GOMPERS VISITS HIS OLD HOME IN LONDON

London, Sept. 6.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, while here has visited his boyhood home where he was born sixty-eight years ago. It was an event of great importance in the little section of East London known as Spitalgate. He was accompanied on the journey to Port Street by several members of the American labor mission.

"The old street has not changed much," he said as he stood in front of the house which had been his home for many years. "That old public house on the corner looks exactly as it did when I used to listen to the crowd of old men talking about politics there in the evening when I was a mere slip of boy."

A woman of over eighty years, wearing a long gray shawl, hobbled up, looking at the stranger a moment, and then asked:

"I know you, Sam Gompers," she said. "Many's the time I gave you a piece of my mind when you used to live here, pointing to the house where he was born. The old woman had not seen him since he left London as a youthful apprentice cigar-maker. He spent some minutes talking over old times with her, asking about various boyhood playmates, most of whom have been dead long since."

Mr. Gompers spent a very happy half hour in the midst of the crowd of men, women and children, many of them grandchildren and even great-grandchildren of persons whom he remembered as neighbors of his father and mother.

Boston Wins First Game In World's Series

Comiskey Park, Chicago, Sept. 5.—Boston Red Sox won the opening game of the 1918 world series here today, defeating the Chicago Nationals 1 to 0, in a game marked principally by airtight pitching. The winning run resulted from the first of Vaughn's bases on balls, the slip of the Chicago pitcher being followed by two shap singles by Whitman and McInnis, Shean scoring on the second hit with the only run of the game.

The Cubs had only two good openings for runs but both of them came with two men out. In the first instance Meikle was passed and Pick, Chicago's new second baseman was unequal to the task of driving in the runs. In the second instance Deal raised the hopes of the Chicago "fans" by driving a long hit to left but it fell foul and his next attempt was captured by Whitman. The game lacked almost all spectacular features which usually accompany a world series contest, but this had no effect on the quality of play, which was worthy of champion teams of the major leagues.

handers, Vaughn and Ruth, gave the Red Sox little chance for stunts and as a consequence the crowd had almost no opportunity to cheer.
