"STAND, OR I FIRE!"

Vicar Shoots Burglar in a Graveyard—A Midnight Sentinel—Wounded Man Escapes in a Motor Car.

The Rev. Forbes Phillips, vicar of Gorleston, England, author and dramatist, has further distinguished himself by shooting down a burglar who was endeavouring to enter his parish church.

Twice recently Gorleston Church has been broken into and the contents of the poor-box stolen. The thieves have not been discovered, but hearing that suspicious persons had been seen hanging about the churchyard, the vicar assumed the role of a sentry on midnight watch. "After the Sunday evening service," said Mr. Phillips to an interviewer, "I slipped a bulldog revolver into my pocket and went to the churchyard to watch. It was a fearful night of wind and rain. I had tried to drenchen to the skin. I had tried to induce the police to set a watch, but owing to an ancient legend that the ghost of an old abbot perambulates the churchyard, not a man would undertake the job. The standing tombstones and high graves made splendid cover for any intruders, and I walked about several times, keeping careful watch.

Leaped into Churchyard.

"About a quarter to one I saw two men rise above the wall from the lane and leap into the churchyard. One was tall, the other short. The tall one stopped by the wall while the other hurried across to the tower entrance. I heard a low whistle from the tall man just as I stepped from the priest's door.
I walked towards the priest's door down towards the wall. A short man tall man warned me he had seen me.
Simultaneously I cried to the short man ahead of me, 'Halt, stand, or I fire.'

"He paid no heed, but ran, I fired to warn him; then, as he reached the edge of the sunken pathway, I fired low at his legs. He leaped into the air, uttered a frightful shriek, turned almost a complete somersault, like a winged partridge, and came down prone on the gravel walk. He groaned and he writhed, clawing with both hands furiously at the gravel and earth.

Fired at Other Man.

"I said to myself, 'You are accounting for at any rate,' and, wheeling round, ran after the tall man. He dodged behind tombstones, until at last I caught sight of his face between two of the stones. I fired. I never saw him after that. I next ran to the section's house for assistance. He was evidently either dazed or wounded.
Then we lighted a lantern, and returned to the scene. My wounded man was gone, but in his agonies he had almost dug himself a grave with his hands in the gravelled walk. The rain was pouring in torrents, so that we could find no blood marks over on the other side of the lane. Outside the church grounds we found a piece of stiff cardboard smeared with blood. The fellow had evidently either dragged himself over to a dust heap there, and lain on it for a while, or what is more probable, his accomplice had returned and borne him away. Not a trace of them has been found since."

Scrutinized the Safe.

"Last week," added Mr. Phillips,
"the church was broken into twice, and similar crimes are reported from many places." One day, while he was in the vestry, a tall man and a short man entered, and were taken aback to find someone there. They scrutinized the safe, though they explained that they wanted to copy an ancient inscription above it. Mr. Phillips is convinced they are members of a gang with a motor car, which was seen near the church on Sunday. He suggests that the wounded man was a burglar that London in the car. All the police and all the hospitals in East Anglia have been warned, but no clue has been found, beyond a report that a tall man and a short man were seen loitering at Lowestoft, and a boat at Yarmouth and rowed up the river one last week. Mr. Phillips adds that burglars have an inducement to steal old church plate on account of the fact that the church is a place where advises every country clergyman with such valuable property "to try the gun method."

The Rev. Forbes Phillips, the hero of this exploit, is well known as the author of "Church and Stage," which Mrs. Brown-Potter revived at the Savoir Theatre. "When it was Dark," also from his pen, is a dramatization of Guy Thorne's novel of that name, which the Oxford Union recently decided to burn. On previous occasions Mrs. Brown-Potter, at the invitation of Mr. Phillips, has given Sunday evening recitals in Gorleston Church.

Outing's Canadian Editor.

Edwyn William Sandys, editor and author, was born at Chatham, Ont., June 2, 1860. He is a son of Rev. Francis W. Sandys, D. D. He received a private education, and became editor of The Canadian Sportsman and journalist to the Canadian Pacific Railway.
Mr. Sandys removed to New York to become editor of Outing and a special writer for other publications. He is the author of "Upland Game Birds," "Trapper Jim," "Sportsman Joe," and other sporting sketches and articles.

Welds Glass and Copper.

