LIAM HOTEL arbor, opposite Bos, ats. Furnished is at table; American

TELS.

HOTEL HERTY CO. LTD

ds, Manager. FFERIN N, N. B.

ATES & CO.

HOUSE d Princess Str

N. N. B.

HOTEL Than Ever. St. John, N. B.

TEL CO. LTD.

LIQUORS.

ed 1878.

LIVAN & CO.

HORSE CELLAR VHISKEY. TEUR SCOTCH

BASS ALE

CQUIRE.

E LIQUORS.

WORKS, LTD.

ERING

St. John, N. B.

LLIAMSON

ND ENGINEER

ST. JOHN, N. B.

VERS 4

MY & CO.

esidence M-1724-11

John, N. B.

truments and Mows

J. BREEN. Vest 'Phone

DIVER.

NTS.

MACHINISTS. ss Castings,

EE LAGER BEER NAC BRANDIES. -46 Dock Street, 839.

Film corporation.

CONDITIONS GOVERNING THE CONTEST.

The price of $10,000 will be non by the man, woman, or child who writes the most acceptable solution of the mystery, from which the last two reels of motion picture drama will be made and the last two chapters of the story written by Harold MacGrath.

MacGrath.

Solutions may be sent to the Thanhouser Film corporation, either at Chicago or New York, any time up to midnight, Jan. 14. This allows several weeks after the last chapter has been published.

A board of three judges will determine which of the many solutions received is the most acceptable. The judges are to be Harold MacGrath, Lloyd Lonergan, and Miss Mae Tinee. The judgment of ethic board will be absolute and final. Nothing

$10,000 FOR ONE HUNDRED WORDS.

Stanley Hargreave, millionaire, after a miraculous escape from the den of the gang of brilliant thieves known as the Black Hundred, lives the life of a recidentally meets Braine, londer of the Black Hundred. Rowing Braine will try to get him, he escapes from his own home by a balloon. Before escaping he writes a letter to the girle school where eighteen years before he mysteriously left on the doorstep his baby daughter, Florence Gray. That day Hargreave also fraws $1,000,000 from the bank, but it is reported that this dropped into the sea when the balloon he escaped in was pusefured.

Propyright: 1914: By Harold MacGrath.)
CHAPTER XIV.
NORTON MAKES A DISCOVERY.
ERHAPS the most amusing phase of the secret agent's discomfiture was the fact that neither Jones nor Florence had the least idea what had happened in the summer house nor that anything had happened. Florence regretted a hundred times during the evening that she had not gone out to the summer house. It might really have been her father. Her regret grew so deep in her that just before going to bed she confessed to Jones.

"You received a letter of that sort and did not show it to me?" said Jones, astonished.

"No; I warned you never to act upon them without first consulting me. And we might have made a capture! My child, always show me these things. I will advise you whether to tear them up or not."

"Jones, I believe you are going a little too far," said Florence haughtily. "It might have been from my father."

"Never in this wide world, Miss Florence. Still, I beg your pardon for raising my voice. What I do and have done is only for your own sake. There are two things I wish to impress upon your mind before I go. This can be made a comedy & a terrible tragedy. You have already had a taste of the latter; and each time you escaped because God was good to us. But He is rarely kind to thoughtless people. They have to look out for themselves. I am acting upder orders; always remember that."

"Forgive me; I acted wrongly. But I'm so weary and tired of this eternal suspicion of everybody and everything. Can't I go somewhere, some place where I can have rest?"

"If I thought for a single moment it was possible to take you thousands of miles from this spot, it would be done this very night. But this is our fortress. So far it has been impregnable. The police are watching it; and that prevents a general assault by the scoundrels. If we tried to leave we would be followed; and they play that game exceedingly well. Now, good-night. We'll have you ent cit all this doubt and suspicion one of these days. There will not be any past; that will be lopped off as you'd lop a limb from a trea."

"Please let it be quick. I want to see my father."

Jone's eyes sparkled. "And you have my word that he wants to see you. But more I ware not tell you."

"Do you think he would object to Mr. Nor-lon?" she asked, studying the reg.

"Ta what capacity?" he countered, forcing her hand.

her hand.

