

- If there's an ill text in a' the Bible,
that creetur's aye sure to tak it,' 84.
'If you dinna ken when ye've a gude servant, I ken when I've a gude place,' 129.
'I hae culst'n my coat and waistcoat, and faith I dinna ken how lang I can thole my breeks,' 136.
'I just fan' a doo in the redd o' my plate,' 126.
'I'll hang ye a' at the price,' 278.
'I maun hae a lume that'll hand in,' 256.
'I'm unco yuckie to hear a blaud o'
your gab,' 170.
Inch-byre banes, 262.
'Indeed, sir, I wish I wur,' 263.
India, St. Andrew's day kept in, by Scotchmen, 18.
I never big dykes till the tenants complain,' 271.
Innes, Jock, remark upon hats and heads, 267.
Innkeeper's bill, reason for being moderate, 274.
Interchange of words between minister and flock in church, 342.
Intercourse between classes changed, 137.
'I soopt the pu'pit,' 126.
It's a peety but ye had been in Paradise, and there nicht na hae been ony faa,' 19.
'It's no the day to be spcerin sic things,' 72.
'I've a coo noo,' 335.
'I was just stan'ing till the kirk had skall'd,' 17.
'I was not juist sas sune doited as some o' your Lordships,' 148.
'I wouldna gie my single life for a'
the double anes I ever saw,' 136.
JACOBITE feeling, 97, 98.
Jacobite lady, reason for not rising from her chair, 199.
Jacobite toasts, 100.
Jacobite's prayer for the King, 99.
Jaimie Loyal, old servant, anecdotes of, 132.
Jeems Robson, ye are sleepin', 80.
'Jemmy, you are drunk,' 263.
Jock, daft, attending funeral at Wig-town, 287.
Jock Grey, supposed original of David Gellatley, 285.
Jock Wabster, 'deil gaes ower, a proverb, 231.
John Brown, burgher minister, and an
'auld wife,' 69.
John, eccentric servant, anecdotes of,
141.
Johnstone, Miss, of Westerhall, spec-men of fine old Scotch lady, 187, 188.
Johnstone, Rev. Dr., of Leith, and old woman, on the decrees of God, 83.
Johnstone, Rev. Mr., of Monquhitter, and travelling piper, 297.
Judges, Scottish, former peculiarities
as a type, 145.
Judges, Scottish, in Kay's Portraits, 145.
KAIL, curious use of word, 205.
Kames, Lord, a keen agriculturist, 157.
Kamea, Lord, his joke with Lord
Monboddo, 152.
'Kaming her husband's head,' 312.
Kay's Portraits, 157.
Keith, Mrs., of Ravelston, her remark to Sir W. Scott on old books, 352.
Kilspindie, Laird of, and Tannachy
Tulloch, 241.
Kindly feelings between minister and people, 69.
Kirkyard crack, 137.
Kirkyard crack superseded by newspapers, 137.
LADIES of Montrose, anecdotes of, 28.
Ladies, old, of Montrose, 28.
Lady, old maiden, of Montrose, reason for not subscribing to volunteer fund, 197.
Lady, old, of Montrose, objections to steam vessels, and gas, and water-carts, 196.
Lady, old Scotch, remark on loss of her box, 197.
Lady, Scottish, Lord Cockburn's account of, 193.
Lady's, old, answer to her doctor, 194.
Laird, parsimonious, and fool, 291.
Laird, parsimonious, and plate at church-door, 297.
Laird, reason against taking his son
into the world, 267.
Laird reproaches his brother for not taking a wife, 334.
Laird, saving, picking up a farthing,
263.
Laird, Scottish, delighted that Christmas had run away, 261.
Lamb, Charles, saw no wit in Scotch
people, 244.
Land, differences of, in produce, 268.
'Lass wi' the braw plaid, mind the puir,' 71.