Model Oil Pool in National Museum, Washington
Tar Island Co's. Well in Peace River True to Form

At 857 feet, Tar Island Oil & Gas Co., Limited, of Peace River, struck the first gas shown above. The flow was 1,500,000 cu. ft. of gas per day.

At 960 feet they struck seventy feet of oil sands that showed, on a balling test conducted in the McArthur well across the river, a pumping proposition of 22-30 barrels of oil a day.

At 1,125 feet is a second gas strata corresponding to the second gas strata in the model well above. This second gas has a daily capacity of 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 cu. ft. of WET GAS.

W. J. Cole, a driller with years of experience in the Persian, Mexican and Pennsylvania fields, says big oil will be struck a short distance below this second gas strata. In view of the model, pool above, and the results already obtained, the driller's prediction seems most reasonable.

Tar Island Oil & Gas Co., Limited, has already obtained a most valuable showing. It has been financed entirely up to the present by the directors and a small group of friends. Additional working capital is now needed to clinch the success they feel is but a few hundred feet away and provide ample working capital to develop their large holdings.

It is still a speculation, necessarily so. But when one considers the results already obtained, the vast sums being spent in Peace River by other great companies, the widespread evidences that the oil is there, it must strike one as one of the most attractive speculations in years.

Every Canadian should have some stake, however small, in that great Peace River country. And we strongly urge you to get your stock at once, as news may come through any day that will make a big difference in the price of these shares.
