

WOMAN FRIES EGGS TO TRAIL MARINO

Mrs. Nicoletti, Police Aid, Says He Promised Return of Boy Afterward Slain.

New York, June 20.—How a police-woman fried eggs in the Varotta home to throw an atmosphere of domesticity about her was told by Mrs. Rao Nicoletti in describing her man hunt for the slayers of five-year-old Giuseppe Varotta, when she took the stand at the trial of Antonio Marino of 840 East Thirtieth street for the murder on June 8, 1921, of the kidnapped boy.

Mrs. Nicoletti told of seeing Marino watch the Varotta house from her apartment across the street. At other times, she said, she saw him joined by Santo Cusano, who is awaiting trial as one of the boy's murderers. She said they watched all comers to the Varotta home, standing the while in front of a shoe repair shop.

She was assigned to the case on May 29, 1921, Mrs. Nicoletti said, and passed May 29 and May 30 at the Varotta home. She told of discussing the amount of the ransom with Marino and of his promise to persuade "the gang" to bring little Giuseppe back. The policewoman testified after Mrs. Varotta finished her testimony.

Roberto Rafasetti, already convicted in the case was not brought down from the Sing Sing death house to testify for the prosecution. Judge Alfred J. Talley adjourned court early to fill a speaking engagement in Elizabeth, N. J.

"Mrs. Marino and Marino and two of their children came to the Varotta home on Decoration Day to ask who I was," said Mrs. Nicoletti. "I was frying eggs at the time and they were bold I was a relative. Then the wife and children left and Marino went into the front room, where I joined him later, and we began to talk about the kidnapping."

"Marino said it was awful, and I asked him to help me the boy back. He said that he would, but he wanted to know particularly what had been done with the Black Hand letters. I asked Mr. Varotta, who said they had been destroyed. Marino said:—

"Well that's one good thing, anyway."

"I told him the $2,500 ransom demanded was a lot of money, but he said that $50 or $600 which I was suggesting as a ransom was not much money in a kidnapping case. He said a mistake had been made in reporting the matter to the police. In reply to my entreaties he said:—

"I'll go out and speak to the gang and try to get the boy back."

"Then he told us not to worry. He said he boy was being taken care of and was playing with other children."

"On June 1 I went to telephone to report to headquarters I was trailed by Cusano from the time I left the house until got back again."

O cross-examination Mrs. Nicoletti was unable to answer many questions of Robert L. Levison, counsel for defense. He asked her if her memory was bad. She replied that she had lost a memory book about three months ago in which she had jotted down many of the details of her experience while trying to capture the Varotta boy's kidnappers.

SHOWER OF BRICKS ROUTS BRIDE PARTY

Bridegroom, Who May Lose Eye, Accuses Brothers and Cousin of His First Wife.

New York, June 20.—Details of the reception which Isadore Fineberg of 87 Rutgers street, Manhattan, and his wife, formerly Miss Frances Harris of Jamaica, received when they went to Julius Levy's restaurant at 48 Ocean Place, Coney Island, for a wedding dinner were revealed in Coney Island court when Moe, Nathan and Henry Mark, Isadore's brothers, and Abraham Mark, a cousin of theirs, were arraigned on charges of felonious assault.

Moe, Nathan and Abraham live at 45 Hough Place, Coney Island, formerly the home of Fineberg, who was married to a sister of the Mark brothers. Two died about two months ago. Fineberg went to Manhattan to live, and the Mark boys began to cause trouble and to be married to Miss Harris. Henry Mark, who lives in 111 Eldridge street, Manhattan, is said to have been first of the family to receive word of approaching nuptials.

The wedding was performed and the bride party set out in automobiles for the restaurant. The Mark brothers were standing on the curb in front of the restaurant, and began upbraiding the bride and Fineberg stepped out and asked his bride to alight. Fineberg's friends arrived in other autos a few minutes later.

The Mark brothers, it is alleged, halted the progress of the bride party into the restaurant, and began upbraiding Fineberg for getting married so soon after the death of their sister. Then a shower of bricks descended. The bride and Fineberg were struck down and Fineberg fell as a brick hit him in the left eye. Fineberg's friends rescued the bride and bridegroom and fled back to Manhattan in an automobile before the police arrived.