"An—as a husband?" bravely.

Jones in his turn studied the patterns in the rug. "It is only natural for a father to look high for his daughter's husband. But, after all-an honest man is worth as much as anything I know of. And Norton is honest and loyal and brave."

"Thank you, Jones. I intend to marry him when the time comes; so you may as well prepare father for this eventuality."

"There is an old stage—"

But she interrupted him. "If you have a the water front and succeeds in dropping the box into the sea.

Countess Oign causes an estragement between Norton and Florence.

Accomplices of Braine hidnap Florence while she is shopping and hurry her off to sea. She leaps overboard and is gleked up in a dased condition by finherman. The Black Hundred locate her and Braine, disguised as her father, takes her back to sea with him. Florence sets fire to the host and is resuced by a ship on which Norton has been shanghaied. Norton and Florence, safely ashere and with no longer any misunderstanding between them, take the train for home. The train is wrecked and the Black Hundred carry the injured Florence to a deserted hut. Norton, who triets to reness her, is tied to the railroad tracks. Florence saves him and finally Jones comes to the rescue of both.

Concealed above the rendezvous of the Black Hundred, a man learns of the receis by a salior and of the subsequent return to the bottom of the sea, and he quickly communicates the fact to Jones. A duplicate box is planted and later secured by the band, but before its contents are examined the box mysteriously disappears.

Oving to the falling off of contributions.

disappears.

Owing to the falling off of contributions to the parent organization in Russia, an agent arrives and assumes the leadership of the American branch of the Hlack Hundred. Through the countraance of the counters, the new head is thoroughly humiliated. Brains pursues his own plans pending restoration to nover.

new adage, Jones, I shouldn't mind hearing it. But I'm only just out of school, where old adages are served from soup to pudding. Good-night."

And Jones went to the rear of the house, chuckling.

In the passing it might well be observed that the Hargreave house had a remarkable menage. There was a gardener, a cook, and a maid; and the three of them reported to Jones each night before going to bed. They were all three detectives from one of the greatest organizations in America.

Finding themselves unable to lure Florence away from the environs of the Hargreave home, the Black Hundred set some new machinery in motion. They proposed to rid the house of every one in it by a perfectly logical device. But the first step in this new move was going to be extremely delicate and risky. It was no small adventure to enter the Hargreave home; and yet this must be done. So finally "Spider" Beggs was selected for the work. The man could practically walk ever crockery without causing a sound; he could climb a house by the window ledges; and he could hold his breath like those professional tank swimmers.

tank swimmers.

Three or four nights after the Paroff fin Jones started the rounds, putting out the lights. He left the one in the hall till the last, for it was his habit, after having turned off that light, to stand by the door for several minutes watching. One never could be to it was his nabit, sitter having turned of that light, to stand by the door for several minutes, watching. One never could tell.

On the other hand, "Spider" Beggs never approached a house till an hour after the lights went out. Persons were likely to move about for some minutes later; they might want something to eat, a drink of water. So he remained hidden behind the summer house till long after midnight. When at last he felt assured that all in the Hargreave house were asleep, he moved out cautiously. Both his future and his pocketbook depended upon the success of this venture. It took him ten minutes to crawl from the summer house to the veranda, and to have detected this approach Jones, had he been watching, would have needed a searchlight. Beggs hugged the lattice work for another ten minutes and then drew himself up and wriggled to one of the windows. Here was an operation that needed all his art and skill: to lift this window without sound. But he was an old fand and windows with ordinary locks were playthings under his deft touch. He raised the window, stepped over the still into the library, and crouched down. He did not close the window; house thieves never do. They leave windows and doors open, because sooner or later they have got to make their escape that way.

Presently he stood up, flashed his torch.

sooner or later they have got to make their escape that way.

Presently he stood up, flashed his torch, found the library shelves, and tiptoed-toward them. He then selected three or four volumes, opened them at random and laid neat packages of money between the leaves. It was not real money, but only a bank clerk could have told you that. This done, he moved toward the window again.

"Stop!" said Jones quietly.