Edward Egan of Lee county says that after experimenting for three years he has learned the secret not only of welding copper, but glass as well, lost for centuries. The invention if a success would revolutionize the telegraph, electric light and trolley companies to weld their copper wire instead of brazing it. Broken panes of plate glass can also be welded, saving heavy loss in that direction.

Six Miles of Anglers.

Nearly 1,600 anglers of the Birmingham and District Fishing Association held their annual competition at Oundle. Three special trains conveyed the anglers from Birmingham. About six miles of water was pegged out, and the competition lasted three hours. Mr.
Stevens, of Garrison lane, was the winner with a take of over ten pounds, consisting of three bream.

The Bone Cutter.

The most profitable device around the poultry yard is a bone cutter. It increases the eggs and saves the grain bill.

Many words of most august sound prove to be of quite commonplace ancestry when traced to their origins.
"Finnance" is really only "settling up." Literally, it is just "ending," and was formerly used in that very simple sense in the English language. Then it came to signify settling up with a creditor and acquired the special sense of ransom.

Jethou Island is by far the smallest of the Channel Islands and boasts the distinction of being the smallest uninonly one dwelling house upon it. It has no road or pathway or post. At the last census more than half the population of the island was absent, having gone to Guernsey market with the butter and cream from the Jethou cows. The weather being bad, the visitors had to stay at Guernsey during the census time.

Hair or Heiress?

When he learned that he was the was a boy or girl, and had to return to his home to ascertain the sex.

IN FASHION'S TREND

HOW TO CHOOSE A SMART FALL WARDROBE.

Clothes That Make the Stout Woman Slim and the Slim Woman Lithe and Graceful—The Importance of a Harpy Selection in Headgear.

No set rules can be given for choosing the fall wardrobe. Each person must study her own appearance and dress in accordance. What will suit a tall woman will look quite out of place on a woman of short dimensions, and a stout person cannot dress in the same style as a slim one without emphasizing her stoutness. And so each individual must find out for herself what will suit her best and study the minor details, so that her appearance helps to form a picturesque whole.

In choosing her dresses the tall woman should bear in mind that a short one detracts from the height, and in this matter fashion favors her, for the long trailing dresses for everyday wear are a thing of the past, and it is seldom a woman is seen in the streets with her skirts trailing along in the mud or dust or tucked away under her arm.

Some tall women in order to make themselves appear shorter make the mistake of stooping, thinking that in so doing they will lessen their height, while, instead of making themselves appear shorter, they only succeed in looking awkward and ungainly. In a low, small chair the tall girl presents anything but an elegant appearance, with drooping shoulders and knees at an awkward angle. She gives the impression at once of being too big for the chair, whereas if she chooses an ordinary size seat she can sit as gracefully as any one.

The extra tall woman seems to have an advantage over the very short one in the fact that she can usually walk gracefully when once she has got out of the stooping habit; but with a very short person this is seldom the case, and her walk has a tendency to develop into a waddle. She can, however, add to her height more easily than a tall person can detract from hers. By wearing high heeled shoes quite an inch is added to the height.
The broad waist belt gives length to the waist. Squatty hats should be avoided and very large ones overlooked by her.

The slender woman of ordinary height should find no difficulty in choosing her dress, as she is well cared for in the fashion books, and can usually manage to present a satisfactory appearance, but a stout woman has to be more careful and should remember when choosing her style of costume that the gown should be made for the person by whom it is meant to be worn and not because the style is smart and a little out of the ordinary.

The woman with a long neck should not expose too much of it to view, but should cover it up with a pretty fancy collar.

If you are possessed of a small flat nose, remember when buying your hats to avoid those that project very much in the front, as they will make the nose appear even more insignificant. A moderate size hat will modify the defect, if it can be so termed. Hats with sharp outlines or that are set back off the face should be avoided by the person with sharp and decidedly prominent features. The woman with a prominent nose has much to contend with, and her hats should not be severe in outline and should be set well forward.

Hands that are squeezed into gloves one or two sizes too small for them will only add to the size of the hand, and a tight shoe will not add grace to the walk, besides causing great pain to the feet.

What will suit one will not suit another, and it rests with each individual person to exercise her own good taste when choosing her costumes and hats.

AMY VARNUM.

To Clean Frames.

Don't attempt to clean picture frames covered with gold leaf, as the finest and most beautiful of all gold frames are.
You can tell them by the way the gold as you look at it closely, seems laid on, here and there curling ever so slightly away from the frame. Any sort of cleaning, except the most casual dusting, is bound to make the gold scale off in an unsightly fashion.
