DRAFTING PLAYERS.

DRAFTING PLAYERS.

Ever think how much money passes from
the major leagues to the minors every year?

Ever stop to figure what it costs the big leagues to secure the 25 or 30 recruits who make good in fast company every Spring?

President Pulliam, of the National League, emerged from the clouds of a 50-cent perfect at Cincinnait the other day long enough to give a few facts concerning the purchase and drafting of players this Fall by major league clubs.

and drafting of players this Fall by major league clubs.

"There are 16 clubs in the two big leagues," said President Pulliam, "and these clubs have added in the neighborhood of 200 players to their reserve lists since they began purchasing men early in August. That means an average of more than a dozen to a team. Of these men it is not likely that more than 50 will make good—and the majority of them must be paid for just the same.

"While I haven't the exact figures at hand. I know that more than $350,000 have been paid by the two big leagues for minor league players this Fall. Those figures will be greatly increased in cases where second payments are good.

Amateur athletic associations seem inclined to surround their members or their performers with restrictions almost as complete as contagious disease quarantines. Not a day passes but some amateur is tried or suspended for some infraction of the rules. One of the lattest suspensions is that of our own fleet-footed Indian, Longboat, and he seems to have offended the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union by travelling across the international houndary both ways without asking permission of anybody. Coley, another Canadian runner, is under suspension for a similar offence. An American runner, Frank Nebrich, went over to Canada without permission and ran on the Fort Erie track.
