to political equality and social rivalry with their former masters. I have seen a black bishop dining in the premier club in London, and I have seen a white man in the hothouse of West Indian proprietors, showing, as far as I can remember, no propensity to rape.
