

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

CASTORIA

Your Friend, the Physician.

The history of all medicines carries with it the story of battles against popular beliefs; fights against prejudice; even differences of opinion among scientists and men devoting their lives to research work; laboring always for the betterment of mankind. This information is at the hand of all physicians. He is with you at a moment's call be the trouble trifling or great. He is your friend, your household counselor. He is the one to whom you can always look for advice even though it might not be a case of sickness. He is not just a doctor. He is a student to his last and final cell. His patients are his family and to him one is little less than being one of his own flesh and blood.

Believe him when he tells you—as he will—that Fletcher's Castoria has never harmed the slightest babe, and that it is a good thing to keep in the house. He knows.

CHIEF FINLEY'S TESTIMONY

To the Editor of The Standard: Sir:—The publication of photos and portions of a letter addressed by William F. Finley, Chief of Police, Fredericton, to Donald Fraser, in both morning and evening papers of this date, must have caused no small amusement to their readers.

I am not disposed to inflict my personal opinions upon those who are to participate in deciding what is to be on the 10th inst. but I am disposed to resent any attempt to foist the opinion or evidence of Mr. Finley upon the public with the idea that the same is of any value in assisting us to render an honest decision on the 10th.

The photograph stimulates the memory and the statement affords an opportunity for analyzing Mr. Finley's capacity for assisting anyone in arriving at an honest decision. If we are to be accountable before the judgment bar of God, for the manner in which we vote on the 10th, as we will no doubt be held for our every action on earth, it appears to me that Mr. Finley was expressing himself to someone who was not thoroughly acquainted with Mr. Finley's idea of responsibility.

Mr. Finley will be no more accountable than he was when testifying before Commissioner Chandler under oath in the case of investigation ordered by the Provincial Government.

Referring to what, what did his evidence weigh at that time? This and other slight remembrances of Mr. Finley's capacity for doing things, does not impress the writer at least, with the idea that he is at all qualified to teach anyone how to render an honest decision on the 10th.

I say with this knowledge still and let the voters act according to their own and sufficiently intelligent ideas, in deciding what they want, as they are the ones who will be responsible for their acts. Why did Finley leave the St. John Police Force?

Yours Respectfully,
H. R. McEILLAN,
Ex-Comm. Public Safety.

PROHIBITION AND BEER AND WINES

The Editor of The Standard: Dear Sir:—In your paper today are two letters, the writers of which claim to be Temperance men, and yet both are opposed to the Prohibition Act and are going to vote for Wines and Beers, so they write.

One of them says it is not the principle of Prohibition to which he is opposed and yet he advocates the sale of Ales, Porter and Port Wine, all intoxicating drinks. Surely that is a violation of all the principles of Prohibition.

The other says if we can have Prohibition which will stop the manufacture and importation he would vote for it and yet he says he will vote for Beers and Wines. That is hardly a consistent position for any believer in total Prohibition to take, especially in view of the steps necessary before the goal of total Prohibition can be reached. If the vote for Beers and Wines should be carried then the way to total Prohibition would be barred against us and would effectively prevent us from getting what he says he believes in and would be the name of Prohibition of Importation and Manufacture.

Under the Dominion Law we must have Prohibition for the Province, then on the request of our Legislature we may vote on total Prohibition. The Legislature at its last session refused us the vote on total Prohibition until we had decided in favor of our present law.

The clear issue in the present referendum is shall Prohibition continue to be the Law of this Province or are we to take a retrograde step and go back to the licentious and legalized sale of intoxicating drinks under the name of Wines and Beers, which our Premier tells us means Ales, Porter, Port Wine, etc.? That is the question the electors have to decide on Saturday by their vote for the Prohibition Act and against the sale of light Wines and Beers.

Any defects found in the present law can easily be remedied. Some have already been proposed for and only await an Order-in-Council by the Government to bring into force legislation now on the statute book providing for the sale of liquors and wines for medicinal, manufacturing and sacramental purposes and asking the sale of private control and profit.

To vote for Wines and Beers because the Prohibition Act is not as good as it ought to be does not show any great wisdom. The true wisdom is to cling to what we have, imperfect though we may believe it to be, and to seek at the same time to so strengthen and amend as to lead on to our goal of Prohibition. To ensure prohibition, manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.

The men and women with the best interests of their fellowmen at heart and who are willing to make sacrifice of money, inclination and of personal gratification for the good of others will surely cast their ballot on July 10th for Prohibition and against the sale of Porter, Ales and Port Wines, etc.

Yours truly,
THOMAS MARSHALL,
Fairville, N. B.
July 7th, 1920.

To the Editor of The Standard:

Dear Sir:—In reply to the letters published in your columns stating that prohibition had failed, kindly permit me to say that so far as many homes in our city are concerned, it has not only proved an unequalled success, but an unanticipated blessing. If the gentleman who wrote these letters could have entered these homes with me, looked into the faces, lined with care, heard the stories of suffering, misery, child neglect, and cruelties endured for years; then how prohibition had come had changed all this, how that now they were rejoicing in reconstructed homes, cared for, well nourished children, happy firesides, they would, I am sure, never make the grave blunder of writing as they did; but would have gone away to work and vote to secure and make permanent to these women and children, their belated happiness.

