STRENGTHENING PROHIBITION.

Stringent Amendments Introduced by Minister of Justice

The Amendments Will Assist The Provincial Government.

Hon. C. J. Doherty has introduced his promised bill to amend the "act in aid of provincial legislation prohibiting or restricting the sale or use of intoxicating liquors," which is generally known as the Doherty act. The minister of justice said that the amendments were designed to strengthen the hands of the provinces in the enforcement of their legislation by adding to the facilities for dealing with the importation of liquor from outside the provincial boundaries for use in contravention of the provincial law.

The first paragraph of the bill made the description more complete by adding the words "for beverage purposes" the word "liquor."

One section provides that the mails shall not be used for the circulation of liquor advertisements and literature in provinces where such advertisements are prohibited. Any person who sends or attempts to send from any province to persons living in prohibition provinces advertisements or documents regarding the sale of liquor for beverage purposes shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty of not less than $10 nor more than $100, with the alternative of imprisonment for thirty days, or to both fine and imprisonment.

A further clause in the bill provides that prosecutions under the act may take place and convictions ensue in any place from which any intoxicating liquor is sent as well as in the province to which it is shipped for illegal use.

Another clause extends the powers of constables or peace officers to enter any premises where they believe liquor is illegally concealed. It extends the right of search to any government railway, steamship or other vehicle and authorizes the seizure of any intoxicating liquor and packages containing the same which the officer has reason to believe are being shipped in violation of the law.

A further clause provides that upon receipt by the secretary of state of a petition in accordance with the terms of the Canadian Temperance Act praying for the revocation of the Canada Temperance act, if the governor in council was of the opinion that the laws of the province in which such city or town was situated relating to the sale of intoxicating liquor were as restrictive as the Canada Temperance Act, the governor-in-council might without polling any votes, by proclamation in the Canada Gazette suspend the operation of the Canada Temperance Act in such locality, such suspension to commence ten day after such publication and to continue as long as the provincial laws continued so restrictive.

A final clause provides penalties for the sale of patent medicines containing undue proportion of alcohol, making the provision much more strict. It provides that "any penalty incurred under the provisions of sections 7 and 12 of the proprietary or patent medicines act shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in substitution for any penalty incurred under the law of any province, and the provision of said section 7 shall not be deemed to be in any provincial law."

Explaining this legislation Hon. Mr. Doherty said that it was intended to strengthen the hands of the provinces, especially against the advertising of liquor for beverage purposes in prohibition provinces. If Ontario, for example made it an offence to carry advertisements regarding the sale of liquors the law would protect that legislation from being violated from outside sources, and would to that end prohibit the use of the post office for the sending of liquor and liquor advertisements into prohibition districts.

With regard to the provision as to patent medicines Hon. Mr. Doherty said that the effect would be that druggists selling such alleged medicines should not get off with a nominal fine, but would be subjected to the full $200 penalty.

CAN YOUR HENS FOR WINTER USE

(Experimental Farms Notes)

"Canned chicken" may be made at home in your kitchen out of the old hens that ought to be killed anyway.

The method of operation is known as "Straight Pack" by the trade is very simple and is given in detail as follows by Dr. Robt. Banes, Chief of the Meat and Canned Foods Division Health of Animals Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Clean and cut up the chicken. Sort out the fleshy portions, such as the legs, thighs and breast.

Break off the protruding portions of the bones in each piece.

Pack these fleshy portions in a gem jar or other container, as closely as possible.

Add salt and pepper. (About a teaspoonful of salt and 1-8 teaspoonful of pepper.)

Fill to within 3-4 inch of overflowing with the liquid that comes from the balance of the chicken, process for preparing which is given below.

Place in boiler or other vessel containing warm water and gradually bring to a boil.

For pint jars boil 2 1-2 hours.

For quart jars boil 3 1-2 hours.

For the balance of the chicken.

Place in kettle and boil till the meat will strip free from the bones.

Strip off all meat and pack in jar.

Four thereon the balance of the liquid in the kettle that has not been used in the first jar.

If there is not enough liquid to fill the second jar, add water.

Place in boiler as above, and boil as follows:

For pint jars 1 3-4 hours.

For quarts 2 1-4 hours.

If desired, the whole of the chicken may be prepared the same as the last part.

In all cases take care not to expose the gem jars to a sudden change of temperature.

Also, after the jars have cooled off examine the tops to see that the covers are air-tight.

During the cooking of the product, place the glass tops on the sealers but do not fasten them. Any steam or gas which may be generated will escape.

As soon, however, as the process is finished, fasten the tops securely.

While describing the method of canning, something should be said about the poultry to be canned.

What is preferred are good, plump fowls, with fair proportion of chickens, the bones of the latter giving a firmer jelly and lessening the danger of a soupy or squasy product. As a precaution against this condition, where the pack is straight fowl, gelatine may be, and often is used.

So much has been said and written about the proper methods of starving, bleeding and plucking poultry for market that its useless to go over them again. One can only emphasize the necessity of exactness in carrying out the accepted principles in connection with these points, which are just as applicable to poultry to be canned as they are to those intended for the market.

There is another point which is important, although possibly its carrying out may detract from the appearance and affect the sale to an inexperienced buyer, namely, that all poultry intended for food, canned or otherwise, after being properly starved, bled and plucked, should be left undrawn and kept in a suitable temperature for a day or two in order that the chemical changes which follow the killing of the bird may have an opportunity to take place.

Ameriault, representative for Yarmouth and Western parts of the Province. The Digby representative is Mr. Bernard Cossaboom. The Excelsior appears to be getting its share of the business and has certainly a popular staff in Nova Scotia as well as in Toronto and the other Provinces of the Dominion.

HAUGHTY BUT VAGUE.

(From the Philadelphia Bulletin)

Gen. John J. Pershing, at a farewell luncheon in Washington before his departure for France, said in a brief speech:

"When the Germans accuse us of violating international law we ask them in reply to explain the legality of their baby murders by Zeppelin and submarine. Well, the German answer to this is something haughty and vague. It is like Col. Carter, of Cartersville.

"Col. Carter, of Cartersville, sat on the veranda of his Cape May cottage with the sea spread before him and a mint julep on the table at his side.

"Yes, sah," he was saying, "its a powerful fertile country down round Carter there where the trees grow so close that you can't shove your hand between the trunks. And game! Why, sah, I've seen deer in them woods with an eight-foot spread of antlers. Yes, sah, an eight-foot spread."

"But, Col., asked a Philadelphian, 'how can the deer get such antlers between those trunks?'"

"Col. Carter drew himself. "That, sah, he said, is their busi ness."