"Spider" Beggs gasped, it was so unexpected; but at the same time almost instinctively he plunged headlong through the window, and the bullet which followed snipped

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY MACGRATH

a lock of his hair. He threw himself off the veranda and scurried across the lawn, signag fashion. But no more bullets followed.

Jones turned on the lights and investigated the room, but he could not find anything disturbed, and naturally came to the conclusion that the intruder had been interrupted before he had begun his work. He turned off the lights and sat up the major portion of the night. Nothing more happened. Florence came down, but he sent her back to bed, explaining that some one had attempted to enter the house and he had taken a shot at him.

him.

"Spider" Beggs had a letter to write.
He was in high feathers. He had tackled a difficult job and had come away without a scratch. But he had the misfortune to write his letter to the secret service officials in a hotel often frequented by Norton. And

"Yes, Mr. Hargreave had it built several years ago. I don't know what his idea was; possibly he anticipated an event like this. You and your men will find entrance by fais method. It can be done without exciting the suspicions of the watchers."

"Looks as if my yarn wasn't going to be delayed so long after all. Jones, you ought to have been in the secret service yourself,"

Jones smiled and shrugged. "I am perfectly satisfied with my lot—or would be if the Black Hundred could be wiped out of

"I'll see the secret service people at once.
I stand in well with them all." "And good luck to you. We'll need good

"Then I pass. I know you well enough.

If you've made up your mind not to talk a man couldn't get anything out of you with a can-opener. And that's why we trust you, my boy. Don't forget the telephone."

"I shan't. So long."

That same night Braine paid the Russian woman a brief visit.

"I think that here's waere we go forward.

The secret service will raid the house to-

The secret service will raid the house to-morrow and then for a few days we'll roam about as we bally please. I'm hanged if I don't have every plank tora up and all the walls pulled down. More and more I'm con-wans runed down. More and more in con-vinced that the money is in faat house."

"Don't be too confident," warned Olga.
"So many times have we been tripped up when everything seemed in our hands. The house should be guarded but not entered for

"H'm. Complimentary?"

"No; just ordinary everyday love."

"Ah, Olga, why the deuce must you go and fall in love with a bundle of assess like myself? Ashes and bitter ashes, too. Sometimes I regret. But the regretting only seems to make me all the more savage. What opium and dope are to other men, danger and excitement are to me. It is not written that I shall die in bed. I hare told you that aiready. There is no other womannow. And I do love you after a fassion, as a man loves a comrade. Wait till this dancing bout is over and I may talk otherwise. And now I am going to a reception. I am going to shake hands and hobnob with the clite—beautiful word! And while I bow and smirk and crack witticisms, I and the devit will be chucking in our sleeves. But this I'll tell you, while there's a drop of thood In my veins, a breata in my body, I'll stick to this fight if only to prove that I'm not a quitter."

He caught her suddenly in his arms, kissed her, ran lightly to the door, and was gone before she spuld recover from her astonish-

The affair went smoofaly, without a hitch.

Norton and his men gained the honse through the tunnel without attracting the least attention. The Black Hundred, watching the front and rear of the house, never dreamed that there existed another mode of entrance or, that there was a secret whilmst room.

that there existed another mode of entrance or that there was a secret cabinet room. Half an hour later the head of the secret service, accompanied by his men, together with "Sp'der" Beggs, who was in high feather over his success, arrived, demanded admittance, and went at the fount of the business at once.

"Your name is Jones," began the chief.
The butler nodical, though his face arrived.

The butler nodded, though his face evinced no little bewilderment at the appearance of these men.

"What is it you wish, sir?"

"I am from the secret service and I have it from a pretty good source that there is counterfeit money hidden in this house. More than that, I can put my hand on the very place it is hidden."

"That is impossible, sir," declared Jones

"I'm an old hand, Mr. Jones. It will not do you a bit of good to put on that bold front." Beggs smiled. How was he to know that this was a comedy set especially for his

"I should like to see that money," said

"Come with me," said the secret services man. "Where's the library?"

"Beyond that door, sir."

The chief, beckoning to his men, entered the library, went directly to a certain shelf, extracted three volumes, and there lay the money in three neat packages.

"Good heavened," canned Jones.