Fineberg, who is in the Eye and Ear Hospital, Manhattan, finally made a complaint and detectives were assigned to the case.

It is said that Fineberg has lost the sight of his left eye. The defendants admitted upbraiding Fineberg but denied knowing who threw the bricks. They were held in $1,500 bail each for examination on June 28. The bride is now said to be with friends in Jamaica.

WOMEN OPPOSE HIGH CAR STEPS

New York, June 20.—Lowering of the running boards of the open cars of the Brooklyn City Railway Company was urged at a hearing before the Transit Commission by a delegation of the League of Women Voters of the Fourth Assembly District, Brooklyn, headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Alexander. Mrs. Alexander described the present running boards as altogether too high and as "indecent, hazardous and annoying."

A resolution adopted by the League of Women Voters of that district and presented to the commission described the high running boards as "injurious to the life, health and limb of women and children."

Secretary James B. Walker, presiding, said the commission and its predecessors had made repeated efforts to get rid of that type of car. "But, unfortunately," he added, "many of the companies owned a large number of these running board cars in fairly serviceable condition and it was not felt that it was just to ask the companies to scrap them and buy a lot of new cars."

S. Olney, counsel of the company, said it would be impossible to lower the running boards and that an attempt to mix in cars of the "hobble-skirt" type would cut down seating, as the open cars have more seats than the closed cars. "It is a question of whether you want seats or low running boards," he added.

"We want both," said Mrs. Alexander.

Wants Husband Arrested for Fleeting With Eighteen-Year-Old Girl.

Xenia, Ohio, June 20.—A warrant for arrest on a desertion charge was filed against the Rev. W. W. Culp, thirty-five, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Spring Valley, near here, who eloped with Miss Esther Hughes, an eighteen-year-old music teacher who was boarding at his home. Mrs. Culp, with their children, the youngest being a month-old twin, signed the warrant.

A Dayton automobile company, which sold Culp a machine which a mortgage is outstanding, is reported ready to file a warrant for his arrest on the charge of moving mortgaged property without consent. Culp's congregation subscribed much of the money to buy the automobile.

A group photograph was taken. Mr. and Mrs. Waterbury's son, David, his wife and daughter came from New York to be present at the celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Purdy, 199 Princess street, were receiving yesterday the congratulations of their friends on the anniversary of their wedding. They had many reminders that their friends had not forgotten the day. M. M. O. Purdy, New York, their son, arrived home yesterday accompanied by his wife.

WIFE TO GET DIVORCE SOON UNDER "ENOCH ARDEN" LAW

White Plains, N. Y., June 20.—Nester F. Bonardel of 12 Garden street, New Rochelle must make known his whereabouts within the next six weeks or Justice A. H. F. Seeger, in the supreme court, here, will grant an "Enoch Arden" divorce to his wife, who says she has not seen nor heard from her husband for more than five years.

Under the recent act of legislation she was entitled to a divorce if she cannot locate him.

The Bonardels were married in New Rochelle on June 3, 1908. They have no children. On January 1, 1910, two years later, Mrs. Bonardel says, her husband left her and never came back.

DOG AND GAMES HIS RIVALS.

Stamford, Conn., June 20.—Thomas C. Asheton told Referee Reed who is hearing contested divorce in Bridgeport, that all the romance of his Southern bride was killed by his wife's aversion to children and her love for a toy dog. His wife, Dorothy Dean Asheton of Strawberry Hill, Stamford, and her mother were in court, but she did not take the stand.

Asheton's complaint is based on cruelty. He is a lover of horses and has figured as judge in many horse shows. After their marriage in 1914, the couple went to Virginia, where the husband had a large estate.

His wife did not like to live there, he said, and in three weeks returned to her home in Stamford. She returned to him in 1915, but afterwards left him on two occasions, he said. He eventually joined her in Stamford and they lived on his mother-in-law's estate.

He described his wife's preference for the company of her relatives, for golf at the West-Burn Country Club, and tennis matches rather than remaining at home to welcome him at evening and testified these pleasures caused her to keep such late hours that he wouldn't see her in the morning and was obliged to get his own breakfast. He said that once she took offense at a remark and struck him with her request.