Along with this gratitude and happiness of these women there was a deep note of anxiety as to the future. What will it bring to them? You and I decide. On the 10th of July every voter must show that they "stand on guard" to protect these homes, and also to safeguard the men who in many cases have fought bravely and well to regain their lost manhood and make homes sweet & should be.

Vote—before casting your ballot please stop and ask: 1st, Is there anything of self in this act? 2nd, Can it possibly result in pain or sorrow to any heart to any home?

Thanking you for above space, I am,
Yours very truly,
A HOME-MAKER.

Fredericton, N. B.,
July 6th, 1920.
Editor St. John Standard, St. John, N. B.

Dear Sir:—Below is a quotation from an interview with Principal Hibben of Princeton University by a representative of the press bearing upon a subject of great interest to the public at the present time.

"As for Prohibition, one of the first signs of a decadent society is that it tries to make itself moral by law instead of a healthy and vigorous public opinion."

The writer would think it timely that some one at the head of the "Bone Dry" movement should give his views upon the opinion of Principal Hibben, who holds an important position in connection with the education of the young.

Trusting you will find space for this,
Yours truly,
SANITY.

The Editor of The Standard: Dear Sir:—Very many contemptible reports have and are being circulated through the Province concerning the Chief Inspector under the Prohibition Act. It is said that he has become wealthy through the operation of the Act and that he has built houses at St. Stephen and Fredericton, that he is a stockholder in the Wilson and Canadian Drug Companies and that the Canadian Drug Company gave him a cheque for three thousand dollars ($3000.00) for protecting their interests.

Other equally ludicrous and untrue stories are being industriously circulated with the evident intention of prejudicing voting for the Prohibition Act.

Whilst these things are being circulated for campaign purposes no one is willing to be responsible for them, but only say "I've heard them."

I wish to say on behalf of the Alliance Committee, who have carefully examined into each statement, that each and every one of these assertions are absolutely untrue with no foundation whatever, except in the evil minds of those starting them. I am on behalf of the Alliance,
Yours truly,
THOMAS MARSHALL,
Fairville, N. B.
July 7th, 1920.

(We publish the foregoing as a matter of course, but it must surely be evident to Mr. Marshall and his colleagues that a denial of the truth of these reports would carry a good deal more weight if made by Mr. Wilson himself, as the only person who can really say whether they are true or not.—Ed.)

IS THE MODERN GIRL INSINCERE?

Where is the Desirable Woman of Former Days Asks English Writer.

(By C. Franklyn Burghes, in The Daily Express.)

Once on a time the ardent lover handed his fair lady a daisy, and as the falling petals dropped gently from her tapering fingers asked himself with palpitating heart, "She loves me—she loves me not?"

Nowadays the ardent self-lover hands himself many bouquets, and when a passing beauty attracts his servant fancy, asks himself with much analysis of the lady's charms and cold speculation on their effect on him, "I love her—I love her not?"

Where does this change? It is indisputable that the sentimental lover of Victorian days is as extinct as the valentine that each year would proclaim his undying devotion. Faithfulness and selflessness are no longer the conspicuous feature of modern love affairs; the understanding that almost invariably exists between the lovers that they must of necessity be ephemeral. The war undoubtedly is one cause of this universal endorsement of Carmen's challenging song: "Love is a Bohemian child."

That knows no law, is free as air, If you don't love me, I love you, But if I love you, then beware!" In those strenuous days, that already seem so far away, every girl wore her heart upon her sleeve, and feminine heart strings were eagerly thrust into the careless hands of the young subaltern whose uniform was irresistible incentive to flirtation.

The New Order. But after one year and a half of peace one asks oneself whether the general frivolity still so greatly in evidence is but the aftermath of war, or one of the many permanent signs of the new order which is so rapidly succeeding the old.

The old-fashioned fogies who will not move with the times, and whose minds have not advanced beyond those distant pre-war days, will tell you that the morals of today are as insincere as its manners are martinet.

The fogies will say that the modern girl deserves nothing better than she receives at the hands of the modern man; that she has thrown away woman's greatest asset, eternal mystery, and by so doing has for ever given man the mastery in affairs of the heart.

A careful observer must admit that there is some truth in the words of the fogies. It is a commonplace that men are scarce nowadays, but the wise woman is she who has realized that the scarcest thing in all the world is the desirable woman. She who is not desirous, but desirable, will conquer the last man of all in an exclusively feminine world.

A Sickly Lot. "So your daughter wants to be an actress, does she? Don't let her; it's an unhealthy business."

"Unhealthy?" "Certainly!" Don't you always see their names in the papers telling how they've been taking tonics and patent medicines?"—Boston Transcript.
