

The second result is that debt and taxation have been enormously increased. At the end of the fiscal year
 March 31, 1930, the last year of the Liberal Administration
 in office, the public debt was...2,194,746,563.....$
 On March 31st of the present year it stood at.....$
 An increase of.....458,162,319.....$

(C.A. Rolston p. 3608, N.T. Mar 24/31)

Exhibit B

How taxation has increased, I need not begin to indicate. That is known to you all: increases in direct as well as indirect taxation; increases in customs duties;
 increases in the sales tax; increases in income taxes,
 lowering of tax exemptions; increased stamp taxes; increase in postage rates; increases in everything that can be thought of in way of taxation.

So much for the problem of unemployment and the present Government's administration thereof.