"Good heavens!" gasped Jones.
"I shall have to request you and the family to accompany me to the station."
"But it is all utterly impossible, sir! I know nothing of that money, nor how it got there. It's a plot. I declare on my oath, sir, that I am innocent, that Miss Florence and her companion know nothing about it."

"You will have to tell all that to the federal judge, sir. My duty is to take you all ble of taking care of ourselves."

to the station. It would be just as well not to say anything more, sir." " Very well; but some one shall smart for

He led his prisoners away directly.

Norton and his men had to wait far into the night. The Black Hundred did not intend to make any mistake this time by a hasty move. At quarter after 10 they descended. Braine was not with them. This was due to the urgent request of Olga, who still had her doubts. The men rioted about it in my bones that something will go wrong to the form of the properties. They talked freely, however, and fine dietarches her benefit of the printing amining floors and walls, opening books, pulling out drawers, but they found nothing. They talked freely, however, and fine dietarches her benefit of the printing that the printing the printing the printing of the printing the pri plant, which had so long defied discovery, was in the cellar of the house occupied by the Black Hundred. Norton and his men And the reporter promised himself a good front page story without in any way con-

> Events came to pass as they expected. The trailing was not the easiest thing. Norton knew about where the building was, but he could not go to it directly. He was quite confident that its entrance was identical with he had been flung that memorable day when flicting with his promises to Jones.

he had been shanghaied.

When they reached the building he warned the men to hug the wall to the stairs. The trap yawned, but no one was hurt. They scampered up the stairs like a lot of eager boys; broke the door in-to find the weird executive chamber dark and empty and an acrid smoke in their postrils. This latter grew stifling as they blundered about in the dark. By luck Norton found the exit and called to the men to follow. They saw Beggs at the top of the stairway and called out to him to surrender. He held up his hands and the stairs collapsed. Real fire burst out and Norton and his companion had

The fire was put out finally, but there was nothing in the ruins to prove that there had been a counterfeiting den there. There was, however, at least one consoling feature: is the future the Black Hundred would have to hold their star-chambers elsewhere. It was checkmate: or, rather, it was a so Jim, on finishing his own letter, blotted it and easually glanced at the blotter. A single word caugat his gye. Being an alert newspaper man, always on the hunt for stories, he examined the blotter with care. It was an easy matter for him to read writing backward, having fooled away many an hour in the composing rooms. The word which and awakened the reportorial sense in him was "counterfeit." He held the blotter toward the mirror and read enough to satisfy himself that the Black Hundred had become active once more. And this was one of the best ideas they had yet conceived.

Hargreave had always been something of Jim, on finishing his own letter, blotted of the best ideas they had yet conceived.

Hargreave had always been something of a mystery to his neighbors. Where he had lived in other days was unknown: neither had any one the remotest idea from what source his riches had been obtained. And nothing was known of Jones or the daughter. It was a very shrewd method of clearing every one out of the house and leaving it to be examined at leisure. And he had fallen upon this thing; he, Norton, all because his tailor had written him a sharp note about his bill and he had been provoked to reply in kind! Counterfeit money. There was quite a flurry these days over certain issues of spurious paper. It was so good that only of spurious paper. It was so good that only experts could detect it. There were two plates, one for ten and another for twenty. For a while he was pulled between duty and love. Well, it would only add another interesting chaper to the general story when he published it. He started out to Riverdale to acquaint Jones with the discovery "Humph!" said Jones; "not a bad idea this. So that's what the sneak was doing here last night. I've been wondering and

He went through the books and at length came across the three volumes. These held a thousand in excellent counterfeit.

a thousand in excellent counterfeit.

"Mighty good work that. What are you going to do?" asked the reporter.

Jones rubbed his chin reflectively. "How long may a counterfeiter be sent up?"

"Anywhere from ten to twenty years."

"That will serve. My boy, this time we'll report the My Block Hyndred right in his go and take Mr. Black Hundred right in his cubby hole."

"You know where it is?"

"You know where it is?"

