SCHOOL TO HELP MAKING SHELLS

Mechanical Pupils to Produce Fittings FOR MANUFACTURERS' USE
Principal Says Sixteen Lathes at Montreal Technical School Can Be Employed For This Work

Montreal, July 17.—In order to help in the work of supplying munitions for the use of the allied armies, arrangements are being made whereby the apparatus of the Montreal Technical School may be employed in turning out certain lathes attachments and instruments required for the manufacture of shells, and which are at present only obtained with difficulty in the ordinary markets.

The school's board of directors which met on Tuesday, authorized the principal, A. Macheras, to take steps to have the pupils of the mechanical section, sufficiently advanced in their course, and such graduates of the school as may be inclined to undertake this work, start immediately on the making of the instruments required by shell manufacturers.

Mr. Macheras said that he had already notified certain pupils of the decision reached and that all those qualified would be informed of the proposal. It is possible that in the ordinary course which the students take, and some remuneration will be offered the workers in view of the fact that the product of their industry will be sold to manufacturers of shells who will give their requirements.

The actual manufacture of shells in the Technical School, Mr. Macheras said, would be undesirable, for the pupils engaged in this work would have their hands and brains bent only in one direction, and the variety of practical work necessary for the mechanic's adequate training would thus be lacking. While a knowledge of the methods of shell manufacturing is very profitable for a certain time, the students would probably lose in the long run if their instructions were limited to this sort of work. Moreover, while the school has eighteen lathes adaptable to the production of attachments and instruments, measuring and verification in shell making, only six are large enough for the actual production of shell manufacture.

Another advantage in pursuing the course which has been decided on will reside in the fact that if some of the small fittings are spotted in the making, as always occurs to a certain extent in the work done by learners, these can be scrapped without serious loss, whereas inaccuracy in the production of costly shells would involve losses of a greater nature.

Mr. Macheras expects that the pupils will be very glad to have the opportunity of doing this work. Only those of the mechanical section, of course, will be given the chance.

"Why, I thought it was left to you by your rich uncle?"

"So it was, but I had hard work to get it away from the lawyers."

RASPBERRY LORE

(By Peter McArthur)
The meaneast man in Canada has been discovered but I dare not give you his name or tell you where he lives for like all the mean men I know he is very respectable, and moreover he is well off and for that reason his neighbors look up to him. It would never do to cast a slur on so estimable a citizen, but one tell you what he does. He hires the children in the neighborhood to pick raspberries for him and it is part of the bargain that they must whistle all the time they are in the berry patch. As he is always within hearing he is able in this way to make sure that they do not eat any of the delicious berries they are picking. Now what do you think of a man like that?

I wouldn't consider this man so mean had it not been that for some time past I have been trying to determine the origin of the name "Raspberry." The explanation given in the big dictionaries is perfectly absurd. "Rasp—with reference to its rough outside—looking like a rasp." "What nonsense! The appearance of a raspberry might remind one of a cluster of rubies but never of a blacksmith's rasp. But philology, or the science of words, is a mere matter of guess-work in many cases, so I feel quite at liberty to guess at the origin of the name raspberry myself.

What does a healthy boy do when he discovers that raspberries are ripe? Any one can answer that. He comes knocking towards the house yelling "Rah! Rah! rah!" The rasp-berries are ripe. "Rah! rah!" an abbreviated cheer, expressive of joy. Hence raspberry is the berry that makes the small boy cheer because of the joy he feels. Do I hear any objection to that? Of course not. Anyone can see that that is the true explanation. Let the makers of dictionaries take note.

And now that I am at it I may as well set the learned philologists right on another point that has to do with the raspberry. They seem unable to decide on the exact origin of the word "jam" as used in raspberry jam. Once more I am amazed at their blindness. Also once more I get a chance to show my superiority to that? Of course not. Anyone can see that that is the true explanation. Let the makers of dictionaries take note.

Now can't you see why I consider him who makes the small boy whistle when picking raspberries the nearest man in Canada? The berry itself and its chief product both take their names from the love for them shown by the small boy. If you do not believe in my derivations just try any healthy boy with ripe raspberries and see how he acts. He will yell "Rah" and "Yum, yum!" he is not a normal boy.

Test.
"At last," said the young woman, "I am sure that I have made my commencement essay properly profound and dignified."

"How do you know?"
"I read it to father and he didn't understand a word of it."

Newred—"Did you spend so much money as this before I married you?"

Mrs. Newred—"Why, yes."

Newred—"Then bless me if I can understand why your father went on when I took you away from him."

THE BEST QUALITY AT A REASONABLE PRICE

It Counts Against You

The fact that a man doesn't carry a watch counts against him.

True, not every man who carries a watch is prompt, energetic, considerate of other's time and valuing his own. But possession of a watch tends to develop such qualities, and failure to carry a good watch is accepted as evidence that a man is lacking in qualities essential for success.

Don't put a handicap on your chances for business and social advancement. Buy a good watch today at Sharpe's.