"Every nook and corner of it. Now you go at once to the chief of the local branch of the secret service and put the matter to him frankly. I, Florence, Susan, and the rest of us must be arrested. The wretches must believe that the house is empty. They'll rove about fruitlessly and will return to fueir den to report the success of the coup. All the while you and some detectives will be in hiding upstairs, dictagraph and all that. When the time comes you will follow. This will not reach the heads, perhaps, but it will demoralize the organization in such it will demoralize toe organization in such a way as to make it helpless for several months to come. There is a tunnel from the stables to this house."

and told him lots of tales that never saw light on the printed page. The reporter went directly to the point of his story, without elaboration, and foe chief smiled and handed him the original letter. counterfeiters for months and they are clever counterfeiters for months and they are clever beyond words. I've never been able to get anywhere near their presses. And for a mo-ment I thought this note was from a squealer. I've a dozen men scouring the country. They find fae bogus notes, but never the men who pass them. You see, it's new stuff. I know what all the old timers are at; but none of them has had a hand in this issue. Some foreigners, I take it, under the leadership of a man I'd very much like to know. Now, what's your scheme?"

Jim outlined it briefly. "It all depends," said the chief, "upon the fact that they will be impatient. If they have the ability to wait, we lose. But we can afford to risk the chance. The man we can anora to risk the chance. The man wan wrote this letter is not a counterfeiter. He's an old yeggman. We haven't heard anything of him lately. We tried to corner him on a postoffice job, but he slipped by. He may be a stool. Anyhow, I'll draw him

'There'll be some excitement." "We're used to that; you, too. All we've got to do is to locate this man Beggs. Taere are signs of spite in this letter. Very well

"I'm not at liberty to tell just yet. It's a strange game; half political, half blackm It's a pretty strong organization. But if they're back of this counterfeiting, there's a fine chance of landing them all."

Here the chief's assistant came in. "Got to the home if you'll promise him immunity Tell him he shall have immunity on the word of the caief. But also say that he must come to see me in person."

"All right, sir." "I don't believe it would be wise for Beggs to see me here. I gave him a good send-off—Sing Sing—five years ago. He may recollect," said Norton. "Suit yourself about that. Only, keep into communication with me by telephone and I'll tip you off as to when the raid shall take place. Lucky you came in. I should have nonestly gone there and arrested innocent people, and they would have had a devil of a time explaining. It would have taken them at least a week to clear them-selves. That would leave the house empty

Norton did not reply, but he put fae blotter away carefully. There was no getting away from the fact, but the god of luck was with

"Do you know what's back of it all?" "I can't tell you any more than I have,"

is cold. I'm beginning to see traps every-stick our neads inside the Hargreave house till we are dead certain that it is absolutely Paroff will not dare tell how he was flimown skin is to say that we are fully capanote like that! Florence would have recog-nized—and no doubt did—a palpable attempt this outrage." to play an old game twice."

"How does she act toward you?"

"Yet what?"

"I thought her an ordinary school girl, and yet every once in awhile she makes what you billiard players call a professional not shut the door in my face, I ask nothing more. But do you want my opinion? I feel it in my bones that something will go wrong cried Braine impatiently. "The secret service has the warning; they will find the green stuff, and Jones & Co. will mog off to the police station. And there'll be a week of red tape before fney are turned loose again. They'll dig into Hargreave's finances and all that. We'll have all the security in the world

"It's only the way I feel. There is something uncanny in the regularity of that girl's

"Ah, but we're not after her this time; it's the whole family."

'Everybody in the house will be under

"And you can trust Reggs?" "His life is in the hollow of my hand.

You can always trust a man when you hold the rope that's around his neck." Still the frown did not leave Olga's brow. With all her soul she longed to be out of this tangle. It had all looked so easy at the start; yet here they were, weeks later, no further forward than at the beginning, and added to this they had paid much in lives and money. Well, if she would be fool enough to love this man she must abide with the consequences. She wanted him all by herself, out of danger, in a far country. He might tire, but she knew in her heart that she never as might be, her love was honest enough and unswerving, though it was not gilded by the pleasant fancies of youth.

"Of what are you thinking?" he asked when he concluded that the pause had been would. This was her one great passion, and while her mode of living was not as nonest

Mee and Wem oth surfaces. Be its, to fit the fo ards. Oiled Cla amp Blankets. R ling in Rubber.

Y FOX CO. LIA

.JOHN, N. B.